Report fuels dump-Carter fires

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — Billy Carter told the FBI President Jimmy Carter gave him State Department cables relating to U.S. dealings with the government of Libya, a member of the House judiciary committee said today.

In the latest revelation rocking Carter's chances for re-election, and possibly even renomination at the Aug. 11 Democratic national convention in New York, Rep. Harold Sawyer (R—Mich.) told the committee the incident was recorded in an FBI report contained in justice department documents sent to the judiciary and foreign affairs committees.

"I'm very concerned about the cable traffic situation," Sawyer said. "Billy Carter was questioned by the FBI and security agents and said he had been furnished Libyan cable traffic — had them at his house."

"It was either a disaster — he was an agent of Libya who said he received them (the cables) from the president of the United States — or else he was guilty of a felony by giving misinformation to federal agents in a relevant matter," Sawyer said.

Sawyer said he understood the president's brother had refused to disclose conversations he may have had with the president and other officials.

Sawyer made the disclosure as the judiciary committee considered a resolution of inquiry that would require the White House and the justice department to furnish the House all available information about the affair.

Meanwhile, the Washington Post reported today Billy Carter called the White House last year to enquire about sales of C-130 military air transports wanted by the Libyan government.

The Post said the president's brother told justice department investigators Jan. 16 he had contacted White House appointments secretary Philip Wise Jr. about the matter last year.

But according to one account of the January interview, the Post said, he refused to answer when asked about any attempts to influence President Carter about releasing the planes.

He also refused to say whether he made any attempts through his mother, Lillian, to influence the president on the issue and told investigators it was MASSIVE DRILLING RIG Ocean Bounty is latest tourist attraction in the Nanaimo area. Seagoing oil-drilling platform is undergoing $1 million refit in Nanoose Bay north of Nanaimo. Motorists on Island Highway are stopping to gawk at the huge structure which has space for 85 workers. For comparison, there are several men in basket suspended from crane at left. Owned by Odeco Inc. of New Orleans, the rig was towed past Victoria July 10 on way from Alaska. Next assignment is the North Sea.

Gas, heating oil price on way up this Friday

Times News Services

Canadians can soon expeet to pay more for gasoline — seven cents a gallon or 1.5 cents per litre — and for home heating oil.

Despite the collapse of talks between the federal government and Alberta on a new domestic price for petroleum products, the two governments have agreed to raise the price of a barrel of oil $2 to $16.75 a barrel effective Aug. 1.

But, although no announcement has been made on the matter, it is anticipated that a traditional practice of not passing the increase on to consumers for 30 to 60 days — until stocks on hand have been used — will be continued.

In Calgary Tuesday, Energy Minister Merv Leitch said it's a good bet Alberta will increase the price of its crude oil Friday adding the province doesn't feel constrained to stick to a $2 increase for this year.

Alberta's governing Progressive Conservative caucus meets today to decide exactly what the province's next move will be.

Leitch said Alberta's earlier $2 offer won't have any bearing on what decision is made in the next couple of days because it was "a relatively small portion of a complex offer that covered a number of things."

He said Alberta will not capitulate in its energy-pricing confrontation with the federal Liberal government.

For the long term, however, the prospect of resolving the dispute harmoniously is shaky at best.

The talks in Ottawa between Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau and Alberta Premier Peter Lougheed left the two sides far apart.

Of immediate concern is the future of the two $7 billion oil sand projects which initially were scheduled to come on stream in 1985.

The Cold Lake and Alsands plants will eventually produce about 280,000 barrels of oil at a time when conventional oil supplies are drying up.

But Jack MacLeod, president of Shell Canada Resources Ltd., which is spearheading the Alsands project, said Tuesday that the two governments' failure to reach an agreement meant another year's delay. "Alsands will not come on stream until 1987 at the earliest," he said.

The federal government has been left high and dry by the continued stalemate. It must bring down a fall budget, an integral part of which is the framework of a pricing agreement for the next few years.

Without such an agreement, Finance Minister Allan MacEachen will likely be forced to introduce a natural gas export tax and a refinery tax to raise badly-needed revenues, measures that would certainly anger the producing provinces.

Inescapably intertwined with the oil pricing issue are the constitutional talks and Trudeau's promise for reform. Control of their own resources is at the top of the provinces' priorities.

Leitch said Canadians have misconceptions on Alberta's oil-pricing stand.

"I keep hearing these comments about greedy Alberta wanting the world price. At no time have we ever asked for the world price. The highest it would ever have reached, and that would have been a number of years down the road under the agreement with Mr. Clark, was 85 per cent of the Chicago or international price.

Alcan facing charges

VANCOUVER (CP) — After months of threats, ultimatums and negotiations, the federal government is going to charge the Aluminum Co. of Canada under the Fisheries Act, fisheries department officials have announced.

Federal Fisheries Minister Romeo LeBlanc has asked justice department officials to initiate the court proceedings this afternoon.

LeBlanc had asked Alcan, which operates a major aluminum smelting plant at Kitimat using power developed from the Nechako Reservoir, to increase flow into the Nechako River to 8,000 cubic feet a second by noon Tuesday until Aug. 20.

Fisheries officials believe that a low discharge from the reservoir into the Nechako, a major tributary of the Fraser River, will hurt migrating and spawning salmon because water temperatures will be too high and water levels too low.

Last week, on the basis of weather forecasts, Alcan increased the flow from the reservoir to 7,000 cubic feet a second, but cut the level Sunday to 600 cubic feet on the basis of consultant reports and forecasts of cooler weather.

Alcan said Tuesday that, in effect, no government can regulate its use of the Nechako and insisted it will be the sole judge of what water levels on the river should be.

Alcan formally told LeBlanc Tuesday morning it was defying his order, now a month old, that the company increase water rates.

In Ottawa, two New Democratic Party MPs said today Alcan deliberately provoked the federal charges through what they called its arrogance and insensitivity.

Jim Fulton, the party's environment critic, and Ted Miller, fisheries critic, said in a joint news release that Alcan's "gross irresponsibility" towards the salmon fishery left Fisheries Minister Romeo LeBlanc no alternative.

On Tuesday, NDP MLA Frank Howard charged the federal government had been "spineless" and the provincial government "gutless" in their handling of the Nechako River situation.

Alcan officials claim that because the provincial government granted it a water licence for the area in the early 1950s, it is not subject to orders by the federal government.

Why clothes cost so much

OTTAWA (CP) — Every Canadian family paid $100 more than necessary for clothes in 1979 because of government measures to protect the inefficient domestic textile industry from foreign competition, says a report released today by the North-South Institute.

The study, by Harvard economist Glenn Jenkins, says a protectionist import quota system has created jobs in the textile industry, but at an extremely high cost.

The cost to consumers and the economic waste caused by artificially creating jobs are so high that it would be better to pay garment industry workers their salaries, but leave them unemployed, the author says.

The study was commissioned by the institute, a Canadian non-profit organization which researches international development, and the World Bank.

Jenkins recommends reducing protection of the textile industry by removing the existing system of bilateral import quotas aimed at particular exporting countries.

As a temporary measure, he suggests returning to the global quota system in effect in 1977 and 1978, which allowed importers to buy from any exporting country they chose.

But the only real solution is freer trade, Jenkinkins said.

One-third of the clothing bought in Canada is imported.

The federal Liberal government has justified protection of the industry on grounds that textile workers could not find other jobs if the factories went out of business.

Butter, skim milk price up

OTTAWA (CP) — Butter and skim milk powder prices will rise next week and the cost of other dairy products will increase later in August following higher prices for farmers announced today by Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan.

Butter prices in stores will likely increase by eight cents a pound (17 cents a kilogram) and skim milk powder by five cents a pound (12 cents a kilo). The price increase for cheese, yogurt, ice cream and other dairy products is affected by other factors besides the cost of milk.

The price for whole milk is not affected by today's announcement as it is under the control of provincial agencies.

The target return price for farmers will rise to $15.26 a hundredweight ($34.61 a hectolitre) Friday from the current price of $14.68 a hundredweight ($33.31 a hectolitre). The last price increase was April 1.

Whelan said the price increases will add 22 cents to the weekly grocery bill of a family of four.

Private wine stores within six months

VANCOUVER (CP) — There may be privately-owned specialty wine shops in B.C. within six months, Consumer and Corporate Affairs Minister Jim Nielsen indicated Tuesday.

Nielsen said the next step in the government's program to relax liquor regulations probably will be taken by the end of the year, and his ministry is drawing up guidelines for privately-operated wine stores.

There already have been a number of licence applications, he said, adding that the government wants the stores to be reputable operations — preferably run by knowledgeable wine-lovers.

Nielsen noted there might be a problem in ensuring privately-run wine stores would not undercut the prices of the government's own liquor outlets.

He said the idea behind allowing specialty stores would be to widen the range of wine available in B.C. There would be controls to prevent dumping of cheap wine.

Bennett scotches tipsy jest

Premier Bill Bennett apologized to the legislature today for a jocular remark about MLAs' drinking habits.

NDP MLA Lorne Nicolson raised the issue as the house met for its second morning session of the week.

He complained about Bennett's quip to reporters Tuesday that the government has instituted morning instead of evening sittings because "MLAs don't pour Scotch on their corn flakes."

Nicolson said the story has been picked up by the eastern newspapers and the B.C. legislature has been degraded again.

"I hate to think any member would take offence at a jest," Bennett said, and continuing the joke, he apologized to those members who actually do take Scotch on their corn flakes.

The premier followed this up with a serious apology and expressed the wish that members keep their sense of humor.

Acting Speaker Walter Davidson said the apology puts the matter to rest.

However, NDP MLA Gary Lauk insisted the news report should be considered as a question of privilege because it seriously implies that members have shown up drunk at evening sittings.

Davidson agreed to take the question under advisement.

The speaker will soon have to contend with a more serious issue arising from the morning sittings.

The legislature's public accounts committee was scheduled to sit this morning and in fact the meeting was convened by its NDP chairman Ernie Hall. Only the NDP members attended.

The committee is technically in contempt of the legislature for sitting while the house is in session. It requires special permission from the legislature to do so.

Government House Leader Garde Gardom told the Times the committee had no business sitting but would not indicate what measures the government might take to deal with the situation.

The committee meeting heard continued testimony from Auditor General Erma Morrison.

Ford losses hit all-time high

DETROIT (AP) — In its worst quarter ever, Ford Motor Co. lost $468 million and pushed losses by the four biggest U.S. automakers to $1.5 billion for the period from March through June.

The loss, almost triple Ford's first-quarter deficit, came to $3.89 a common share, the No. 2 automaker said Tuesday.

Ford blamed low car and truck sales, "weaker economic conditions" and higher sales of imports for the deficit.

Ford Motor Co. of Canada Ltd. had a consolidated net loss of $28.8 million or $3.47 a share in the second quarter of this year, compared with a profit of $58.2 or $7.02 a share in the similar period a year ago.

The three-month loss gave the Canadian branch of the company a net loss of $52.1 million in the first half, compared with a profit of $59.8 in 1979.

Ford Canada said its consolidated net sales in the first six months of this year were $2.9 billion, down $929 million from 1979 results.

No. 1 General Motors Corp. last week reported a loss of $412 million — $791 million before tax credits — and American Motors Corp. said it lost $85 million.

Chrysler Corp., which has not reported to its stockholders, has told the federal government it lost $555 million in the second quarter, the industry low-water mark so far. Volkswagen of America reports only to its German parent company but is believed to be marginally profitable.

Without tax breaks, the collective setback to the four battered U.S.-owned car-makers would have been $2 billion for the quarter.

The largest quarterly loss in U.S. corporate history was $561.7 million reported by U.S. Steel Corp. in the fourth quarter last year.

Ford said it would have lost $564 million for the quarter except for tax credits. Last year, it earned $520 million or $4.28 a share.

In this year's second quarter, after taxes, Ford lost $735 million in the United States and made $267 million in foreign countries. That brought Ford's U.S. loss to $1.2 billion for the first half of the year. Offset by foreign profits of $576 million, its total loss was $632 million or $5.25 a share.

In the first half of 1979, Ford made $373 million in the United States and $734 million elsewhere for total profits of $1.11 billion or $9.25 a share.

Ford's U.S. retail car sales fell 37 per cent in the quarter and its market share declined to 16.5 per cent from 19 per cent.

Ford's parts, service and financing operations are still profitable, along with others businesses such as glass, electronics and space satellites.

Second-quarter revenue was down 22 per cent to $9.27 billion while sales of vehicles at wholesale fell 34 per cent to $1.12 million. First-half revenue fell 23 per cent to $18.9 billion while vehicle shipments fell 33 per cent.

'81 cars to offer air bags

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — The U.S. transportation department said Tuesday that Ford and Mercedes-Benz will offer airbag protection in new cars.

The department said Ford plans to have a small number of air bags available as an option in the middle of the 1981 model year on its Lincoln and Mark series. Mercedes has decided to build air bags into all its 1982 U.S. model cars as standard equipment.

A U.S. federal standard calls for full-size cars to be equipped with air bags in the 1982 model year, intermediate and compact cars in 1983 and subcompacts in 1984.

The department said approximately 10,000 vehicles which General Motors produced with air bags between 1974 and 1976 have an excellent record in protecting occupants.

Realty option offices raided, charges eyed

VANCOUVER (CP) — The B.C. superintendent of brokers and RCMP have seized documents in searches of Vancouver-area companies dealing in real estate options.

Brokers superintendent Rupert Bullock said Tuesday the investigation might result in charges under the Real Estate Act or the Pyramid Sales Act.

Bullock said he is not aware of any similar sort of operations in the Greater Victoria area.

"Oh, sure, they hit about 14 or 15 offices and took all our files relating to our business," said Don Burdeny, president of ILS Realty and Independent Listing Service Inc.

He said all the offices searched were licensed franchise dealers of his companies.

"Look, I invented the $1 option," Burdeny said. "For the $1 I guarantee a man a fair price for his house.

For the $1, he said, his companies put up signs, advertise the property — and keep whatever the selling price is above the fixed option contract price.

Car chase driver gets away

City police are looking for the driver of a car they pursued on a wild chase through the downtown and Rocklands areas Tuesday night.

Officers later found the car abandoned in a parking lot behind the Strathcona Hotel about 10 p.m.

A police spokesman said the chase began at 8:45 p.m. when a motorcycle officer on patrol at View and Douglas tried to stop a motorist for squealing tires.

The motorist sped off along View to Vancouver where he drove on the sidewalk to get around a stopped car and knocked down a parking meter.

A second motorcycle police officer joined the chase which covered about 6½ km along Fort, Oak Bay, Rocklands and numerous side streets at speeds up to 100 km/h.

The officers lost the car on Fort but about an hour later, the vehicle, owned by a 32-year-old city man, was found in the parking lot.

Last bodies removed from mine

VAL d'OR, Que. (CP) — The last two of eight miners trapped when the Belmoral gold mine caved in May 20 were found early today after more than two months of searching.

Police said the bodies of Gilles Legare and Guy Daigle were discovered at about 2 a.m. EDT. The bodies, found between 30 and 65 metres below the ground, were taken to St. Sauveur Hospital and autopsies are scheduled later today or Thursday.

Legare, 32, was the father of three. Daigle was 28.

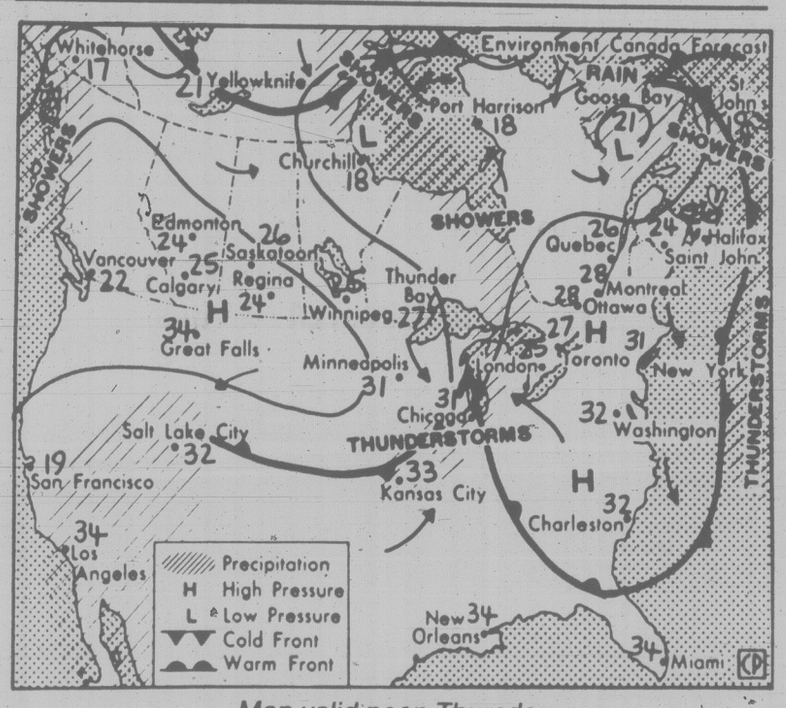

Map valid noon Thursday

A ridge of high pressure holding along the south coast will result a continuation of sunny and dry weather across southern B.C. for the next few days. A series of disturbances rounding the ridge will spread cloud across most of northern B.C. today and maintain it tomorrow. Rain forecast to begin over the north coast this morning should ease to scattered showers when crossing the coastal mountains this afternoon.

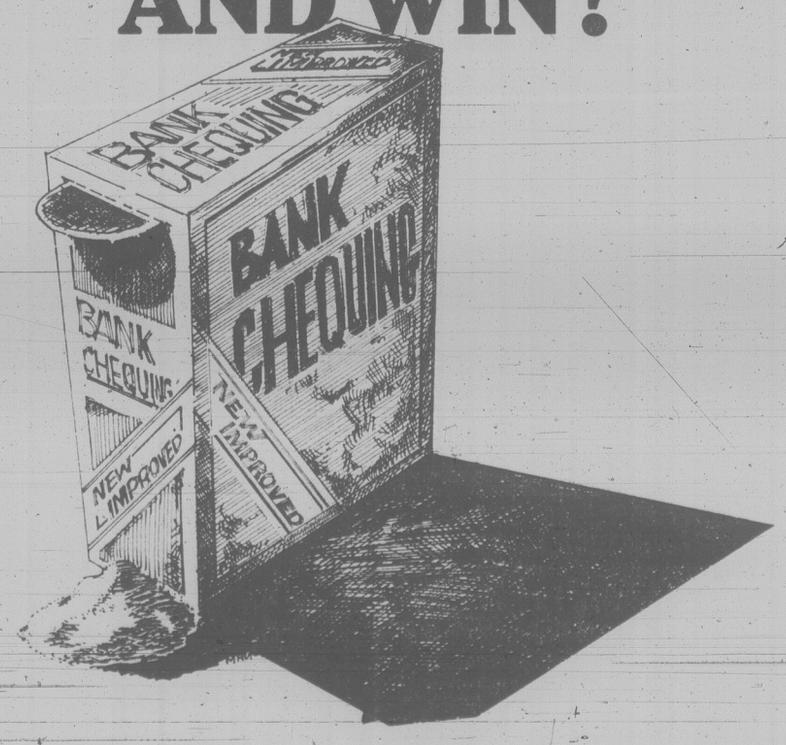
CAN WESTCOAST SAVINGS TAKE ON THE BIG BANKS AND WIN?



Can Victoria's Westcoast Savings take on the big banks?

Victoria says yes.

And we can prove it.

Right now the big eastern banks are bringing in the new improved chequing accounts and telling us to "chuck our old cheque books" and that "every penny counts". But they're not telling us how much interest they're paying or all the account details. (It isn't even in the fine print). The fact is, it's only 3 or 3½% and there is a minimum balance to be maintained.

If you're going to "chuck your old cheque book", we'd like you to look at our Prime 55 chequing/savings account. It's not a "new improved" account but it does pay 9¼% interest, and has no charges. The interest is paid monthly and is calculated on the minimum monthly balance. Prime 55 is for those 55 or better. If you're under 55 The Westcoaster chequing package pays 8% and has many other benefits all for only $4.00 per month. Westcoast offers six day service and full inter-branch banking too. But our benefits go beyond our interest rates. The best part of our service is our people. All our staff try to be friendly and efficient, never too busy to help. Drop into any Westcoast branch - they're all open 6 days a week, find out for yourself why 1 in 5 Victorians have already said "yes" to Westcoast Savings.

Before you Chuck your cheque book talk to us.

Teamsters gather in first-class style

VANCOUVER (CP) — When the Teamsters throw a convention, they do it with class, boasts Liberal Senator Ed Lawson.

That means no unwanted interruptions or unexpected guests — which accounts for the dozen burly Teamsters packing walkie-talkies and patrolling convention hallways this week.

Tight security surrounding the second biennial conference of the Canadian Conference of Teamsters is traditional, says Lawson, Teamsters Canadian director and and an international vice-president.

"We always run a tight ship at our conference," he says. "What we don't want is eomeone using the conference for political purposes. We're a first-class organization and we try to operate on a first-class basis.'

So, proceedings run on time, in an orderly fashion.

The security men double as chauffeurs to meet VIPs arriving on private jets. The Teamsters wouldn't think of letting a guest take a taxi from the airport.

Then there's the guest list.

While most unions ask labor leaders and sympathetic politicians to speak to their conventions, the Teamsters believe in rubbing elbows with the elite.

LAWSON
. . . courtesy the byword

Prime Minister Trudeau was invited to this convention but couldn't make it, so Lawson's "old friend and colleague," Senate leader Ray Perrault, came instead.

Premier Bill Bennett and Mayor Jack Volrich have spoken to delegates while management consultant Chuck Connaghan is scheduled for today.

When Lawson needed someone to sing the national anthem, he called on Richard Loney, who belts out O Canada at Vancouver Canucks games.

Signing was accompanied by a short National Film Board presentation depicting Canadian life and landscape.

For the opening prayer, Lawson phoned his old friend Archbishop James Carney.

Lawson said delegates like to hear diverse points of view, even though those they disagree with.

"I just can't understand people who want to sit around and drink each other's bathwater," he said.

Lawson said the Teamsters have a "traditional house rule" that guests be given the same courtesy at a convention as a visitor at one's home.

Premier Bennett, for example, was given a standing ovation as he took the podium.

Lawson said that because Bennett has never stayed in the Bayshore Hotel International Suite, Lawson's $450-a-night-home for the week, it proves the Teamsters are a "first-class" organization.

This definition of first-class is one of the beefs of a group of dissidents. Teamsters for a Democratic Union picketed the hotel Monday, complaining that overpaid union officials are "bleeding the union treasury."

The group published a list last month of Teamsters leaders who received between $100,000 and $295,000 in salaries and expenses in 1979. Lawson's compensation, including his senator's salary, was reported to be $180,000.

Arrested trio dual citizens

PRINCE RUPERT (CP) — Three Canadian fishermen arrested by Alaska state troopers in Portland Canal north of here last week have dual citizenship and were not fishing illegally, a tribal spokesman said Tuesday.

The three belong to the House of Mountain native band, a sub group of the Nishga Indian band, said Tommy Dennis, who represents both the House of Mountain and the Nishga Tribal Council.

Dennis said the three men from Kincolith, B.C., were given dual citizenship and the right to fish both U.S. and Canadian waters by the Jay Treaty of 1794 between Britian and the U.S.

Heritage bid to save rail ties

KELOWNA (CP) — Pacific Northern Rail Co. Ltd. will begin demolition of the 48-kilometre Myra Canyon section of the Kettle Valley Railway Monday, company president George Brown said Tuesday.

Meanwhile, Kettle Valley Railway Heritage Society officials say they will meet Pacific Northern later this week to try to save the rail ties.

The CPR track is destined for upgrading projects on the prairies.

Woman remanded on arson charge

KAMLOOPS (CP) — A Vancouver woman accused of setting fire to a Cache Creek motel Sunday was remanded for up to 30 days in Kamloops provincial court Tuesday. Diane Toni Laura Leier, 18, was charged with arson after fire caused about $150,000 damage to the Desert Motel in Cache Creek, 79 kilometres east of Kamloops. All occupants escaped safely. Ms. Leier will be sent to the Forensic Psychiatric Institute in Port Coquitlam for observation. A doctor said in court that Ms. Leier had been taking medication for a schizophrenic illness.

Burnaby fire victim identified

BURNABY (CP) — A 30-year-old man who died when his wife was unable to rescue him from a fire early Tuesday has been identified as Frank Merthen. Merthen's wife Gisela, a night-shift nurse, arrived home from work to find her house on fire. She was able to rescue her three-year-old son Jason, who was in the living room.

Dead motorcyclist from Kelowna

PENTICTON (CP) — RCMP have identified Douglas Fontaine, 22, of Kelowna, as the man killed when the motorcycle he was driving collided with a camper on Highway 97 about 29 kilometres north of here Sunday night. Driver of the camper, James Kidd, of Winnipeg, pleaded not guilty in Penticton provincial court Tuesday to a charge of dangerous driving.

Charlottes county gov't eyed

The provincial government is considering a reorganization of regional governments which would see a county system of government established in the Queen Charlotte Islands and the possible elimination of some regional districts, Municipal Affairs Minister Bill Vander Zalm said Tuesday.

A county system would combine all government services under one "local governmental umbrella," allow better decision-making and eliminate costly duplication of services, he said.

"You do not have to have one or two school boards on the Queen Charlottes, you do not need to have a separate library board, a separate hospital board, a separate local government operation to provide the very local regional services," he said.

Vander Zalm said a county system would require some legislative changes, but is not likely before the end of the current session. The major problem, he said, is gaining the consent of the education ministry and the school boards.

Vander Zalm said if a county ystem of government proved sucessful, it could be introduced in other areas of the province.

The minister also said he has requested regional districts in the Fraser Valley to meet to discuss ways of reducing th amount of government in that area.

He said Langley city and district and Maple Ridge, which are rapidly becoming uban centres, could join the Geater Vancouver Regional District.

$120,000 in raises

VANCOUVER (CP) — Fifteen Filipino seamen who went on strike aboard a Panamanian-registered freighter have won back pay totalling $120,000 and pay raises from as little as $160 a month to $1,400 a month.

But the ship, the Perisco, has been put under arrest at the request of Vancouver Wharves where it had been docked.

Richard Spray, spokesman for the docking facility, said the ship was arrested because it incurred additional expenses during the strike.

Gerry McCullough, an inspector with the international Transport Federation, said the ship's Japanese owners agreed to sign an agreement giving the crew the pay increase and back pay owing for seven months.

McCullough said 70 per cent of the seamen's wages would be diverted to federation offices in London which would send the money to the crew's families.

Previously Filipino crews have had the money taken from them on arriving home and have been black-listed by officials there. A federation lawyer in the Phillipines now attempts to prevent these repercussions.

NEW ARRIVAL

STANDARD PROUDLY PRESENTS THE UNIQUE NEW COUNTRY GEAR COLLECTION OF FINE QUALITY DRAPERY AND SLIPCOVER FABRICS

This great new collection is made available to Victoria and district homemakers — who look to Standard to set the pace in fine home-furnishing ideas.

The superb grouping is derived from elements found in the country, such as old quilts, crockery, furniture, bits and pieces of the charm and functionality that characterized original country interiors.

The small design motifs have a simplicity and clarity as basic to country interiors as farmer's bowl stripes, basketry and patchwork quilts. Color and pattern interact like the pieces of an old quilt.

The prints are tempered by a useful 100% cotton fabric called Sandalwood in lovely on-tone and off-tone colorings but completely color-related to the prints.

The bus war

The bus war is on again.

Once an annual event, the competition among various tour bus lines for parking spaces on the prime location on the Causeway has diminished in recent years. The main reason was the decreasing number of companies running tour buses.

The provincial cabinet has changed all that. The cabinet, overturning a decision of the Motor Carrier Commission, has issued licences for two new companies to join the fray. That means that four companies, instead of two, will now be vying for the six available parking spaces in front of the Empress.

Already the bus companies are leaving their buses parked on the Causeway to be sure of getting a space the next morning. Buses without a spot are disrupting traffic by circling the block at the pace of a slow snail, hoping to pick up a space when a bus leaves on a tour.

Mayor Bill Tindall is issuing a recurrent threat: either the tour bus operators manage to sort the wrangle out themselves, or the city will ban tour bus parking from the Causeway altogether. The city, the mayor points out, has no power to allocate parking spaces to individual tour companies, only to allocate the total number of spaces.

The mayor is right on that point, but surely the city might still play a useful role as a mediator in the dispute. The mayor and aldermen might not be able to enforce their wishes, but the possibility of a total ban on Causeway parking should be a powerful motivator for the bus operators.

For example, the City might suggest that only four parking spaces be allocated on the Causeway. Under the mediated agreement, each company would have one space, which it could use for the bus loading for the company's next trip. For this system to work, the city and the operators would have to find a nearby site for parking the rest of the buses, but this would be required also if the city did ban all Causeway bus parking.

The four operators and the city mediators might find an even better solution if they sat down together with the aim of working co-operatively rather than competitively on the issue.

The city may yet have to play the role of the heavy, and ban the buses. But surely it should first try to get the parties to compromise.

Oysters and logs

Lands, Parks and Housing Minister James Chabot has made a peculiar decision regarding log dumping at Baynes Sound near Courtenay.

Because of a unique and delicate marine environment in the vicinity of the Tsable River estuary, the minister declared a three-year moratorium on the issuance of foreshore leases for log sorting. But at the same time, he also approved a 13-acre log dump site at Buckley Bay for MacMillan Bloedel.

On the one hand Chabot recognized the Baynes Sound foreshore as one of the best oyster farming areas in B.C. But on the other he allowed the possible destruction of part of the coast now used for oyster growing. The area accounts for 60 per cent of B.C.'s oyster production.

A local oyster farmer had applied for the 13-acre foreshore in question to expand his operation but his application was rejected after MacMillan Bloedel later applied for the same foreshore.

Not only will the log dump operation prevent oyster growing on that particular site, but its debris may also harm the existing farm, according to the oyster-grower.

A federal fisheries officer estimates that 60 cubic yards of debris a day would find its way into into Baynes Sound.

Other people who find this decision peculiar include members of Chabot's own field staff, employees of the provincial environment ministry and the federal fisheries department. All recommended against the log dump because less environmentally sensitive alternatives are available, though none as economically sound from the company's viewpoint.

Chabot claimed that MacMillan Bloedel has historical rights to the foreshore. But if that were the case, why was it forced to re-apply for the foreshore rights?

The moratorium on log dumping appears a reasonable choice between conflicting foreshore uses. But the approval of the new log dump site begs explanation.

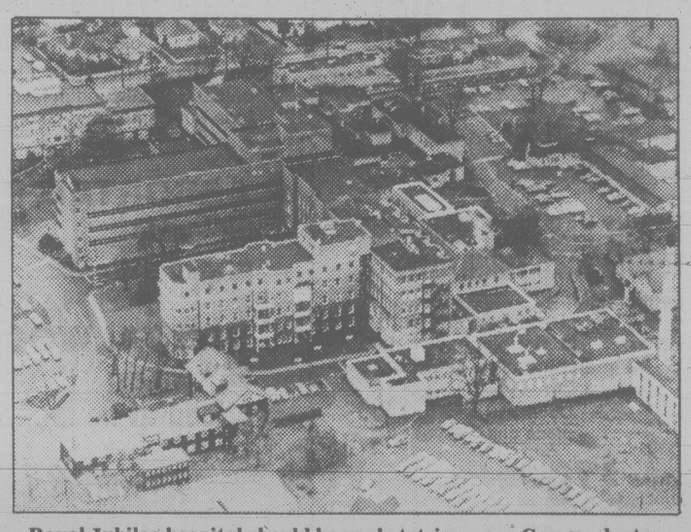
CHARLES BOSTROM, M.D.

Compromise on obstetrics

May I muddy the waters a little further and comment on the present controversy regarding obstetrical facilities in the Capital Region.

It should first be appreciated that the committee of doctors and nurses, which represented both the Royal Jubilee and Victoria General Hospitals, was asked in 1973 to discuss and if possible make a recommendation concerning obstetrical and pediatric facilities in Victoria. At that time no decision had been reached about the location of a new hospital, and certainly Helmcken road had never been mentioned.

After a great deal of study it was generally agreed that only one facility in each of these specialties was necessary or desirable. There was at that time no recommendation as to where the obstetrical facility should be placed but in order to equalize facilities it was thought that the disciplines might be split; again there was no thought that this separation would involve any more than the few blocks between the two present city hospitals.



Royal Jubilee hospital should keep obstetrics, says Ganges doctor.

Distance factor

I can't speak for the other doctors who were members of the committee at that time, but I would suspect that none of us would have made a recommendation for the one facility to be placed literally miles from the downtown area. This is not in any way to be interpreted as an attempt to question the Helmcken location for the hospital, but only to suggest that these two facilities should not preferably have been placed at Helmcken Road.

To some the regionalization of hospital services is a way of making big hospitals bigger and small hospitals smaller and there is a real danger that some enthusiasts might see it this way. But what it should mean is that the more seriously ill patients should ideally be directed to institutions with the most modern and sophisticated equipment. This would permit, or even encourage, smaller hospitals to cope with problems within their capability. Where does obstetrics fit into this policy?

When we were originally asked to address ourselves to this question there was a move all across North America to centralize obstetrical facilities. The ideal size that was given then was a unit that delivered at least the total number of cases that we have in this area in any one year. This of course pointed to one unit for the area.

Over the past ten years there has been increasing interest in home births. For what are reasonable and cogent reasons the medical profession as a whole has resisted this tendency. But the reasons being advanced for home deliveries include a number of valid points about the wishes and preferences of expectant parents and many feel that acute hospital facilities frustrate their requirements in many ways.

Progressive and far-sighted hospitals, and this includes the two Victoria hospitals, have for many years been trying to make changes that would better serve the wishes and aspirations of expectant parents.

Two facilities

Almost without exception the present day expectant parents would prefer a less formal and less imposing atmosphere than found in big hospitals, and "humanizing" the maternity unit in a big hospital may well not solve the problem. It is my own feeling that we are heading towards smaller and less sophisticated units than now available, and in fact, that may have to be the price paid for discouraging increasing numbers of home births.

I have just read a report on Regionalization of Perinatal Health Services in the Capital Regional Hospital District by Dr. D. R. Carlow, the medical director of the Victoria General Hospital. He presents a convincing summary of the advantages of having one obstetrical unit for the area and quotes many prestigious organizations and recognized authorities who support the concept. It is difficult to disagree with much that he says.

But apart from the patients preference, this is not always feasible in our own area from the Malahat south and including the Gulf Islands, there are geographic problems that make it unlikely that more than 70-80% of expectant mothers will make it to Helmcken Road. Will there be only emergency room facilities for these other deliveries?

There may be slightly improved health care statistics but the problems are not that simple. Furthermore, in North America at least, the greatest potential for improving our birth statistics is in the improvement of antenatal care. And this has to take place before a mother gets near a hospital.

I must therefore speak in favor of those who wish to retain some high quality but perhaps less intensive facility in the downtown area. The new Victoria General will continue to attract many expectant mothers by preference since it is one of the real leaders in providing appropriate surroundings, atmosphere and facilities for family orientated maternity care. But the Royal Jubilee maternity unit has also been outstanding and if there is good reason for it, it deserves to survive.

A compromise is possible. Keep the Jubilee maternity department operating for perhaps a year after the new Victoria General is operating and then make an informed decision on the basis of experiences. Also see what the consumers appear to have decided

JAMES RESTON

Rattling off the party line

Question — Have you learned the Republican message, brother?

Answer — Down to the last cliche.

Let's be sure. Where does America stand today?

In mortal danger, and also on the brink of disaster.

Very good! What does the Republic face?

It faces a gathering storm at a turning point in history.

Precisely, and who is reponsible for this dreadful prospect?

Carter.

Which one?

Jimmy and Billy-boy, assisted by Zbig, Ham, Jody....

Uneven pavement

That's enough. What is the road from Georgia to the White House littered with?

It is littered with broken promises and broken dreams.

Anything else?

Also with broken trumpets that give forth uncertain sounds.

Surely President Carter has given us something in the past four years?

He has given us the worst inflation rates in our history, and the worst interest rates since the Civil War.

Is that all?

Also, the worst rate of personal savings in 33 years and the worst rate of unemployment since the Hoover Depression.

The Hoover Depression?

Sorry, I meant the Roosevelt Depression.

That's better. Now what's the good news?

In six months, Carter will be gone to his well-earned retirement.

And then?

We will have strong, steady hands at the helm that will guide the Ship of State toward the light at the end of the tunnel.

No mixed metaphors, please. Who is the man who says we must never again send American boys to fight and die in a war we don't intend to win?

Ronald Reagan of California, the next president of the United States!

Who is this man who says children should not be forbidden to pray in the schools?

Reagan.

Who is this man who would abolish the 55-mile-an-hour speed limit?

Good Old Ronnie!

Who would oppose give-aways like the Panama Canal and sell-outs in Taiwan?

Jesse Helms of North Carolina?

Right, but anybody else?

Governor Reagan.

Who would defend the women of America from an Equal Rights Amendment to the Constitution, and give them an amendment banning abortions?

Same stout fellow.

Very good indeed! You must have been in Detroit. Finally, who would appoint judges who would be faithful to the president's own conscience?

Do I have to answer that question?

Yes.

Ronald Reagan!

Then let me give you an easier question. In the best of your judgment, who is the man who could increase the defense budget by 10 percent, cut taxes in the next three years by 30 percent, stamp out inflation and unemployment and still balance the federal government?

I haven't the faintest notion.

Could you try?

Houdini? ... God?....

No, the answer is Reagan again. Who is the man who will stand at the governor's side in this crusade to save the Republic?

George Bush of Yale, Connecticut, Massachusetts and Texas.

And what do you think of that?

It's not exactly a dream ticket, but a Bush in the hand is worth two Byrds in the Senate.

Hidden supporters

What else has Governor Reagan got going for him?

Billy Carter, John Anderson and Teddy Kennedy.

Is that all?

No, he has a unified Congress of like-minded men such as Jack Javits of New York and Jesse Helms of North Carolina who will work together for a New Beginning to build a new consensus of shared values including family, work, neighborhood, peace and freedom.

Well said. I take it then that you believe in the future of the Republican Party and America?

Yes sir, they're sound as the dollar!

Line up to pay

Well, Hallelujah! A municipal politician who believes in sewage treatment. Also an editorial that suggests that he is right. Yes, dammit, yes, we are ready to pay. Where do we line up? As Mr. Wright so wisely observes, and as the public has vainly been trying to tell the politicians for a long time, sooner or later we will have to treat the sewage from the city and surrounding area. Let's start while we can afford it. It is not going to get cheaper.

I, for one, who was born and raised within blocks of Clover Point and now live even closer, am just sorry that, even if we start now, my children, aged eight and 11, will be grown and gone before you can safely swim in Ross Bay again.

We all know of the plans to divert even more sewage from other areas to the Clover Point outfall. I wonder what would happen, and how long it would take before I would be in court, if I took to dumping my refuse over the fence into my neighbor's yard?

Please, let's listen to Mr. Wright. — F. D. Cooper, 134 Linden Avenue.

Capt. Troup

I am searching for items about my grandfather, Capt. James W. Troup, that I am preparing for eventual publication.

In the matter of his steam yacht the Cruiser, there are some background details in connection with its early days (before Capt. Troup had it converted to his own use) that are somewhat sketchy.

Also missing are any really good profile shots of the vessel, either before or after her conversion. Thus, I was wondering if a reader or two may have such a treasured item in their files. Suffice it to say I have already conducted a search of the Provincial Archives, and they did not even have a Victoria Harbor publicity photo, which ran for a number of years, and did show the Cruiser in the background.

It was my grandfather's custom to take guests out on every weekend cruise, among them well-known Victoria personalities, oft times with cameras aboard, so possibly some of the snapshots have been handed down, and are resting in some local albums. — Roy Troup, 1391 NW Keasey, Roseburg, Oregon 97470.

Damaging dam

All over the province attention is focused towards Peace River and the proposed Site C Dam. The proposed dam has caused much controversy and promises to be the environmental show-down of the decade.

The hard, cold facts are that the proposed dam will flood 16,234 acres including 5,500 acres in agricultural land reserve (B.C. Land Commission figures). An additional 2,500 acres will be rendered unusable due to sloughing. It will flood the best remaining low-level land in an area where low altitude is critical for agricultural growth. 350 people will be displaced, not to mention the wildlife that will lose their homes. Hydro's own consultants say that lost potential agricultural production due to Site C would range from $1 million to $7.5 million. The dam will cost $1.5 billion to build, money that has yet to be borrowed.

Many people of the Peace, the 10,000 members of the B.C. Federation of Agriculture, the more than 100 member groups of the B.C. Energy Coalition and the 500 members of the Peace River Environmental Coalition oppose Site C.

It's not that we're against growth, but according to 1978 statistics compiled by Statistics Canada, the B.C. electric utility system carried 43 per cent more capacity than peak demand. This compares with a national average during the same year of 31 per cent."

This over-capacity of Hydro, coupled with its new export license to export an amount equal to 39 per cent of Hydro's 1978-79 domestic sales leads us to believe that our fertile valleys are to be dammed for power export to the U.S.A. The people of the Peace want a hearing to prove that the power is needed now for B.C. and that all other alternatives have been exhausted. Justification hearings for major hydro projects are something that have been needed for a long time. — Sue Brown, Errington.

Any republicans?

We have been hearing a great deal about the recent referendum in Quebec and the reform proposed for Canada's constitution.

Is there a substantial feeling in Canada in favor of a republic?

Many Australian republicans are hoping for an example from your country that will help to lift the deadweight of national apathy and conservatism off our shoulders.

We invite correspondence and an exchange of views from Canadian republicans and concerned individuals of any political affiliation or none. — Leo Bourne, Secretary, Republican Association, P.O. Box 192, Lindfield, NSW. 2070, Australia.

Grow up, B.C.

I am grateful for the editorial of July 22, "Going much too far."

The cabinet ministers of B.C. are continually threatening and batting the federal government and at the same time requesting funds from them for every project they want to undertake.

The B.C. government brags about surplus funds and the millions acquired from gas sales to the U.S. but cannot finance any program for the province without federal aid.

Thus it becomes apparent that all these funds should be put in the hands of the federal government to be administered by them for the benefit of our residents.

Senator Perrault makes a good point in his reply to an item in "Town Talk."

The journalists in our province delight in creating misunderstanding either by false reports or by partial, one-sided reports. Both types of reports are dangerous and leave our people misinformed concerning provincial-federal affairs.

Time to shape up B.C. and time to grow up. — Mary L. Sharp, 520-1701 Cedar Hill Cross Road

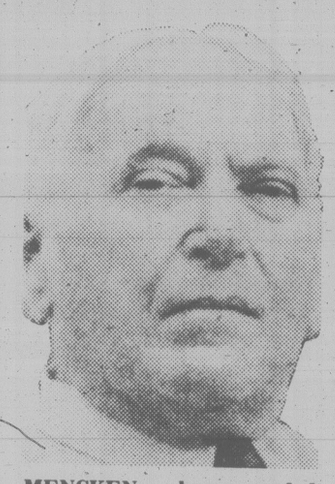
A victory for the common (ugh) man

By HENRY FAIRLIE
The Washington Post

To say so is of course a kind of apostasy from the true faith of a journalist in this country, but I am not a great admirer of H.L. Mencken, and will lay no wreath on his grave when his centenary is observed in September.

Here and there his wit is corruscating, but usually it is labored, and too often he writes like a brewer. His denunciations of his victims can be pure savagery, and one cackles at them, like the old women sitting and knitting at the foot of the guillotine, but what else does one gain? The sad truth is he had little to say. For the most part, he is an unholy bore.

His prejudices are as lumpish as those he arraigns. As the young



MENCKEN . . . he was needed

Randolph Bourne, a journalist of 10 times his quality, said of him very early, he went "heavily forth to battle with the Philistines, glorying in pachydermatous vulgarisms," and quickly became a moralist himself, "with the same bigotry and tastelessness" as the enemy. He could in his writing be as much a boor as them.

Yet there I was crying as I watched the Republican convention, "Mencken! Thou shouldst be living at this hour!" Wishing that someone would spatter buckshot into the Joe Louis Arena. Wishing that he would come among us, still the guttersnipe, and scrawl his graffiti on the walls. For there was his Homo Boobus, indeed, elevated to be a sovereign. We needed someone to break from the yoke of mere happenings, and say that here was the common man and, yes, the common woman, too, come to take possession of their century at last.

Those who warned the prophets of the common man that they would not like his visage when they saw it had only to point to the floor in Detroit. There it was, polished now for television, the face of Caliban, some smirking to rule. With their noses wiped, taught some manners for the screen, clean handkerchiefs in their pockets, there were the booboisie. Narrow-minded, book banning, truth censoring, mean spirited; ungenerous, envious, intolerant, afraid; chicken, bullying; trivially moral, falsely patriotic; family cheapening, flag cheapening, God cheapening; the common man, shallow, small, sanctimonious.

The common man, exactly as Reagan said of himself in his prime time. We have been warned of his coming. Not only Mencken inveighed against him. Sinclair Lewis gave us the half-baked stereotypes. It was Walter Lippmann, commenting on the characters in his novels, who pinned them down: "They are the creatures of the passing moment who are vaguely unhappy in a boring and senseless existence that is without dignity, without grace, without purpose. They are driven by they know not what compulsions, they are ungoverned and yet unfree, the sap of life does not reach them, their taproots having been cut." They were there, in their own soap, on the convention floor. They may deserve our concern, for they are deprived, they do not deserve our approbation.

But how understanding of them we are now asked to be. They are the middle Americans. We must explain them as neutrally as do the sociologists. We must not criticize them. Not so long ago, the drawings of Norman Rockwell were mocked, as they should be, as a false representation of stunted lives. They are a celebration, not of what is good in those lives, but of what is banal and deformed; but today we must cherish them.

The Norman Rockwell of today is Norman Lear. How cleverly he seems to caricature the prime-time, soap-opera lives of the characters whom he portrays. There is no line drawn between his characters and his viewers. He makes them both acceptable. Their lives are empty; they are trivial, the lives of helots. He justifies them.

The powers-that-be should pay him a fortune, for he takes the lives which they have deformed, and he makes them seem shapely. He makes a joke out of bigotry, he turns prejudice into a whimsical pleasantry. Almost any of his characters might have sprung to the screen from the cover of the Saturday Evening Post of 30 years ago.

Much of what we today call "nostalgia" is a tolerance, justification, and celebration of small-town America. The abandon with which the high culture in America today flirts with the popular culture has the same effect. What is common and low is legitimized. The "metropolitan" in America, to use the words of Lippmann in this context, is surrendering to the "provincial."

The metropolitan in America has always been much weaker than in Europe. New York may seem to extend its sweep over the whole culture. But it has nothing like the hold of Paris; its influence has never cut as deep as that of London. Today it is capitulating. What is called "neo-conservativism" is largely a New York phenomenon; its most prominent figures have in common their access to the New York media; and one by one the neo-conservatives are announcing for Reagan. Taking sides with the Reaganites. It is no less than a trahison des clercs.

What has always disturbed the European (and English) conservative is that the American conservative has barely even a whimpering of aristocratic sentiment. He will support a Nixon. He will support a Reagan. These men are not evil. They are not even reactionary. They simply are vulgar. They are in person the common man. This does not seem to worry the American conservative. If he thinks he needs the masses, as Ortega y Gasset used the term, he will take them on their terms, in the persons of their nominees. He is then surprised when later he has the devil to pay.

Just as Americans in general do not have the habits of deference, so the conservative in America does not have them either. Ultimately he does not defer even to the country's institutions. If one of these institutions, such as the Supreme Court, makes decisions he detests, he will defame that institution. He is as ready as is the common man to bypass the institutions he ought to defend.

The American conservatives may resist the Equal Rights Amendment. But the overwhelming majority of proposals for amending the constitution in recent years have been put forward by conservatives.

They may have opposed the initiative and the referendum when these were introduced; but it is they who now use them most indiscriminately as vehicles of popular discontent. Just as it was Goldwater who first captured his party from the grassroots, so it is the conservatives who now reap the benefits of the primaries and caucuses, as the common man is stirred to subvert the traditional methods of politics. Those who have carried Reagan to the very threshhold of power are exactly the ungoverned but unfree whom Lippmann described half a century ago.

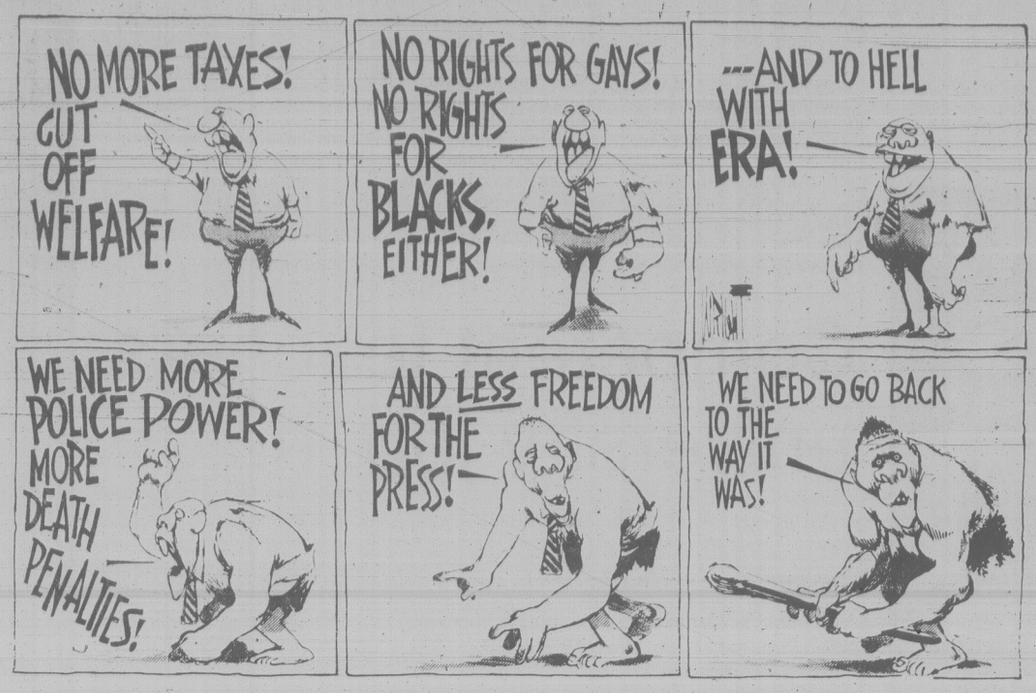
Ungoverned and unfree and so in the end ungovernable: this is exactly what Ortega foretold in the coming of the common man; and it is what the conservative in America seems to have no resource to resist. No traditions to which to appeal; no habit of deference to authority; no patience with the bridle of institutions.

Europe shudders today, not so much at the three men who have emerged this year as candidates, as at the political illiteracy of the popular voice which has chosen them, the America they most fear. The politicians will come and go, and do less good and harm than is supposed, but what of the people who chose them?

The America that Europe fears is the America of the Reaganites. The America once of the Scopes trial; the America of prohibition; the America of ignorant isolationism. The America then of "better dead than red;" the America of McCarthyism; the America of the last fundamentalists of the 1950s. The America now of the new evangelicals; the America of the Moral Majority; the America of a now ignorant interventionism; the America which can see homosexuals as a conspiracy; feminists as a conspiracy; perhaps even women as a conspiracy. The America of fear. For it is in fear that the ungoverned and the unfree are doomed to live. And there was this America in control at Detroit.

It is time that we reminded ourselves, and said aloud and more often, that it is from these people that nastiness comes. It is time that we pointed out to the neo-conservatives that democracy has never been subverted from the left but always from the right.

The Reaganites on the floor were exactly those who in Germany gave the Nazis their main strength and who in France collaborated with them and sustained Vichy. If the neo-conservatives cannot sniff danger, surely the rest of us can be alert.



British must be nice to their goldfish

By ALAN RUSBRIDGER
Manchester Guardian

"You can now be cruel to a goldfish," beamed the barrister outside court 11 of the High Court. Which, in layman's terms, is another way of saying that you can no longer be cruel to a goldfish.

The humble orange-finned cuprinid was afforded the full protection of English law last month when the Divisional Court ruled that it was indeed covered by the 1911 Protection of Animals Act. Two High Court judges deliberated for 40 minutes before overturning the ruling of a Cardiff magistrate two years ago that the act did not apply because a goldfish was not a domestic animal.

It was a hapless goldfish acting as an unpaid theatrical extra in 1978 whose experiences set in motion the due processes of law which culminated in last month's ruling.

The fish featured prominently in The Last Temptation, a play enjoying some success at the Chapter Arts Theatre, Cardiff, during which it underwent such ignominies as an apple dropped into its bowl.

Worse still was the play's climax, described by Lord Justice Donaldson. "The bowl was deliberately thrown across the stage," he said. "The bowl broke and the goldfish was left gasping for breath.

"It was rescued by a member of the public who gallantly leapt on to the stage, carrying a plastic bag full of water."

The public-spirited member of the audience was a local RSPCA inspector, Mr. Roy Gee, who promptly started legal proceedings against the two actors involved.

The stipendiary magistrate, Sir Lincoln Hallinan, dismissed the case after ruling that a goldfish was not a domestic animal and that there was insufficient evidence to show that the creature had felt pain.

In last month's ruling Lord Justice Donaldson agreed that the "semi-expert" evidence called had failed to establish the capacity of a goldfish to experience physical suffering. But he ruled that, under section 15 of the Act, a goldfish in a bowl was plainly a "captive animal" and thus capable of being treated cruelly within the terms of the law.

A born-again pessimist

Katharine Whitehorn

LONDON — In my next life I'm going to have a longer neck. In my next life I'm going to be good at arranging flowers. I am going to be a quick reader and dwell in a country where they honor fat women. I am going to be my husband's cat.

It's a game we all play: if not ourselves, who would we like to be? A hero? A genius? Quite different, or like yourself only better?

Some dreams are shameful. It would be wonderful to be a Southern belle before there was any nonsense about freeing the slaves — rich, of course, and pretty (we all dream of being Napoleon, not the 18th legionnaire from the left). It might be marvellous to be a man — then I could stop worrying about what's fair to women and just cheerfully assume I was superior, and that they had all been born to iron my shirts. Better still, I could be an Irish man — then I would have all the privileges of being male, without giving up the right to be wayward, temperamental and an appealing minority.

It's easier to dream of changed circumstances than a totally changed character — we're all vain enough to set strict limits on the trade-off. A longer neck, yes — but not at the price of being as plank chested as a model; a quick reader, certainly — but not if I instantly forget what I'd read as some quick readers do. There is one change, however, than I really would fancy.

In my next life I would like to be a pessimist. And then other people could spend all their time cheering me up.

I don't know how I ever got stuck with being an optimist. Why is it always me who says it'll be all right on the night, don't worry, I'm sure it'll taste better than it looks, the bailiffs are still two blocks away? I live among people who think that if the world isn't coming to an end, then it ought to be; so determined are they not to tempt providence by the slightest sign of complacency that they regard expecting the worst almost as a moral duty.

Even those who don't are subject to the usual bouts of adolescent weltschmertz, which all mothers feel obliged to try to dispel (why?). So I spend my time collecting snippets about the three-and-a-half British firms that have never gone on strike, about boys who came top on only half an hour's revision a week; I tell everybody that we can always sell the clock or the premium bond and that it may clear up later in the day.

My mother's the same. Her optimism takes the form of deciding to climb a mountain by going straight slap up the nearest side, never mind a prudent zig-zagging up the gentler slopes; she always used to catch trains rather after they should have left, and her mother once actually pinned the guard's arms to his sides, to stop him waving his green flag before all her family was on board.

My mother and I both married cautious people who say things like "I'd think twice about that if I was you," who start flapping about planes and trains almost the evening before, and set aside a part of each day for worrying.

But what we have never figured out is whether they were like that from the start (which was why we gravitated towards them, as to a necessary sheet-anchor); or whether they were once quite carefree, and only got that way as a result of being married to us.

There would be only one way to find out; to swap roles and run the whole thing through again. Would we all just sit miserably on either side of the fireplace — the empty fireplace — wondering whether we could summon up the energy to end it all? Or would everyone, on the contrary, rush round making me hot cups of tea and bringing me surprise presents in little boxes, hiding the obituaries, urging me to get out into the sunshine?

Barty Phillips has an ebullient friend who once startled her family by saying with a sigh, "It's such a strain always being jolly." I sympathize with that woman, who never dared to stop. It would be shattering if plunging myself in gloom turned out, after all, to be the best way to get everybody else to cheer up.

Bonnell launches firing suit

Former B.C. comptroller-general Lionel Bonnell has launched a B.C. Supreeme Court action in Victoria claiming wrongful dismissal by the provincial government July 10 and seeking unspecified damages.

The action, including a statement of claim, was filed by his lawyer Robert Higinbotham.

The government has not yet replied.

In the statement of claim, Bonnell said he was offered and accepted employment as comptroller-general in 1978 and it was agreed he would have all the independence contemplated by the Financial Control Act.

Bonnell said he was made aware last May 27 of a proposed reorganization of the ministry of finance which altered the responsibilities, status and reporting relationship of the comptroller-general.

"The proposed reorganization was effected July 10," he said, "resulting in a fundamental and unilateral alteration of the terms and conditions of the plaintiff's contract as comptroller-general."

He said the result was that his contract of service was repudiated by the government.

Bonnell said he was constructively dismissed from his position even though there was no change in his title.

He charged the dismissal was wrongful, arbitrary, without sufficient cause and without reasonable notice or pay in lieu of notice.

He also claimed the reorganization was contrary to the Financial Control Act and not effected pursuant to part two of the Public Service Act.

Finance Minister Hugh Curtis told the legislature Monday he had received Bonnell's letter of resignation shortly before noon, effective that day.

But Bonnell said in an interview it was not a resignation and that he was advising the minister he was "leaving my post."

Bonnell said then it was a case of technical wording related to the court action but refused further comment.

Bonnell startled the legislature's public accounts comittee June 18 when he told MLAs he would refuse requests to turn over part of his duties to new deputy finance minister Larry Bell.

The reorganization also required the comptroller-genrral to report through Bell rather than directly to Curtis.

Bonnell said then it was his opinion that the reorganization impaired the separation of powers and responsibilities and undermined the capacity of the comptroller-general to act independently.

Competent teachers university job: union

The president of the Greater Victoria Teachers Association says he has confidence in university methods of graduating competent school teachers.

Ron Wickstrom was responding to a suggestion that incoming teaching staff be given competency tests in English and mathematics before they are hired.

He agreed with Education Minister Brian Smith, who is opposed to local districts giving teachers competency tests.

The proposal was made Monday to Greater Victoria School District trustees by superintendent of schools Allan Stables, who said the district should be doing its own screening.

He said university methods cannot be relied upon.

Wickstrom, who said he is not overly concerned about the proposal, noted trustees appear to have reservations about the suggestion, which was referred to the board's personnel committee.

"I'm not against teachers having all the competency possible. It's just the method proposed," Wickstrom said.

He said it is a university responsibility to assess individual teachers and if university programs are not good enough they will fail to get certification from the education ministry.

"At university, a teacher is assessed not only in English and math, but a wide range of abilities and whether they are qualified to teach."

Wickstrom said this includes personal and psychological qualities.

"An individual may have good head knowledge and be absolutely perfect in spelling and math but be a lousy teacher."

Wickstrom said he was surprised that the GVTA was not consulted by Stables before his recommendation went to the board.

Wickstrom said children in the Greater Victoria area meet or exceed average competence in language and mathematics skills, indicating teacher ability is as good here as in other districts.

Smith said district testing of teacher candidates would be demeaning to individuals and would result in varying standards in districts throughout the province.

Signs point to end of recession

Washington Star

WASHINGTON — The U.S. government's index of leading economic indicators rose 2.5 per cent in June, following 11 months of decline, the commerce department reported today.

The June increase, the largest monthly rise in five years, could be another signal that the end of the 1980 recession is on the horizon.

A government analyst said today, however, that no conclusions can be drawn from one month's figure. But he said that the increase is "encouraging" and could be significant if the index continues to rise in the months ahead.

The June rise is substantially larger than the increases in the index when it turned around at the end of previous recessions.

The index of leading indicators is designed to predict several months in advance either the start of a recession or the beginning of a recovery.

In the past, however, the index has at times declined without being followed by a recession. But the analyst said that based on past history, three or four months of increases have signaled that the recovery from a recession is on the way. The analyst cautioned, however, that there have been false starts in the past — a monthly increase followed by another decline.

Many economists have been forecasting recently that the recession will be over by the end of 1980 or the beginning of 1981. The decline in the housing industry apparently stopped in June and auto production has shown some signs of turning around.

All these signals, however, do not mean the recession is over. Economists in and outside the government are predicting a further decline in the economy in the third quarter and an unemployment rate of about nine per cent by the end of the year. The unemployment rate for June was 7.7 per cent.

The jump in the June figure, the Commerce Department said, was chiefly attributed to a decline in the layoff rate for manufacturing workers and an increase in building permits.

The layoff rate for manufacturing workers was 3.5 per cent in May and fell to 2.6 per cent in June.

Meanwhile, record exports enabled the U.S. to slash its trade deficit with the rest of the world to $2.3 billion in June from almost $4 billion the previous month.

Exports rose 5.5 per cent to more than $18.6 billion while imports fell 3.3 per cent to $21 billion.

Energy woes crippling tourism

PARIS (AP) — Energy-related problems and a slowdown in many of the world's economies are hurting the international tourism industry, the Organization for Economic Co-operation and Development says.

In its annual report published today, the 24-country group says uncertainies about the price and supply of oil in the 1980s will become "increasingly important" to the tourism business.

The organization cites rising unemployment, growing trade deficits and slower growth in disposable personal income as major problems affecting tourism.

In addition to an estimated 135-per-cent increase in oil prices since 1979, uncertainties about future supplies and prices constitutes a continuing threat to expansion of tourism, the report says.

Although international tourism receipts for OECD members rosé 19 per cent last year to $62.3 billion, the inflation-adjusted rise slumped to three per cent, the organization says.

Of the eight member countries accounting for five per cent or more of international tourism receipts in real terms last year, only five recorded increases, after adjusting for inflation: Canada (10 per cent), Italy (11 per cent), Austria (five per cent), West Germany (four per cent) and the United States (three per cent).

Gold going to $1,800

The Canadian Press

Gold at $1,800 U.S. an ounce? That's not an improbable price for one of the world's most popular metals, says a Toronto analyst.

In a recent report, Brian Backler of Greenshields Ltd. said the price of gold could double or even triple because a myriad of international political and economic factors.

He said major recessionary forces at work in North America could, over the near-to-medium term, adversely affect other economies and the price of gold.

He said in a serious recession, or what he called a full-scale deflating environment, "gold goes down the sewer enyway."

Despite the recession, he said, the odds at this stage are about 70 per cent in favor of another round of record-breaking inflation that could carry gold over the $1,000-an-ounce mark within the next two or three years.

On the downside, the price of gold could drop to between $300 and $400 an ounce. This, he said, is roughly the level needed to bring major new gold mines into production and it also appears to be the minimum level needed to begin to attract supply from major secondary sources, such as coins and jewelry.

Backler said industrial and jewelry demand for gold could decline during the recession as buyers resist higher prices. But other important factors influencing the price of gold point to an upward trend:

— With both International Monetary Fund and U.S. treasury gold auctions disbanded, less gold will be made available to the public. Sales from both sources this year will likely total 100 tonnes, down from 540 tonnes in 1979.

— Production of newly-minted gold coins and medallions is increasing and public demand is holding up. The U.S. treasury, for example, will sell one million ounces of gold in the form of medallions in each of the next five years.

— Investment demand for gold this year is expected to be down from 1979, but not by much because of prevailing political and financial uncertainties. Backler said weakness in the U.S. dollar and fears of another inflationary bulge seem to be keeping private investment alive.

— Western world mine output of gold should remain flat. Higher prices are stimulating some new production but many older gold mines are treating lower-grade ores and thus extending the life of the mines. Also, for the first four months of this year, South African gold output was three-per-cent lower than the similar period a year earlier.

— Recent student riots in South Africa have sparked renewed speculation in gold because if the unrest spills over into the labor sector, there could be disruption in output. South Africa produces about 700 tonnes of gold annually, 70 per cent of the Western world's gold production.

— U.S.S.R. gold sales to the West in 1979 are estimated at around 225 tonnes, down from 400 tonnes in 1977 and 1978. Backler estimated Soviet sales this year at between 250 and 300 tonnes.

Backler said individuals probably spend about five per cent of their disposable income on various forms of insurance. In the same way, he said, portfolios should also have at least five per cent of their assets in gold and gold-related shares.

Dollar value to rise?

MONTREAL (CP) — East coast oil and gas discoveries and a robust export trade should help the Canadian dollar inch up gradually to between 92 and 95 cents U.S. by the second quarter of 1982, Greenshields Inc. of Montreal predicted Tuesday.

A report by Greenshields economists George Saba and John McColl forecast the dollar would be trading in the 86-to-90 cent range late this year, rising about a cent each quarter up to mid-1982.

The report said interest and dividend payments outside Canada would keep the current accounts deficit growing despite anticipated rises in the merchandise trade surplus, with the deficit surpassing $6.5 billion this year compared to $5 billion in 1979.

The current accounts deficit will surge later this year, but "the trend through 1981 should be one of progressive narrowing, and by the fourth quarter of 1981, robust exports could trim the deficit down to an adjusted annual rate of as low as $4 billion to $5 billion."

"At the moment, our perception is that domestic investment opportunities should mute the recent sizable foreign investment outflow by Canadian firms and that direct inflows by foreigners could also firm up."

Business briefs

Murdoch to sell New West

NEW YORK — Rupert Murdoch, the Australian publisher whose properties include The New York Post, has agreed to sell New West Magazine, which, according to industry estimates, was losing about $1.5 million a year.

The prospective buyer is Texas Monthly, a statewide publication based in Austin, Tex., that is considered one of the most successful of the so-called "city" magazines — publications aimed at a fairly limited regional audience, usually a single city.

The proposed sale comes roughly three and a half years after Murdoch took over New West in a controversial maneuver that forced out Clay Felker, founder of the magazine.

Whistler resort sold

VANCOUVER — Ownership of the Whistler Mountain ski resort north of here will be included in a recent $6 million purchase of Garibaldi Lifts Ltd. by a Vancouver-based investment firm.

Hastings West Resorts Ltd. said Tuesday it has received majority ownership of Garibaldi Lifts after 95 per cent of the company's common shares were tendered pursuant to an offer to shareholders on June 26.

Garibaldi Lifts previously was controlled by TIW Industries Ltd. of Ottawa.

Production drops sharply

OTTAWA — The sharpest one-month drop in production of goods since May, 1975, resulted in a 0.8 per cent decline in domestic production in May over April, Statistics Canada has reported.

This overall decline was the same as that measured in April over March, but in May production of services levelled off while production of goods continued to decline.

May was the 10th straight month of decline in construction of houses and non-residential buildings, bringing with it declines in logging and lumber production.

The recession and consumers' preference for imported cars continued to mean trouble for the automobile industry. A drop in auto production in turn resulted in declining demand for steel, placing production at iron and steel mills at their lowest level in a year.

Retail trade remained near its April level. Food, furniture and drug stores had healthy sales in May, but business was still bad for new-car dealers.

Banks and other financial institutions suffered their first decline since November, 1979. Business was also off slightly for real-estate and insurance agents.

WIN A summerfunthing

Play it daily and be eligible to win weekly prizes. It's easy and it's fun — just follow the instructions below . . .

THIS WEEK'S PRIZES

MAMIYA ZE CAMERA, LENS, AND CASE

2nd

REDWOOD GARDEN LOUNGE

3rd

NOISELESS ROCK TUMBLER AND ACCESSORIES (2 to be won)

HOW TO PLAY

Locked inside the "SUMMERFUNTHING" safe are many valuable prizes. Some of those prizes could be yours if you find the correct PASSWORD that opens the combination lock. It's an exciting game that's fun and easy to enter. The instructions on the dial give you the position of the letters in the "SUMMERFUNTHING" PASSWORD. All you have to do is find the first letter to start. For instance, suppose you started at the letter E and the instructions read 2nd LETTER-FOUR COUNTER CLOCKWISE. Count four spaces in a counter-clockwise direction from the letter E and you arrive at the letter A. The next instruction reads 3rd LETTER-EIGHT COUNTER CLOCKWISE, so count off eight spaces in a counter-clockwise direction from the letter A and you arrive at the letter S. Finally the 4th letter. SIX CLOCKWISE means you count in a clockwise direction from the letter S and you arrive at the letter Y. In this example the PASSWORD is the word E-A-S-Y. To give you another clue and to add to the interest, each day's password is scrambled and you will find it at the bottom of the illustration.

GAME RULES

1. Winners will be chosen by random drawing from all valid entries. All winners must answer a skill testing question.
2. Winners from the previous week will be published in the Saturday Times and Sunday Colonist.
3. It is not necessary for contestants to buy the Colonist or Times to enter the SUMMERFUNTHING contest. An exact drawing of the entry form printed in the Colonist or Times may be made on a plain piece of paper. Note: copies produced by any other process will not be accepted.
4. The SUMMERFUNTHING judges will have the final decision on any interpretation of Game rules.
5. As a condition of receiving prizes, recipients agree to allow publication of their names and pictures in the Colonist or Times for no additional consideration. Submission of an entry indicates acceptance of all rules. No prize substitutions.
6. The contest is open to all readers of the Daily Colonist and Victoria Times on Vancouver Island and the Gulf Islands. Employees of Victoria Press and their immediate families are not eligible to enter.
7. In fairness to all, the Colonist or Times cannot answer questions or respond to phone calls or letters regarding THE SUMMERFUNTHING CONTEST.
8. All winners will be determined by a random draw from all valid entries.

HOW TO ENTER

Complete the puzzle and fill in the "PASSWORD" on the entry form. Clip out the entry form and send it to us in an envelope with the puzzle number printed in the top left hand corner of the envelope. (As illustrated.)

Be sure to include your name, address and phone number on the entry form.

Enter as many times as you wish but make sure each entry is in a separate envelope.

Mail your entries to:
"Summerfunthing"
Post Office Box 1390
Victoria, B.C.
V8W 3C4

or drop your entries off at Victoria Press
2621 Douglas St.
Monday through Friday
8:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m.

A new puzzle will appear each day, but the weekly winners will be selected from all entries submitted for the previous week's puzzles.

To be eligible, your entry must be received by 5:30 p.m. on the Thursday following the week the puzzle was published.
Enter daily, or as often as you wish, but be sure each entry is submitted in a separate envelope.

Billy got secret wires: FBI

none of their business.

The government's continuing refusal to grant an export license that would provide the Libyans with eight C-130s they paid for in the early 1970s has been a major sore spot in U.S.-Libyan relations.

Billy registered as a Libyan agent July 14. He told the justice department he accepted $220,000 from Libya, but said the money was a loan and denied trying to influence the U.S. government favorably toward Libya.

A special Senate committee looking into the Billy Carter affair holds its first official meeting next Tuesday and the president says he is "anxious" to appear in person if necessary and clear up the embarrassing affair.

To make sure his side of the story gets out before the convention begins, Carter said Tuesday he will send the Senate a full report early next week and then hold a news conference to answer questions on the report.

But Sen. Robert Dole (Rep.—Kan.), who initiated the Senate investigation into Billy's dealings with Libya, said immediate testimony by the president would be "premature."

In Los Angeles, Ronald Reagan said Tuesday he approves of Carter's testifying personally before a congressional committee "if he's got something that will clarify things."

Carter made a surprise appearance Tuesday in the White House press room to say — once again, but this time on television — his brother had no influence on policy toward Libya and there was no interference with the justice department investigation.

Senator Birch Bayh (Dem. Ind.), chairman of the special Senate committee, said the committee has subpoenaed documents from Charter Oil Co. relating to "Billy Carter and oil allocations from Libya."

Carter's campaign team, meanwhile, sent out its own squad Tuesday to counter the "dump-Carter" activists busily trying to block a convention rule that would guarantee the president's renomination by binding them to vote for him.

A new Louis Harris Poll showed 77 per cent of U.S. voters questioned do not approve of Carter's performance as president, against 22 per cent who do.

The president is reported to have admitted to some members of the U.S. Congress that he might be a liability if he campaigned for them in their districts.

The dissident Democrats seeking to throw open the convention were opening an office near the Capitol today to pursue their $200,000 campaign to persuade delegates to reject a convention rule binding them to vote for either Carter or his rival, Senator Edward Kennedy.

Another office will be opened near Madison Square Garden in New York next week from which the lobbying campaign will be run once delegates arrive there, said leaders of the open-convention drive.

Volcano's ash health hazard?

PULLMAN, Wash. (AP) — Volcanic ash from Mount St. Helens unquestionably contains elements that in certain situations pose a health hazard, says a scientist studying the effects of breathing ash.

However, Dr. Robert Berstein, an epidemiologist, said the data from his study is not extensive enough to say for sure what is an unsafe level of exposure to ash-polluted air.

Bernstein's report confirmed that the primary health concern is the presence in the ash of crystalline silica, linked to lung disorders. Bernstein's study differs from that of Washington State University scientists who found no significant amounts of silica in ash samples.

S. Africa woman top slither-sitter

DURBAN (UPI) — A 19-year-old co-ed shattered the world snake-sitting record of 61 days and celebrated her triumph, boasting: "I showed the men how it is done."

"They all laughed and said I would never make it because I was a woman," Leigh Van Den Berg said, while savoring a bottle of champagne. "Where are they now?"

The female student eclipsed the record of 61 days at 3 minutes past noon Tuesday and promptly declared: "I have struck a blow for womanhood."

Miss Van Den Berg said she would stay on in her cage until Sunday.

"This record is going to stand for a long time," she predicted. Her effort earns her a one-line mention in the Guiness Book of World Records and places her at the head of a long line of snake-sitting champions — all of whom have been males.

The world snake-sitting record, which requires a person to sit in a cage with at least 25 poisonous snakes for 23 ½ hours a day, has been broken five times since June 1979, but always by men.

The student spent the last two months of her life locked inside a tiny 8-by-10-foot glass cage in the Durban Snake Park with 35 of the deadliest snakes known to man — puff adders, mambas, cobras and boomslangs (treesnakes) better known as "two-steppers" because, according to legend, their victims can usually walk two steps before collapsing from the venom.

The new champ got her crack at the title by answering a newspaper advertisement for a snake sitter.

She was the only applicant.

Hudson's Bay Company

Under the verbal flood, a soaked reporter

By NORMAN GIDNEY

It's hard to believe that years ago Joe Richards was a quiet, tongue-tied individual who got butterflies in his stomach if he had to get up and say something in front of a crowd.

But Victoria's self-styled City Watchdog and ambassador of goodwill says he used to get very nervous about public speaking.

The cure — Joe credits Toastmasters International and the Jaycees — must have been highly effective. Today there's not a trace of hesitation when he launches into some politician he may have buttonholed on the street. The relentless Richards style of conversation requires good listeners.

Interviewing this Victoria institution is something like standing under a waterfall. You don't so much ask questions and record the replies. You stand back and write as fast as you can while the conversation jumps all over the place, with fascinating diversions and digressions into Victoria history, family connections, civic politics and almost anything else.

"No doubt about it — I'm a great talker. I like people," he says.

Joe will probably find the foregoing description a little bit offensive, but it's an inseparable part of Richards' personality and charm.

Joe Richards? Charming? Some find him hard to take and he certainly doesn't go out of his way to butter up anyone. Joe is direct and forthright as a bull rhinoceros with a skin about as thick. He worries away at an issue like a terrier attacking a rat. Definitely, Richards is an acquired taste.

"Watch my innuendo" is a classic Richardsism, still remembered by old city hall reporters. "Turning around" is something that people are always doing in Joe's world.

But there's probably no one who loves this city more. And there are few who could equal his individual efforts over the last 20 years in promoting Victoria. He has hounded civic authorities about several good causes, like the E & N Railway, more policemen on the beat and a free shuttle bus downtown, while he has also privately assisted many people.

Most of city council is either actively hostile or downright peevish towards Joe. They cut down the time limit at question period, a measure aimed specifically at his sometimes bothersome, always convoluted inquiries.

He pesters the daylights out of them and rarely misses a council meeting — or the opportunity it affords to get up at question period and public hearings and grill the city fathers.

Generally, he operates under the assumption that somewhere, someone is trying to pull a fast one and he's probably an elected politician.

Joe would probably wonder what he was doing wrong if he couldn't get a rise out of Ald. Bob Wright, his favorite target, or couldn't provoke a sharp reply out of patient Mayor Bill Tindall, who gets double doses of Joe at council meetings and when he shows up at the mayor's Friday morning open house.

He arrived for our interview well prepared. Joe brought two bulging briefcases and a shopping bag with newspaper clippings, old election posters, council papers and a vast amount of other paraphernalia. There was even a large aerial photo of central Victoria in the 1950s which illustrated an argument about Inner Harbor development.

That leads him to explain his celebrated "feud" with Wright. It started a year ago, says Richards, pointing to the photograph, when he suggested that Wright's Undersea Gardens never should have been allowed on the Inner Harbor.

"That was the biggest mistake we made."

Then he explains how the Junior Chamber of Commerce named him ambassador of goodwill in 1967 "for some of the good work I've done."

As a Jaycee, Joe carried the good word for Victoria to Japan, Hawaii and Oklahoma City at various conventions.

His "watchdog report" started in early 1977 when he became concerned about burglaries and break-ins and the shortage of police. Joe ran a short classified ad in the Personals column headed "Your Money or Your Life." People have been reading them in the weekend papers ever since for his homey greetings to Victorians and visitors seen in passing.

City Watchdog Joe Richards . . . definitely an acquired taste

He's only missed one edition in three years and that was because the Victoria Press computer ate up his copy, Joe says.

"Let's put it down as a hobby."

It's an expensive one. Over the years he says he's spent close to $3,000 on the columns, as much as $50 on a single one when he was really worked up.

Something else few people know about Joe is that he used to be in business for himself as a tour operator. He drove thousands of tourists around the city, out to Butchart Gardens and over the Malahat. His stand was right next to George Straith's clothiers on Government.

"I would like to do that again," says Joe.

Old-time residents may have once bought a paper from Joe. From 1939 to 1943 he was top newsboy for the Times with the best location, at Yates and Douglas outside the old Cunningham drugstore.

He spent two years in the Canadian Army, part of it with the occupation forces in Germany. After coming home he took an accounting course at Sprott-Shaw, and later worked for a year at Yarrows as an electrician's helper.

Joe was a B.C. government employee until his early retirement at age 55 last November, 22 years as a stockman in the forest service offices here.

His connections with Victoria go back a long way.

Joe's grandfather walked over the Rockies in 1884. His father, born in Wales, was only two years old at the time. Granddad went to work for Dunsmuir in the coal mines at Wellington; his son worked for 47 years on Dunsmuir's Esquimalt and Nanaimo Railway and became an engineer.

His grandfather, Joe told a recent council meeting, helped pull people out of the water in 1896 when the old Point Ellice bridge collapsed under the weight of a streetcar and drowned scores of Victorians.

Health and retirement may force him to slow down, but Richards hints at new worlds to conquer. Maybe Saanich council needs Joe's attention?

With a grin and a gleam in his eyes, Joe says: "You can never tell where the city watchdog's liable to pop up."

Greenbelt designation pinches

Free our land: valley dwellers

Property owners on the fringes of the protected 1,000-acre Blenkinsop Valley told Saanich aldermen Tuesday they want their land freed for development.

About 35 atended a public meeting at the municipal hall, most to protest the boundaries of a three-year old resolution that designates the valley a rural and agricultural greenbelt.

The meeting served as a dry run for a public hearing to be held in September.

A number of owners, mainly on the western boundary and rocky north slope, said their land is unsuitable for agriculture use.

The idea behind creating the greenbelt was to have the municipality and the provicial government co-operate in buying properties as they became available — and lease them to farmers.

During the two-hour meeting, the property owners said the greenbelt label was imposed without a public hearing.

Monty Vanton told aldermen the action created enormous hardship because some properties inside the greenbelt represent the only assets of their owners.

The municipality should buy the properties if it intends to prohibit their normal use, Vanton said.

He said his offer to give the municipality 40 acres worth $500,000 in the Blenskinsop Valley in return for low-density zoning was turned down.

A.G. Richards, 4589 Blenkinsop, charged the municipality has made little effort to buy farmland.

He said his property taxes have gone from $900 to $4,000 since 1973.

The greenbelt should be paid for by everyone in the municipality, not just the owners of property inside it, he said.

Former alderman Ian Cass, on council when the greenbelt resolution was passed, said acres of passive land don't benefit the community and suggested the greenbelt be turned into a golf course.

Automatic rejection of rezoning applications just because the land is in the Blenkinsop Valley was not council's intention, Cass said.

"Even the best of the Blenkinsop Valley I would hesitate to say is top agricultural farmland," he said.

Conflict over use of the valley is inevitable because people would sooner see green fields in front of them than other people's houses, kids and cars, Cass said.

Council must differentiate between real agricultural needs and people's preference for green space, he said.

Saanich Greenbelt Association president Hal Knight said council must make a greater effort to purchase and lease Blenkinsop agricultural land to farmers.

Beer drinkers get real jolt from U.S. brands.

Thirsty British Columbians heading south of the border to buy beer during the brewery dispute are getting a shock.

A report earlier this week indicated Canadians could bring back beer for a customs handling charge of $1.44 a dozen but that isn't the case.

The actual cost of a dozen is averaging $8 to $10 depending on brand — about 60 per cent more than the liquor store price for Canadian beer.

American beer sells in Blaine and Port Angeles at a cost which ranges from $3.50 to $5 a case.

At Blaine's Thrifty Market, a 12-can case of Oly costs $4.89.

Add state sales tax and the exchange rate (14 per cent today) and the price to Canadians is $5.88.

Customs charges a 62-cent duty and another 69 cents to cover federal sales tax (12 per cent).

In addition, customs collects one cent an ounce or $1.44 a case for the Liquor Distribution Branch.

The total cost — $8.63. That works out to 72 cents a bottle or six cents an ounce.

Customs has set a $5 price for each case of beer regardless how much the person actually paid for it. That has been done to simplify the importation process and speed up traffic flow.

The LDB also is not charging deposits on cans or bottles at the border but will pay refunds, provided the imported beer is on the LDB list.

The list includes Oly, Oly Gold, Rayonier and Schlitz.

No refunds will be made for any other brands.

Meanwhile, the B.C. Government Employees' Union is considering picketing border customs points in the wake of relaxation of restrictions on the amount of beer Canadians can bring from the U.S.

BCGEU general secretary John Fryer said the union is unhappy with a change in regulations which will allow Canadians — formerly restricted to two cases a head — to bring back up to 10 cases.

"We are very concerned and very angry that they have suddenly changed the rule to 10 cases from two," Fryer said.

"We are contemplating legal action over the matter of federal people (customs officials) injecting themselves into a provincial dispute."

A liquor board spokesman said, however, import quotas of beer are set by the provinces and not by the federal government. Residents who have been out of province for 48 hours may bring in 288 ounces of beer duty free once every calendar quarter.

Fryer said picketing of customs points is a distinct option for the union.

Picket action could severely curtail the movement of goods in trucks driven by unionized drivers and could also affect customs operations since employees belong to the Public Service Alliance of Canada.

The union has said it does not object to increased deliveries of U.S. beer to government liquor stores providing it is one of three brands already on the established purchase list.

But the union has warned any attempt to bring in other brands would bring a "hot cargo" ruling from the BCGEU which represents liquor store workers.

Swing bed: time for a break

By PAT DUFOUR

Gorge Road Hospital's extended care unit has the only "swing bed" in town.

It looks like any other hospital bed . . . and is. The difference is in the way it's used.

The bed is set aside for men who, although disabled enough to qualify for permanent admission, normally live at home, cared for by their wives or other relatives.

Under the program, patients come into the hospital for two weeks and then return home for 10 weeks.

The main thrust of the swing bed program is to postpone or prevent permament admission. It also gives a much-needed break to wives, allowing them to take an out-of-town trip, visit relatives or just catch up with house and garden chores.

Since the program started the swing bed has been used by 10 men, four of whom are still in the program, having had partially-paralysing strokes.

The wives and husbands meet for a "swing bed tea" at the hospital about four times a year to plan the schedule, trade off dates and discuss problems.

At one tea, social worker Caroline Martin explained that during the two weeks at the hospital the men receive what's called an optimum maintenance program, a thorough assessment, and an updating of programs by occupational therapist Wendy Ross.

Ed and Dolly Hume . . . second home

"It also gives the wives a break."

Mrs. John J. Woods agreed. Her husband, former director of the Dominion Research Centre on the Saanich Peninsula, is one of those who uses the swing bed. His wife said he did not particularly enjoy being away from home but tells her, "I must go if you're to get a break."

Ed Hume, a retired Victoria firefighter, enjoys his two-week stint at the hospital, says his wife Dolly.

"This is like a second home to him. They spoil him," she says. "He gets loads of attention that I haven't got the time to give at home.

"The patients are just the same. It's like old home week. It's 'Hi Ed, welcome back' every time."

Since her husband had his stroke, Mrs. Hume has had to tackle unfamiliar chores around the house and in the garden. The two-week breaks gives her a chance to get them done.

Martin said there is room for one more man in the program, who must be qualified for extensive care treatment although he lives at home. She suggested those interested phone her at the hospital between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. at 386-2464, local 268.

The hospital has no swing bed for women patients but Martin said the hospital would be happy to provide one if a need is shown.

Bus shelters opposed

A billboard by any other name is still a billboard, even if it's disguised as a free bus shelter, Saanich aldermen were told Tuesday.

Residents warned a special standing committee of council to beware of an offer by Seaboard Advertising Co. of Vancouver.

Seaboard has offered to install the shelters in the municipality in return for advertising privileges.

A sample glass and steel shelter was erected Tuesday by a small crane at Saanich municipal hall on Vernon.

Resident Josephine McGregor told the meeting the shelter is too big and open to protect against wind and rain and would be a target for vandals.

"We got rid of billboards a long time ago. I don't think we should bring them back again."

Company spokesman Bob Sinclair said the bus shelters have been installed in seven municipalities in Greater Vancouver.

Esquimalt council recently agreed to negotiate with the company, he said.

In return, the company sells advertising to local merchants. A four-by-six foot panel costs $150 a month.

The municipality would be allowed up to 10 per cent of the available advertising space on each shelter.

Ald. Howard Sturrock said bus shelters are unsuitable for advertising messages.

He said the structure needs a cover on the front to keep out the elements.

'Most thrilling, satisfying so far'

By AUDREY JOHNSON

Even with a concert series as distinguished as the one currently in progress in Victoria, there can occur special moments.

An instance when everything comes together in a particular brew and something magical occurs.

Tuesday's International Festival concert only scheduled two ensembles performing three works — the Pacific Wind Quintet playing a work by 19th century Paul Taffanel and Three Shanties for Woodwind Quintet by 20th century Malcolm Arnold; and Beethoven's Trio in B flat Major, the 'Archduke', in which Jean-Jacques Kantorow and Philippe Muller were joined by British pianist John Ogdon.

As it turned out, for chamber ensemble performance this was the most satisfying and also thrilling evening of the festival so far, now in its third week.

The Pacific Wind Quintet, resident ensemble at the University of Victoria and recent hands-down winner of a European competition, is a delightful group of artists, technically fluent and possessing a breadth and discernment of musicianship that permits them a wide range and freedom in interpretation.

Expressive tone of great purity throughout, finely proportioned phrases, vitality and a lyrical mood pervaded the Taffanel Quintette, while Arnold's charming arrangement of sea shanties, ebullient and witty, revealed the flexibility, ease and humor of the ensemble.

They too, had a replacement in their ranks. David Dutton was guest oboist in place of temporarily absent Bill Benjamin, playing with Lanny Pollet, Thomas Dowling, Richard Ely and Jesse Read.

The second half of the program was devoted to the 'Archduke' which was just as well for anything else in that half would have been a redundancy. The performance provided the sort of total musical experience that needs space around it for contemplation and savoring.

It is difficult to imagine the work could have sounded any more glorious if the trio's pianist, Jacques Rouvier, had been present.

Ogdon was making his first appearance in the festival in this role and he left no doubt of his superb virtuosity, his liquid touch in the most virtuosic passages, his splendid breadth and richness of tone and command of color.

But his interrelationship with Kantorow and Muller was the important factor and it was precise, pliant, sensitve.

The Archduke Trio is one of the greatest works in the chamber repertoire and this beautifully styled, brilliant and evocative performance provided what will undoubtedly be a crowning moment in the entire festival.

Thursday's concerto program at University Centre will provide an opportunity to hear Ogdon as soloist in the Brahms Concerto No. 1.

There will also be a performance by Daniel Heifetz of the Violin Concerto No. 3 in G Major by Mozart and soprano Leslie Allison will sing the motet Exultate Jubilate K. 165.

Smith names new deputy

Education Minister Brian Smith today announced the appointment of Jim Carter as his new deputy minister, replacing Dr. Walter Hardwick who retires Sept. 1.

Carter, a former school teacher and principal, has been associate deputy minister of schools since 1977.

Fast milkers eyed

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP) — The time taken to milk a cow is a serious concern to dairymen. The speed at which a cow can deliver, an inherited trait, can be improved through selective breeding, and the Holstein Association has begun a sire proving program in Quebec and Ontario.

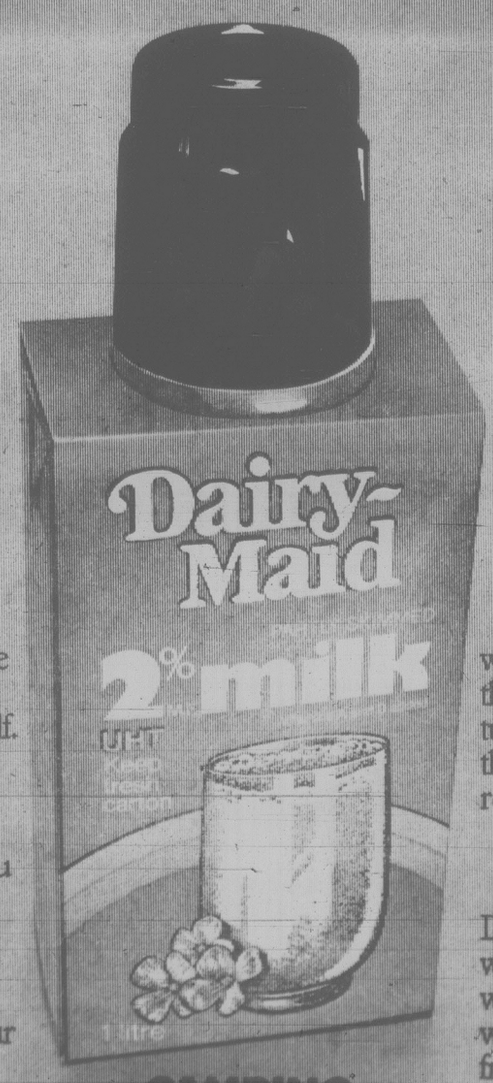
THE EMERGENCY MILK



Dairymaid Milk does more than stay fresh for up to four months on your pantry shelf. It also goes where ordinary milk has never dared to go. So don't just leave it on the shelf, take some with you wherever you're heading.
BOATING
You won't find many milk stores out at sea, so take your own store with you. Bring Dairymaid Milk aboard before casting off. Then you can enjoy real, honest-to-goodness, fresh milk every day.
CAMPING
Pack Dairymaid milk on that next camping trip. You can get away a little further with Dairymaid along and the specially designed package tucks neatly away in the camper, saving valuable refrigerator space.
FOR THE CABIN
Stock the cottage with Dairymaid Milk. So you'll always have plenty on hand when you head out for the weekend. Dairymaid is fresh as a country morning!
Of course you'll also want to keep Dairymaid Milk on your pantry shelf for life's little emergencies.
IT'S NOT JUST FOR EMERGENCIES.
Look for the Emergency Milk Display at your grocery store.

Gold has a hollow ring

MOSCOW (CP) — It was a day of hollow victories at the Olympic Games Tuesday with the Soviet Union winning the equestrian team jumping event against only five other entries and India winning the field hockey tournament which none of the 1976 medallists entered.

The absence of 36 countries, most of them boycotting the Games because of Soviet intervention in Afghanistan, helped the host country push its leading medal total to a record 137 with 56 gold, 50 silver and 31 bronze.

The Soviet Union had recorded the previous high of 50 golds at the 1972 Munich Games and the previous record total of 125 medals at the 1976 Montreal Olympics.

The Soviet total swelled Tuesday with gold medals in 10 of 17 events while second-place East Germany managed to pick up only two silver and two bronze for a total of 34 gold, 28 silver and 31 bronze.

"To be quite honest, we've seen the lowest standard in the last 20 years," said Horst Wein, Spain's West German field hockey coach, after his team settled for the silver medal in a 4-3 loss to India in the final.

"Too many of the top nations were missing and there was too big a difference between the top and bottom sides here."

Among the top teams absent from the field hockey tourney were New Zealand, 1976 gold medallist; world champion Pakistan; West Germany, the 1972 Olympic champion; and the Netherlands, the European champion.

"India must be congratulated on producing the finest side I've seen from them in four years," said Wein. "They're very fast, especially in counter-attacks."

The Soviet Union's men's basketball team, expected to romp through the Olympic competition in the absence of the Americans, was deprived of a spot in the gold medal game.

Their last hopes evaporated when Mirza Delibasic of Yugoslavia sank two free throws in the last minute to give his team a 96-95 victory over Brazil.

Under the complicated system of qualifying, that set up the gold medal game today between Yugoslavia and Italy.

Soviet fans at Lenin Stadium also left in disappointment after the home side lost 1-0 to East Germany in the soccer semifinals. The Germans advance to Saturday's gold-medal final against Czechoslovakia which beat Yugoslavia 2-0.

In the equestrian team jumping, the Soviet Union claimed the gold medal with Poland finishing second and Mexico third. Hungary, Romania and Bulgaria were the only other teams entered.

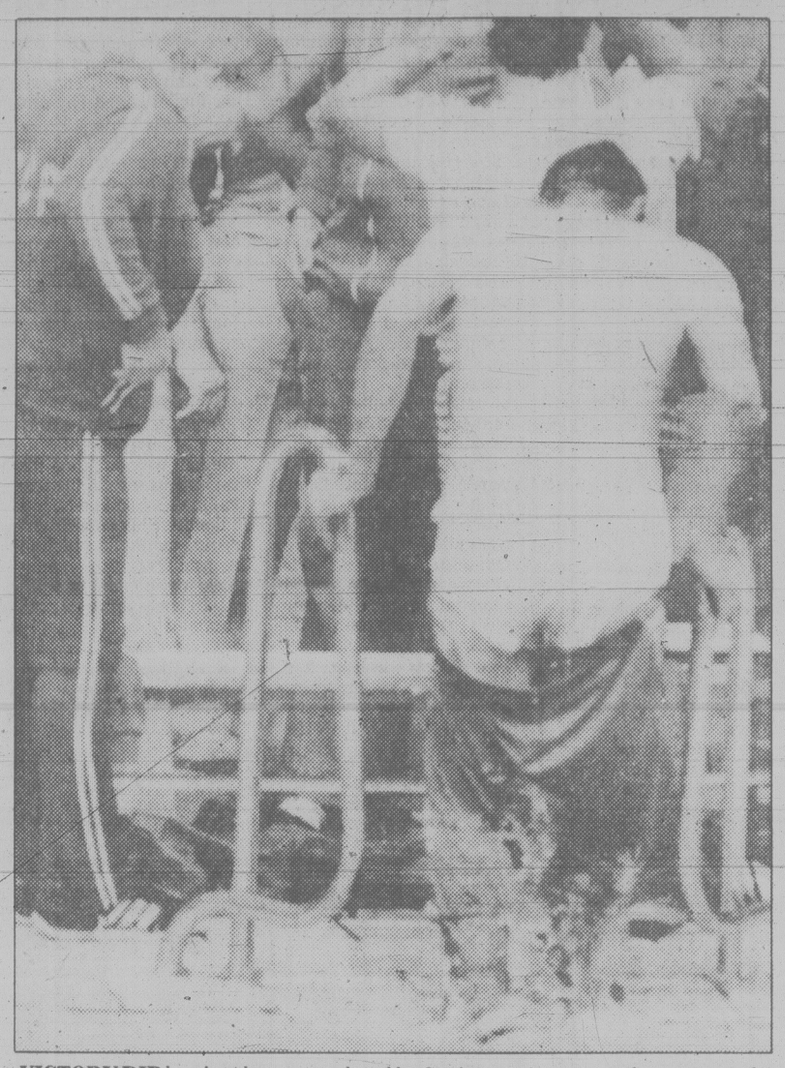
Elsewhere, Soviet athletes picked up gold medals in waterpolo, women'steam handball, women's volleyball, the fencing team sabre event, the 110-kilogram weightlifting class, the 78-kilogram judo class, two freestyle wrestling events and one of the six yachting classes.

Brazilian sailors claimed two events.

Claudio Pollio won Italy's sixth gold medal of the Games with a victory in the 48-kilogram freestyle wrestling event. Soviet wrestlers won the other two finals — Magomedgasan Abushev in 62 kilograms and Sanasar Oganesyan in 90 kilograms.

Leonid Taranenko of the Soviet Union broke two world weightlifting records, winning the gold medal in the 110-kilogram division.

He recorded a jerk lift of 240 kilograms and a total of 422.5. Yuri Zaitsev of the Soviet Union previously held the jerk record with 238 and Taranenko himself the total with 420.



VICTORY DIP has just been completed by Soviet men's water polo team coach, who, with soggy trousers sagging, climbs out of pool after being tossed in by his players after they had captured gold medal in Moscow Olympics. Soviets scored 8-7 victory over Yugoslavia in bitterly-contested final.

American flag plans scrapped

MOSCOW — Soviet organizers steered clear of a political row at the Olympic yachting competition site at Tallin, Estonia, today and scrapped plans to hoist the American flag at the closing ceremony.

Earlier, organizing committee officials insisted the United States flag be flown alongside the Soviet and Greek flags, despite strong objections in Washington.

The gesture, made at previous Olympic regattas, would have signalled the 1984 Games in Los Angeles.

But the ceremony ended without any of the three flags. Flagpoles intended for them stood bare as the Olympic banner was lowered and the flame extinguished.

The change of plan came after Monique Berlioux, director of the International Olympic Committee, told reporters there was no formal protocol for closing the regatta and no requirement to hoist flags.

Because of the U.S. boycott of the Games over the Soviet intervention in Afghanistan, the Carter administration told the IOC earlier this month that it strongly objected to the use of its national flag and anthem.

Stung by criticism of stringent Olympic security, a Soviet newspaper lashed back today with recollections of anti-Soviet pamphlets, demonstrations and other "provocations" that had been committed at previous Games.

The long rebuttal in the Soviet Sport newspaper, headlined "Who Loses from Order," implied that the army of plainclothes and uniformed police, security fences and metal detectors was at least partly there to prevent anti-Soviet activities.

The article made no mention of the terrorist attack on the Israeli team in Munich in 1972. Instead, it recalled that anti-Soviet pamphlets at Munich "made their way into the booths of socialist journalists with no trouble."

In Montreal in 1976, Soviet Sport said, security was beefed up with all kinds of technology, but the security services overlooked the "moral side" of their job.

And although telephones were "stringently monitored," Soviet Sport wrote, "some gangsters still managed to summon Valery Borzov (a top Soviet sprinter) and threaten him with violence."

Mail was also checked, the paper said, but socialist athletes still received "dirty pamphlets." And at the press centre, "anti-Soviet brochures" were laid out.

Finally, at the Winter Games in Lake Placid, N.Y., last winter, police stood by and let anti-Soviet or pro-boycott demonstrators hand out pamphlets or burn Olympic emblems without taking any action. This included "three slovenly, bearded men at a bus stop who shoved dirty anti-Olympic pamphlets into passengers' hands."

A British sports journalist received an apology from Olympic organizers today after complaining he had been repeatedly stopped by Soviet police — for jogging.

Christopher Brasher of The Observer newspaper, steeplechase gold medallist at the 1956 Melbourne Olympics, said he had been stopped by police on his daily run between the Olympic Village and the Rossiya Hotel.

Once he was tackled by a policeman who put a wrestling hold on him, and on another occasion held up by several officers for 25 minutes despite producing a letter of introduction from Vladimir Popov, vice-president of the Olympics organizing committee.

"Perhaps it's something they don't like about your style of running," Popov said as he apologized.

Sports tonight

Shamrocks lacrosse and softball are the only sports attractions offered to fans in Greater Victoria tonight. On television, however, there's CFL football and major league baseball and there's radio coverage of both football and North American Soccer League action on radio.

The Shamrocks host Vancouver Burrards in a Western Association contest at 8 in Memorial Arena.

In softball, Victoria Athletics take on Remco in a Heywood Men's League double-header at Royal Athletic Park starting at 6, followed by Mears against Capital Builders at 9. Tally Ho meets Tod Hackett in a Stuffy McGinnis Men's League game at 6:30 at Central Park.

Television

Baseball coverage, with Oakland Athletics at Toronto Blue Jays, begins at 4:30 on Channel 2.

There will be CFL football featuring Saskatchewan Roughriders at Hamilton Tiger Cats on Channel 8 at 5 and at 7, Channel 2 will join the B.C. Lions-Edmonton Eskimos game in progress at 7 o'clock.

Channel 6 will feature the Athletics-Blue Jays baseball game at 7:30 and at 10:30 This Week in Baseball will be shown on Channels 2 and 6.

Radio

CFAX 1070 will broadcast the B.C. Lions-Edmonton game and as soon as that's over will switch to coverage of the rest of the NASL game in Vancouver between the Whitecaps and Dallas Tornado.

Blues top Phillies

BEND, Ore. — Barry Moss scored what proved to be the winning run in the third inning as Victoria Blues downed Central Oregon Phillies 5-3 in a Northwest League baseball game here.

Moss came home on one of Central Oregon's three errors in the inning.

For righthanded pitcher Ken Klacza it was the sixth win in nine games.

The win even the Blues' record at 19-19 while the Phillies are 18-21.

A watch on track judges

MOSCOW (AP) — The International Amateur Athletic Federation will put its own appeals jury members on the field in the Olympic track competition in a move to stop Soviet judging irregularities, highly placed sources in the IAAF said today.

There has been a string of complaints about the judging thus far in the competition. The judges have all been from the Soviet Union. They will remain on the field, but the IAAF jurors will supervise them, said the sources.

The judges in track and field here are all from the host country, rather than an international grouping as in other sports.

The IAAF sources said the action probably will lead to a change in Olympic regulations, with international representatives heading the judging and anti-doping systems.

There has been widespread criticism of the judging during the Games, with a special emphasis on the men's discus, javelin and triple jump events, all won by Soviet competitors.

"It was the first time the jury of appeals was not present on the field at an Olympic Games, and this has affected the credibility of the whole IAAF," one of the sources said. "The IAAF executive committee could no longer tolerate the situation and it imposed a return of its members to the competition site to safeguard the clean handling of the events."

Bombers explode to upset Stamps

Times News Services

After managing just two touchdowns in their first three Canadian Football League regular season games, Winnipeg Blue Bombers exploded for four en route to a 35-18 upset of Calgary Stampeders in Winnipeg Tuesday night.

The Bombers, under the direction of quarterback Dieter Brock, dominated the game as they won their first contest in four outings.

Bombers coach Ray Jauch said his team didn't do anything that was different from what they had been doing in other games.

"When you win everything looks good and when you lose it doesn't all look good," he said after the game. "We're doing the same things we were doing before, we just finished a few things off, that's all."

Brock scored two of the Winnipeg touchdowns, with William Miller and Robert Woods getting the others. Kicker Trevor Kennerd added four converts, two field goals and a single on a 90-yard kickoff.

An obviously relieved Brock said the team's offensive outburst was overdue.

"We've been moving the ball all along this year, we just haven't been getting it in," he said. "Tonight we finally started getting it in there.

James Sykes and Willie Armstead accounted for Calgary's TDs, with kicker J. T. Hay adding two converts, a field goal and a single on a missed 47-yard field goal attempt.

Brock changed his style for the game, and the strategy paid off. He patiently moved the team with short passes and an effective ground game, a contrast to his normal long-bomb style.

Brock completed 18 of 21 passes and Winnipeg collected 122 yards on the ground.

Calgary had 301 yards net offence, 229 of them through the air.

Either B. C. or Edmonton could take over first place in the WFC as the two teams clash tonight in Edmonton.

B. C. coach Vic Rapp is contemplating the relative luxury of entering the game with a healthy lineup.

Meanwhile, Jim Corrigall, Toronto Argonauts rugged defensive end, says there was no bounty on quarterback Condredge Holloway's head during the Argos gruelling 18-10 victory in Ottawa Tuesday over the Rough Riders.

"It's outright blasphemy to suggest there was a reward for getting Holloway," said Corrigall, who knocked the Ottawa quarterback senseless late in the second quarter, forcing him out of the game.

Corrigall, who doubles as the Argos' defensive line coach, said after the game he "just pushed him (Holloway) and he fell to the ground."

Holloway, who lay motionless on the rain-soaked field for almost five minutes, reportedly suffered a concussion and a groin injury. He was taken to hospital for examination and returned to Lansdowne Park shortly after the game but was not available for comment.

High school rivals qualify for Times junior net semis

By MAX LOW

Seventeen and 18-year-old arch rivals from the same high school tennis team, a 16-year-old and a girl still only 14 are the first four players to reach the semi-finals of this year's Victoria Times Public Parks Tennis tournament.

Carol Lauzon, 17, and Cory Aspden, who turned 18 after the Oct.1, 1979, deadline for the under-18 junior girls' singles, played together regularly last year at Esquimalt High.

They both entered the sixth annual Times Tourney last summer and clashed in the quarter-finals where Carol beat Cory 9-5.

Carol was then ousted by eventual girls' champion Janine Prince 6-4, 6-4 in the semi-finals.

In this year's event, Carol defeated Kathy Grenke 9-2 and Cory cruised past Karen McEvay 6-0, 6-0 and once again the former school teammates will clash — this time in the semi-finals when the summer-long tournament for public parks players winds up on Aug.23 and 24 at Oak Bay's Henderson Park.

Both girls — Cory graduated as the school's top student in June while Carol is going into Grade 12 this year — expect another tough battle to ensue.

"We're sort of even but we play quite different games," says Cory. "Carol is very consistent and just keeps digging up everything, while I try to hit the ball a little harder."

Angela Heimlich, whose 16-year-old twin sister Barbara reached the semi-finals last summer, made it into the last four in this year's event with a 9-1 win over Mary Domke. This is Angela's second year in the Times event after bowing out in the quarter-finals last time. She'll be going into Grade 12 this September at Claremont High.

But the event's big surprise has been Correne Gillies, who doesn't turn 15 until October. She stunned top-seeded Angela Kolic, who is through to the last eight in the women's singles, 6-2, 6-0 to reach the semi-finals where she'll meet Angela Heimlich.

This is the first time in the Times tourney for Correne, who has been playing tennis for four years and is going into Grade 12 this September at Reynolds.

Second-ranked Carolyn Jones is the only one of the four seeded players to make it through to the quarter-finals of the women's singles. She got past Shirley Vaulkhard 6-1, 6-1.

Fourth-seeded Kathy Meredith is the latest casualty, going out 9-3 to Mary Alford in the third round.

The women have until Aug.8 to cut their field to the four semi-finalists but the deadline for the next-round matches in the men's singles is Aug.4 and the junior boys, Aug.5.

WOMEN'S SINGLES

Third-round results — Pam Gaffield def. Pam Campbell by default; Cory Aspden def. Claire Ducluzeau 9-6; Linda Lee def. Sally Calich 11-9; Mary Alford def. Kathy Meredith 9-3; Lynn Derry def. Kathy Grenke 9-4; Angela Kolic def. Lila Jay by default; Marg Mainwaring def. Vera Coley 9-2; Carolyn Jones def. Shirley Vaulkhard 6-1, 6-1.

Quarter-final draw — Gaffield vs. Aspden, Lee vs. Alford, Derry vs. Kolic, Mainwaring vs. Jones.

GIRLS' SINGLES

Quarter-final results — Correne Gillies def. Angela Kolic 6-2, 6-0; Angela Heimlich def. Mary Domke 9-1; Cory Aspden def. Karen McEvay 6-0, 6-0; Carol Lauzon def. Kathy Grenke 9-2.

Semi-final draw — Gillies vs. Heimlich, Aspden vs. Lauzon.

Royals, Sox in slugfest

George Brett agreed there hasn't been a game in Kansas City like this one in several years.

The Royals and Boston Red Sox combined for 31 hits, seven errors and 17 runs, with Brett, who homered, singled and doubled twice, scoring from third base on an error by Red Sox shortstop Rick Burleson with two out in the bottom of the ninth to give Kansas City a 9-8 American League baseball victory.

"That's the best one fans in Kansas City have seen in a long time," said the third baseman, whose four hits raised his average to .382.

Overtime issue still deadlocked

TORONTO (CP) — National Hockey League players and owners scurried back and forth between meeting rooms for several hours Tuesday in what turned out to be no more than an exercise in good will.

The issues of sudden-death overtime and termination of the league's collective bargaining agreement came under discussion and neither matter was resolved in six hours of closed-door sessions.

Five players on the NHL Players' Association executive committee reached a stalemate on the overtime issue with respect to league games and will consult respective team members before presenting a position.

NHLPA executive director Alan Eagleson said he doubted overtime could be instituted for the 1980-81 season.

"There was the same lack of unanimity among the players as there was among the owners with regard to overtime," Eagleson said, referring toa stormy June owners meeting in Los Angeles where the overtime issue was passed despite considerable opposition.

The owners did so in the mistaken belief that the players had already given their approval to overtime at a rules meeting in Montreal. However, the player representatives on the rules committee — Craig Ramsay of Buffalo Sabres and Brett Callighen of Edmonton Oilers — had left before the overtime issue was raised.

"The players were worried that any decision they made regarding overtime might be construed as wrong because they hadn't discussed it with their team-mates," Eagleson said of the Tuesday vote.

Phil Esposito of New York Rangers and Marcel Dionne of Los Angeles Kings endorsed overtime in the vote, while Darryl Sittler of Toronto Maple Leafs and Tony Esposito of Chicago Black Hawks voted against it. Bryan Trottier of New York Islanders abstained, creating the deadlock.

Burrards keep hot; to test Irish tonight

Vancouver Burrards made it eight victories out of their last nine games in the Western Lacrosse Association Tuesday night as they trounced Nanaimo Timbermen 24-8 at Kerrisdale Arena.

And tonight Burrards take on Victoria Shamrocks at Mmemorial Arena in a game that is crucial to both clubs as it affects the playoff pairings.

With their win over Nanaimo, Burrards cinched a playoff berth and moved into a third-place tie with New Westminster Salmonbellies who have one game remaining with Coquitlam Adanacs. And with a victory Burrards could move ahead of the Salmonbellies.

Shamrocks, who trail Coquitlam by two points, but have one game in hand, must win both their final games — the last one is at Nanaimo Saturday — to be assured of finishing in first place, regardless of what Coquitlam does.

In the WLA, the first-place team plays the third and second plays fourth.

Veteran Ward Sanderson, an old favorite here — he will be 32 on Aug. 9 — is expected to be in the Burrard lineup after coming out of retirement earlier this year.

Against Nanaimo, Burrards pulled to an 11-2 lead at the end of the period and had a 17-5 edge after 40 minutes.

Eric Otterstrom, Ron Pinder, Bruce Turris and Doug Hayes each scored three goals for Burrards while Sanderson, John Swan, Mike Smith and Stu Aird each had a pair.

Singles came from Dan Perreault, Mike McMillan, Al Kirk and Paul Cicci.

Ted Greves led Nanaimo with a pair while Ron Brown, Wayne Reeves, Roger Dubyna, Charn Dhillon, Ron MacNeil and Brian Evans each scored one goal.

Vancouver goalie Brian Celli made 51 saves.

Scott Marshall and Mac Maude made 25 saves in the Timbermen net.

Adanacs end Legion dreams

Esquimalt Legion has failed to make the Western Junior Lacrosse League playoffs for the second year in a row.

Coquitlam Junior Adanacs won 9-3 before a crowd of around 300 at Esquimalt Sports Centre Tuesday night to eliminate the Legion from playoff contention.

The defeat left the Legion five points behind the Adanacs who have clinched the fourth and final playoff berth in the five-team league but who could finish as high as second.

Nine players — Al Manning, Ken Galloway, Colin Broomfield, Dan Gamble, Tony Vendrasco, Grant Shaver, Geordie Dean, Dave Shillington and Bob Jude — scored one goal each for Coquitlam while Gordie Taylor, Bruce Alexander and Tom Woods scored for the Legion.

The Esquimalt team ends its 24-game schedule with games tonight against the Adanacs in Coquitlam and against Burnaby Cablevision at the Esquimalt Sports Centre on Aug.5.

Creery tops pre masters

RICHMOND — Mike Creery of Victoria placed first in the pre-masters (30 to 40-year-olds) 3,000-metre event Tuesday night in the Richmond Grand Prix track and field series at Minoru Park.

Creery's time was 8 minutes, 30.2 seconds compared with 8:32.6 for second-place Norm Trerise of the Vancouver Olympic Club and Barry Adams also of the VOC who was third in 8:35.4.

Bolton, Clough take lead as Bemisters capture title

With Marilyn Bolton hurling a three-hitter and Penny Clough smacking a two-run single, Bemister's Welding nipped New York, New York 2-1 at Hyacinth Park Tuesday night to clinch first place in the Victoria-Saanich Women's Softball League.

Bemister's now have 40 points to 36 for Island Dryco Breakers, leaders for much of the season. Bemister's and Breakers play in their last league game Thursday night.

In Tuesday's other game, Strathcona Stingers thrashed Tillicum Shoppers Drug Mart 12-2. Winning pitcher Bev Karpiuk had a six-hitter and drove in five runs with two singles and a triple.

Ingraham Rodeway Inn scored its second straight win over league champion Victoria Athletics in Stuffy McGinnis Men's League play at Central Park.

Rob Coldwell and Reg King both hit home runs as Ingraham scored a 6-2 victory.

Scoring was high in the Lower Island Softball Association's intermediate women's league where Prairie Inn downed Allman's Joy 7-3 and Rawlings blanked Market Square News 9-0, both at Topaz Park, and Sooke hammered Starthcona Hotel 38-8 at Sooke.

Victoria Athletics clung to a one-point lead at the top of the Heywood League by splitting a doubleheader with second-place Capital Builders at Royal Athletic Park. Athletics won the first game 7-4 and the Builders took the second 3-1.

At Heywood Avenue, Ingraham scored five runs in the first inning and went on to record a 7-4 decision over Remco Office Systems.

Pat Hume hit a homer, singled and scored three times while Frank Scott hit a grand-slam homer to cap the first inning spree.

A change in schedule of games has been announced for the balance of the season which ends Friday. Playoffs commence Tuesday.

The new schedule has three games tonight at Athletic Park with a doubleheader between Athletics and Remco, starting at 6 p.m., followed by a single game between Mears and Capitals at 9 p.m.

Thursday, Knowles plays Ingraham in a doubleheader, starting at 6, followed by a single game between Stratheona and Remco, also at Athletic Park; and Friday, at 6;30 p.m., Ingraham meets Remco at Heywood Avenue.

Blizzard tripped

PORTLAND (AP) — Stuart Lee scored both goals Tuesday night in Portland Timbers' 2-1 North American Soccer League victory over Toronto Blizzard.

After a scoreless first half, Toronto's Ivan Lukacevic scored at 51:50. Portland tied it 50 seconds later on a 25-yard blast by Lee, who got his second goal less decisively.

Toronto goalkeeper Blagoje Tamindzic leaped to grab the ball but was knocked down by Portland's Clyde Best. Lee's shot, from about eight feet away, rolled into the net.

Portland now has a 10-15 record. Toronto is 12-14.

Test ends in draw

LONDON (AP) — The fourth cricket Test between England and the West Indies ended in a draw Tuesday at The Oval, without the Indies having a second innings.

The glory rested with England's final pair — Peter Willey of Northamptonshire, who scored 104 and took 236 minutes for his first Test century, and Bob Willis of Warwickshire, who kept his wicket for 24.

West Indian fielders flopped to the ground to rest while the crowd cheered the Englishman's 100.

When Willey had scored four more, and time was running out, they called it a day with the final score England 370 and 209 for nine, West Indies 265.

Mayhew Day slated Friday

It will be Bob Mayhew Day at the Uplands course Friday as more than 150 members of the Vancouver Island Seniors' Golf Association compete for the Mayhew Trophy and other awards.

Both of last year's major winners — Ray Cranston, who took the trophy as the handicap leader, and Harry Donaldson, the tournament medalist — are scheduled to compete.

Friday's starting times:

Our Exclusive Offer to Collectors of Gold Coins.

Solid 14-Karat Gold Krugerrand

The World's Most Famous Gold Coin in exquisite miniature

Only $15 if you act within 30 days!

The famous Krugerrand, symbol of gold's elegance, beauty and value! In today's gold market, the Krugerrand has become the most popular gold coin of our time; in fact, on April 15, 1980 the International Monetary Mint purchased from a prominent Canadian Bank the famous Krugerrand for $617.71.

Now, you have the rare opportunity to possess the International Monetary Mint miniature Krugerrand in solid 14 karat gold — for the special price of just $15 if you act within thirty days.

An Exquisitely Detailed Miniature

Individually die-struck by International Monetary Mint's commissioned craftsmen, each miniature captures the full three-dimensional relief of the striking full-sized coin. Each brilliant uncirculated gold piece has the likeness of Stefans Johannes Kruger, the late 19th century President of South Africa on one side, and the distinctive depiction of the Springbok, the small African antelope, on the reverse side.

Each gold piece is presented to you in a specially designed collector's case, accompanied by an individually numbered Certificate of Authenticity. It's a gold treasure to be cherished for years to come — and the ideal gift for every occasion. A stunning solid 14 Karat Gold Frame for your miniature gold piece is also available.

Price Guaranteed for Only 30 Days

Due to the constant fluctuation in the price of gold on the world market our low prices for these stunning miniature Krugerrands can be guaranteed for only 30 days. In addition, we must set a strict order limit of ten coins per order.

An Unusual UNLIMITED Guarantee

We are so sure that you will be thrilled with the workmanship and value of your miniature Krugerrand that we offer it to you on an unlimited guarantee of satisfaction:

You may return the coin(s) at any time in the original collector's case with the Certificate of Authenticity for full refund of your purchase price (except postage and handling, of course) no questions asked.

Obviously, we anticipate unusually heavy demand for these exquisite miniature Krugerrands, and we will fill orders strictly on a first come, first-served basis. To avoid disappointment or delay, you must place your order now-and in no event can we guarantee this low price of $15 for longer than 30 days. International Monetary Mint

Many areas are eager to stage B.C. Games

Eleven communities have submitted 15 bids to stage the 1982-83 B.C. Summer and Winter Games.

"This is by far the largest number of applications ever received from potential host communities since the program began in 1978 — several communities bid on more than one set of games," Ron Butlin, chairman of the B.C. Games Advisory Council, said.

The communities bidding are: Revelstoke, Fort St. John, Trail, Regional District of Nanaimo, Kamloops, Vernon, Surrey, Delta, Kitimat, Maple Ridge and the City of Nanaimo.

Butlin said the committee will make its recommendations to provincial secretary Evan Wolfe by the end of September.

Suit filed against soccer league

NEW YORK (AP) — The National Labor Relations Board filed suit Tuesday in an effort to compel the North American Soccer League and its 24 member clubs to recognize and hold bona fide collective bargaining with the players' association. The suit was launched in U.S. District Court in Manhattan by Winfred D. Morio, regional NLRB director, who acted on a petition by the players' union charging the NASL and member clubs with unfair labor practices. The NLRB is seeking to have the soccer league and its teams show cause before the federal court why an injunction should not be issued to force compliance with an NLRB unfair labor practices complaint issued last January.

Snead, Green share lead

VAIL, Colo. (AP) — J. C. Snead birdied the final hole Tuesday to tie Hubert Green for first place at 137 in the 36-hole Jerry Ford Invitational golf tournament. Both pros took home a cheque for $12,000.

Both Snead, the first-round leader, and Green left the course before final results were in, eliminating a playoff. Both will play in the Philadelphia Classic this week. Snead shot an even-par 71 Tuesday and Green a 70.

Tom Kite and Ed Sneed tied for third at 138. Johnny Miller and Peter Jacobsen tied for fifth with 139s, three under par.

J. C. Snead's team, including Indiana basketball coach Bobby Knight, won that division with a 107 best ball. Tommy Bolt's team was second at 109.

Drever and Harrison appointed UVic coaches

Sandy Drever, who had a distinguished career at both provincial and national levels as a player, has been appointed coach of the University of Victoria Vikettes women's field hockey team. Also named to the UVic staff is Bob Harrison, a Winnipeg native who will bring considerable international experience to his position as coach of the men's volleyball squad.

Drever was a member of the Canadian team from 1971 to 1979 and was captain of the squad for the last three years.

She recently moved to Victoria from Calgary, where she coached the women's field hockey team and taught at the University of Calgary.

Drever also excells in squash. She has been a member of the Alberta team for the past three years and was ranked fourth in the province.

Currently assistant coach of the national men's squad and a former mamanger of the Canadian team, the 32-year-old Harrison piloted University of Winnipeg Wesmen to the national collegiate championship in 1977. He is replacing Chris Marshall, who directed the volleball Vikings for one season.

Triangle wins district title

Greater Victoria's representative in the B.C. Little League baseball championship tournament, starting in Vancouver Saturday, is Triangle.

With a 5-3 decision over Lakehill at Hampton Park Tuesday night, the Triangle boys kept their unbeaten record intact in the double-loss tournament and sewed up the District II title.

Steve Beddows, who came on to replace starter Jason Strandlund in the third inning, earned the pitching victory.

Triangle trailed 3-1 but went on a four-run scoring spree in the third inning when Beddows singled, Bernie St. Pierre drew a walk, Dan Woodley hit a two-run double and Steve Reiser stepped up to crack a two-run homer.

Lakehill	030 000 — 3 4 1

Dan Thomas and Dave Galbraith; Jason Strandlund, Steve Beddows (3) and Stew Coulter. HR: Tri — Steve Reiser.

Akai collects junior crown

It will be Richmond Akai and not Victoria Merchants in the B.C. junior baseball final in Vancouver this weekend.

Mark Henderson hit a bases-loaded ground-rule double in the 10th inning to give Richmond a 6-4 triumph at Lambrick Park in the deciding game of their best-of-five semi-final series.

It was the third straight win for Akai, which staged a remarkable comeback after trailing the Merchants 2-0 in the series.

Winning pitcher was Jay Cartwright while Ron Burton, who came on in relief for Victoria in the eighth inning, took the loss.

Tom Armitage and Pt Van Hest hit homers in Richmond's three-run fourth inning. Dale Schmidt hit a two-run double in the third for the Merchants.

Jay Cartwright and Tom Armitage; Paul Hrach, Doug Bull (5), Ron Burton (8) and Mike Bull. HR: Richmond — Pat Van Hest, Armitage.

Title retained

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) — Rafael Orono of Venezuela retained his World Boxing Council super flyweight title Monday night with a controversial draw against challenger Willie Jensen of Detroit.

Many ringsiders felt Jensen had a clear advantage over Orono.

Rugby selections

Seven Island players have been named to the British Columbia squad that will compete in the Canadian junior (19 and under) rugby championship at Edmonton, Aug. 29-31.

The Islanders are Neil Paterson, Robert Frame, Steve Selina, Mike Humphries, Chris Snape, Mark Wyatt and Ross MacLean.

Coach of the 23-players squad is Blaise Macdonald of Victoria.

Seven provinces will take part in the tournament, which will be a round-robin affair for the first two days.

B.C. has drawn defending-champion Ontario in its first match.

Drivers share alike on harness winners

There was something a little different at Sandown Harness Raceway Tuesday night.

There were the usual 10 races, but this time the pots were shared evenly by 10 different winning drivers and leader Joe Hudon wasn't one of them.

And in the feature, a new name appeared on top.

Driver-trainer Al Bowman was in the sulky for Red Tip, an eight-year chestnut gelding, owned by T. Atkinson of Surrey, in the one mile claiming handicap $1,700 pace and it seemed only deserving.

Red Tip had been third five times and second once in his last six races here. He returned $11.10.

Hudon's big moment lost was with the heavily-favored Mr. Graham Bell in the eighth, but Mr. Graham Bell broke stride and front-running Holridge Gringo, driven by Ernie Arsenault, was a $34.90 overlay.

There was a surprise in the mutuels in the third when the favored Hidden Time, driven by Lou Virag, captured the ⅝-mile pace and combined with second-place Senga Carter for a whopping $191.60 Exactor.

But that didn't hold a patch on what was to follow in the 10th.

The overlooked Sugar Hill Trophy, driven by Greg Tonkin, got away at 8-1, returned $18.80 as the winner and combined with Little Duster and Ray for a healthy $690.90 Triactor.

Racing resumes Thursday.

Air fares can be cut for alternate events

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Civil Aeronautics Board has decided that United States and foreign air carriers can offer free or reduced fares to athletes, trainers, coaches and others participating in sporting events conducted for those nations boycotting the 1980 Summer Olympics in Moscow.

The board acted on a request by Pan American World Airways, which said that U.S. Olympic Committee travel funds are not sufficient to cover all the transportation costs for alternate events planned in several cities throughout the world in the next five months.

Athletes and others designated by the USOC are eligible for the free or reduced fares.

Canadians trail

VANCOUVER — Victoria's Nancy Callan and partner Heather Kuznick of Carrying Place, Ont., Tuesday won their best-ball match but Canada continues to trail in the Helen Lengford junior women's international golf event.

After four rounds, California leads the four-team event. The United States is in second place followed by the International team and then Canada.

Callan, the British Columbia junior women's champion, lost her first-round singles match to Californian Joanne Casillio, who was fourth in the recent world championships.

View Royal settlement plan update

View Royal's settlement plan is being revised for the first time since decisions were made to build the new Victoria General Hospital on Helmcken and to install sewers in the community.

Residents who want the community to develop slowly — and who opposed the hospital and the sewers — are expected to object to further development. People wishing to sell land can be counted on to support increased development.

View Royal's regional director Al Beasley said today revision is necessary not only because the Municipal Act calls for a review every five years but because the community is being flooded with development requests.

"You can only put your finger in the dike so long and we think it's a good idea to be prepared," he said.

In recent months the Capital Regional District has considered more than 30 subdivision applications for View Royal and Beasley says more are coming.

Even with the existing settlement plan, which was written more than five years ago, the subdivision capacity allowed in the existing plan could result in a doubling of the population.

Because sewers will soon be installed in the entire community, the minimum lot size in much of the community has been reduced to 7,500 square feet from the previous minimum of 10 acres that has existed since 1976.

Al Lubkowski, the planner doing the revision, said he wants to see the community develop in the most desirable way.

"You can't stop the development completely but you can plan for it and make the best of it," he said.

A number of preliminary public meetings have already been held and Thursday an open house at the View Royal Community Hall from 2 to 10 p.m. is scheduled to show the results of those meetings and outline some of the options for the community.

Some of the main subjects to be considered in the revision process:

— The lack of waterfront land for public use.

— A shortage of convenient local shopping facilities.

— Commercial facilities which will become increasingly necessary when the new hospital is opened.

View Royal has little public park property on the waterfront and Beasley and Lubkowski say public property might be obtained if the community is interested in permiting cluster developments of higher density housing in return for a trade of land.

Totem fire cost climbs

Replacement of the totem poles burned in a fire at Thunderbird Park on Monday will cost $700 a foot, a spokesman for the B.C. Buildings Corp. said today.

Don Williams, an area manager for BCBC, said the damage estimate from the fire has also been revised upwards. The total bill will probably be around $250,000.

There were 60 feet of poles being worked on inside the carvers' longhouse which burned and two other finished totems outside — replicas of 19th century poles found up-coast — which were charred. Replacement cost for the poles alone will be $84,000.

The question of who will pay for the losses now is in the hands of insurance adjusters, Williams said. BCBC insured the building, the Provincial Museum had its own insurance on the totem poles and the contractor who was working inside when the fire broke out carried $500,000 coverage.

There are definite plans to rebuild the carvers' building, but it may not be in the same form.

"The whole thing is going to have a rethink," said Williams.

Trestle fire knocks out railway line

REPUBLIC, Wash. (AP) — A fire that engulfed a Burlington Northern railway trestle between Republic and Grand Forks has put one line out of service, officials say.

A railway spokesman said the Monday morning blaze damaged the bridge over Curlew Lake beyond repair. Ferry County deputy Robin Patrick said the bridge was 80 per cent destroyed. The cause of the fire is undetermined.

Firefighters prevented the trestle fire 16 kilometres south of the Canadian border from spreading to nearby woods.

Burlington Northern said an alternative line through Kettle Falls will be used while the line is closed.

Pollution decreases at three locations

New tests show pollution has decreased at Willows Beach, Prospect Lake and the Esquimalt Lagoon at Portsmouth Drive.

Samples taken at three locations on Willows show averages of fecal coliform bacteria have dropped from 139 to 91, 143 to 89 and gone up from 36 to 38 at a third spot.

Regional health officer Dr. Allen Arneil said extra testing was done last week at Willows with one area tested daily and other samples taken from the sea itself.

He said there is no single reason that pollution appears to have decreased.

It could be a combination of conditions, such as weather or tightening up of cross connections for storm drains.

The maximum permissible standard for swimming is 200 coliforms over a five-week period.

The count at the northern part of Prospect Lake went from 334 to 150 while the Lagoon count was down from 355 to 140.

Arneil said Prospect Lake would remain posted for pollution but if next week's count is still lower than 200 the sign would come down.

Counts at Cordova Bay, and from Ogden Point around to McMicking Point in Oak Bay, are so high the Capital Regional District has stopped taking samples. Four areas in the last testing at Cordova Bay had counts of 429, 348, 1,295 and 785.

St. Mary's Lake, part of Weir's Beach, Kemp Lake, Glintz Lake and Young Lake have the cleanest waters with counts of either three or four.

Arneil noted that two samplings taken near the Macaulay Point outfall had some of the lowest counts in the regional district. Saxe Beach had a count of five while Flemming Beach's count was 11.

He said he intends to make a full presentation on the monitoring of beaches when the Capital Regional District's health committee meets next week.

Study backs aluminum foundry

A $40-million aluminum foundry to produce castings for the automobile industry could be a viable operation in B.C., says a pre-feasibility study conducted for the provincial government.

The study, conducted by a Vancouver consulting firm and tabled Tuesday in the legislature by Industry Minister Don Phillips, recommends a Lower Mainland site because of the availability of secondary aluminum — used in the casting process — and the necessary backup services.

The foundry would employ about 300 persons.

Phillips said the study was commissioned because of concerns that the value added to the primary production of aluminum at the Aluminum Co. of Canada smelter at Kitimat in northwestern B.C. is somewhat limited and to examine the steadily developing market for aluminum castings.

The use of aluminum in automobiles is on the rise as the industry faces increased pressure to produce lighter, more fuel-efficient vehicles.

The study says projections for consumption of permanent and semi-permanent mold castings by the North American automotive industry range from 350 million pounds to 700 million pounds annually by 1975.

"In addition, Japanese automobile manufacturers are coming under increasing pressure in Japan and the U.S. to establish assembly operations in North America," the study says.

Phillips said the favorable study gives the aluminum companies an opportunity to carry on some negotiations with the automobile industry.

"It points out that indeed there is a growing demand for cast aluminum parts in the automobile industry and indeed the industry would be feasible and we will be pursuing it," he said.

Frank Howard (NDP-Skeena) criticized the study and Phillips for suggesting a Lower Mainland site, saying northern B.C. is sick and tired of being suppliers of raw materials for others.

"We've got a primary aluminum smelting process in Kitimat that pours the stuff out into ingots," he said. "That seems to me to lend itself to further processing or manufacturing in that area."

The study says the most challenging aspect of the project is likely to be securing the market, suggesting the shipment of unfinished castings would be more acceptable to North American and Japanese automotive companies.

"This would leave the high-tolerance finishing operations under their direct control, and also would avoid displacement of the labor involved in the finishing operation," it says.

Emergency debate sought on comptroller resignation

The NDP opposition called for an emergency legislative debate Tuesday on the resignation of B.C. Comptroller-General Lionel Bonnell.

But acting Speaker Walter Davidson turned down the request, saying the matter could be debated during the estimates of the finance ministry.

"The issue is not one man's departure from government. The issue is how the government is to be held accountable for its use of public funds," Ernie Hall (NDP-Surrey) told the house.

Bonnell resigned Monday after losing a backroom struggle to retain his power and independence within the finance ministry.

A ministry reorganization would downgrade the position of comptroller-general and undermine its traditional independence, Bonnell maintained.

"The office of comptroller-general must be independent of the bureaucracy and the politicians in order to do its job," said Hall.

"The house needs to determine fully and completely that sound financial management and accountability is in place."

Hall told reporters the legislature must satisfy itself that the continuing audit of the government's day-to-day accounts is being properly carried out.

Bonnell, meanwhile, has instituted legal action against Finance Minister Hugh Curtis for changing the conditions of employment so he could no longer do the job he was hired to do.

"I would not have taken this position had these changes been brought to my attention prior to uprooting my family and moving to Victoria," he said.

He came to the job of comptroller-general in September, 1978, from a senior civil service position in Ottawa.

Jordan to lead Japan promo

Tourism Minister Pat Jordan announced Tuesday she will lead a mission to Japan Oct. 14-26, with the aim of solidifying B.C.'s position in the Japanese tourist market.

B.C. played host to 61,500 Japanese visitors in 1973 and 70,480 in 1979 and Jordan said things look good for another increase this year.

However she added: "We mustn't satisfy ourselves with the status quo. We have a commanding lead in that market now, and we must maintain it."

Tourist industry representatives will pay their own way to accompany the minister as she promotes B.C.'s tourist attractions in Tokyo, Osaka and Nagoya.

Jordan said she hopes the mission will include a good cross-section of the industry so it can make the strongest possible impact on Japanese travel agents, tour operators and travel writers.

Outlines of the planned visit have been sent to all sectors of the travel and hospitality industries in the province and members of the delegetaion will be chosen by a selection committee.

NDP attacks B.C. Place expropriation powers

The New Democratic Party, in a reversal of traditional roles, has accused the Social Credit government of attacking the concept of private ownership of property.

The opposition objects to "outrageous" expropriation powers proposed for the new Crown-owned company, B.C. Place Ltd., which will oversee construction of the B.C. Place-Stadium development in Vancouver's False Creek area.

The British Columbia Place Act, introduced in the legislature Tuesday, would give the company the same broad powers of expropriation as B.C. Hydro.

"The bill is an extreme measure by a government that is willing to attack the concept of private ownership of land for the purpose of putting up their public circuses," said NDP critic Gary Lauk.

"It is one thing to expropriate for a major utility that is essential to the economic and social well-being of the province. It is another thing to put in a severe expropriation law for the purpose of putting up a monument."

He said there will be virtually no actual expropriation in the False Creek area since the 120-acre property will be acquired in a land swap with Marathon Realty, real estate arm of the CPR.

The only reason B.C. Place Ltd. needs the expropriation power is to satisfy Marathon's demands, Lauk charged.

"Marathon will go around fingering property they want and the government, through this corporation, will expropriate it and swap it to Marathon. There can be no other explanation."

The minister responsible for B.C. Place, Stephen Rogers, told reporters the expropriation powers are not unusual.

They will be used only if necessary, to acquire small bits of property in the False Creek area not owned by Marathon, he said.

Lauk termed the minister's explanation unbelievable and unacceptable.

"You don't put in that kind of expropriation provision for the odd little house in the way. And there are no little houses in the way," he said.

NDP leader Dave Barrett said the Socreds would have raised the roof if his government had tried to bring in such a bill.

"Allan Williams, when he was in opposition, if he saw a bill like this, he'd be leading a demonstration on the lawn. Garde Gardon would be uncontrollable. Pat McGeer would come in from outer space. They'd be mobilizing every Socred from here to New Zealand," said Barrett.

Lauk said Attorney-General Williams should refer the expropriation section of the bill to the Supreme Court for a ruling on its constitutionality.

"Since the Magna Carta, the taking of private property simply for establishing monuments to the Crown has been discouraged by the courts and by the will of the people," he said.

Lauk said another section — which would permit B.C. Place Ltd. to spend money without legislative approval — should also be put to the test.

"It seems to offend the principle that the government cannot delegate its fundamental power over finance to a Crown corporation," he said.

Memorial flight for crash victims

A specially-equipped Hercules aircraft from CFB Greenwood in Nova Scotia will descend into tiny Alert in the Arctic on Thursday.

Aboard will be 18 relatives of nine men who died when a Lancaster bomber crashed there 30 years ago while carrying out a routine parachute re-supply mission.

The men — seven airmen and two scientists — died after the big cargo chute tangled in the plane's tail elevators and the bomber nose-dived into the ice.

Along with the 18 relatives will be 22 members of the Canadian armed forces who will conduct a memorial service and lay wreaths at each gravesite near the runway where the bomber went in. There, a stone cairn sits on a plain overlooking the Lincoln sea.

The crash was the only one during almost 40 years in which military aircraft have been supplying the station.

Squadron, SEAC planning reunion

The 435-436 Burma Star Squadrons Association and South East Asia Command Associates will hold their annual reunion in Vancouver Aug. 7-10 at the University of B.C.

Highlights will include a mountain ride on the Royal Hudson steam locomotive, a salmon barbecue at Squamish and a reception and banquet.

Three Conservative MPs — Vince Dancer of North Okanagan, Fred King of South Okanagan and Alvin Hamilton from Saskatchewan — will be among the members attending.

The reunion is open to post-war and serving members associated with either of the squadrons and any SEAC Associates.

Further information can be had by contacting Barney Nunns at: Apartment 701, 2167 Bellevue Avenue, West Vancouver, V7V 1C1. He can be contacted by phone at either 683-6968 or 926-0561.

Fraser Valley B.C. Tel workers remain off job

VANCOUVER (CP) — More than 130 telephone workers refused to work again Wednesday in B.C. Tel's lower Fraser Valley district, halting construction, installation and repairs in the area for the second consecutive day.

The employees, members of the Telecommunications Workers Union, work out of Langley, Cloverdale, Ladner, Newton, Whalley and White Rock.

The company has asked the employees to return to work and resolve any differences concerning work assignments through normal grievance procedures.

The walkouts followed an incident Monday when two construction workers were sent home after refusing to carry out installation and repair work assignments, a B.C. Tel spokesman said.

Before the judge

"It's time we stopped fooling around with him," Judge Blake Allan said in provincial court Tuesday before jailing an 18-year-old for 10 days.

Randall Horne, 502 Ridgebank, pleaded guilty to a breach of probation in connection with an order of restitution made in March when he received a conditional discharge on a charge of theft of automobile parts.

At that time, Horne was placed on six months probation to include 40 hours community service work. He also was to repay $24.50.

The court was told Horne, despite promises to the contrary, continually failed to make the restitution.

A probation officer said Horne needs special counselling.

Blake thought not, saying punishment seemed more in order.

"He's been given every opportunity to comply with the order of the court," said Allan.

The mother of a 20-year-old city man was unable to get a peace bond sworn against him.

Harvey Page, no fixed address, refused to acknowledge that his mother, Jane, of 1360 Craigdarroch, had cause to fear injury from him. This necessitated a later hearing.

Allan released Page on bail but he must have no contact with his mother or father, George Harvey Page, other than through his lawyer.

Page was remanded until Aug. 5 to seek counsel when a date for the peace bond hearing will be set.

14 days on knife count

William Lawrence Hewer, 20, of Maple Ridge, was sentenced in Victoria county court Tuesday to 14 days in jail for possession of a knife for a purpose dangerous to the public peace in Saanich on Feb. 10.

Judge E.J.C. Stewart said the sentence would have been more severe but Hewer has been in custody more than two months.

Court was told Hewer was drunk and leaped from some bushes and brandished a knife when several women left a party. He had not been at the party.

Stewart said the idea of someone running around scaring innocent young women has some frightening aspects but noted the prosecution did not seek a severe punishment.

Toronto classical guitarist Liona Boyd caught the attention of billionaire Sheik Adnan Kahashoggi at a Monte Carlo concert, so the flamboyant Saudi Arabian flew her to Nice to perform for the weekend aboard his yacht. Boyd broke off recording an album to attend the private party.

Terry Fox, the one-legged runner who has captured the hearts of Canadians, reached Gravenhurst and stopped to celebrate his 22nd birthday at a civic reception in that town about 160 kilometres north of Toronto. Fox, who lost his right leg to cancer three years ago, is attempting to run almost 8,500 kilometres across Canada to raise money for cancer research. Earlier in the day, after passing through nearby Orillia, he gained added encouragement for his "marathon of hope" from Steve Milton, sports editor of the Orillia Packet, said the accomplishments of Canada's two athletes of the year last year — racing car driver Gilles Villeneuve and golfer Sandra Post — pale by comparison with Fox's achievement, and that the latter should get this year's award. "Fox will run close to 200 daily marathons, more than even the best distance runner will go in a lifetime," Milton wrote. Doug Alward, close friend and manager of Fox's crusade, said some people had recommended the native of Port Coquitlam be made a companion of the Order of Canada.

Foreign ownership of things Canadian may reach a pinnacle — Canadians could have a U.S. president as a landlord. Independent presidential candidate John Anderson rents a house in Washington to the Canadian Embassy for $19,800 a year. The white-haired Illinois congressmen could end up in the White House if rival candidates Republican Ronald Reagan and Jimmy Carter bungle badly in the presidential campaign.

Two young French women are trekking across the U.S. in true Western fashion: horse and wagon. Chantal Herbe, 25, and Isabelle Briand, 22, said they both left "a boring desk job" in France to find some adventure. They left Montreal after a winter working several jobs to finance the trip. Iron rims on the wagon wheels have kept the women off main highways, and the horses have kept them from motels. For accommodation, they need "farm homes, ones with a barn."

Dear Abby:

I just turned 15. I had a baby girl in May of this year. The baby's father is 16. He said he would marry me, but I wasn't ready to get married at the time, and I'm still not. He is in no position to be a husband and father either.

I had plans to put the baby up for adoption, but I changed my mind. The baby is under temporary foster care now, and there will be a court hearing in September, so I have to make up my mind.

My parents want nothing to do with this baby. They think I should adopt it out. I really want to keep her, but the people at the Welfare Department are giving me a hard time. They don't think I'm capable of taking on so much responsibility at my age.

They may be right, but I'd like to try.

Please tell me what to do.

All Torn Up

Dear Torn:

You need much more help than I can give you in this column. Expert counselling is available to you without cost from your local Planned Parenthood chapter, Family Service Association or mental health clinic. Please call one of those facilities (they are listed in your directory) and tell them Abby suggested you call.

You have already shown mature judgement by refusing a hasty marriage and considering adoption for the child.

You need to sort out your thoughts, plan for your future and then decide what will be best for a) the baby and b) yourself. I have confidence in your ability to make the right decision. Good luck and God bless. And please let me hear from you again. I care.

Dear Abby:

I am a widow, and I frequently travel with other widows. When we go into a restaurant, the waitress will invariably ask, "One cheque, or two?"

Abby, women rarely pay for each other's meals, and it gets to be quite embarrassing at times.

Please inform waitresses that when two women dine together, she should make out separate cheques. If one woman has planned on paying for the other, she can pick up both cheques. Most women pay their own way when travelling.

Separate Cheques

Dear Separate:

Thanks for the "tip," which I shall pass on to the waiters and waitresses of the world.

Dear Abby:

I am a shoplifter. I started out as a teenager taking small, inexpensive items, and I always got away with it. I kept telling myself it would be the last time, but I just couldn't stop. I didn't take anything for over a year. Then it happened again. I just had to take something! As I was walking out of the store, I was stopped and caught with something marked $1.99, but ended up paying a $250 fine plus the hurt. Don't do it kids.

Turkish cut-up a real delight

By PAUL MINVIELLE

What does Turkey have to do with watermelon?

Well, Istanbul is where Mickey Dean used to watch his father carve watermelons, and the end result of Turkish-style watermelon cutting is a masterpieee of . . . hortisculpture.

Dean is retired now, but he's as active as they come, fighting at the drop of a worthwhile cause.

His early years in Canada were spent with the circulation promotion departments of Vancouver newspapers, and when Dean isn't telling jokes he's regaling his audience with tales of news gathering in the lower Mainland.

Dean was invited to the Times to demonstrate his cutting prowess for lensman Bill Halkett.

Butcher knife flashing, he launched into a monologue that was at least as entertaining as his antics with the juicy fruit.

Asked what the Turks call the traditional watermelon cutting technique, Dean deadpanned, "The Turkish art and technique of watermelon cutting."

Sorry we asked.

Anyway, what follows are Mickey Dean's instructions, exclusive to our readers, on how to cut a watermelon properly.

If your watermelon is ripe and fresh, you'll end up with the sweet centre separate and seedless. The outer part will be less sweet but still seedless.

So, spread your table with plastic and newspapers, follow the pictures and enjoy your watermelon, Turkish style.

Dean stands the 15-pound test melon on its end and neatly slices off two inches from the top end (1).

He then cuts a circular, two-inch-deep slit into the red flesh, about a half-inch in from the rind (2).

Putting the tip of the knife at this slit, Dean then slices down through the rind, at roughly three inch intervals (3).

The next move is more than pure showmanship and the first few times you do it you'll leave the kids gasping.

Dean replaces the top he cut off earlier and gives the melon a solid thump (4).

While Dean's result was less than perfect (5), it was nonetheless impressive. Dean says anyone can do it perfectly with a fresh watermelon.

This leaves a solid sweet core and cut-up outer portions (6).

Using fingers and knife, Dean scoops and scrapes away the seeds from the core and then chops it into two-inch slices.

Dean turns an outer slice rind side up and gives it a thump with the knife handle.

An incredible number of seeds just fall off.

Dean then runs the knife under the meat, separating it from the rind, and the rinds are great for kids who love to bury their noses in their food.

Dean is more than a Turk; he's a Turkish treat.

By DR. L.L. COLEMAN

The idea of hypoglycemia has for years captivated the attention of a great many people. The popularization of this "sophisticated" diagnosis by the lay press has led to some confusion. Many people who complained of sweating, palpitation, fatigue and light-headedness, especially hours after eating, were suspected of having hypoglycemia. This led to a rash of glucose tolerance tests that almost was epidemic in proportion.

It came as a surprise when the Mayo Clinic recently reported a study that emphasized that these same symptoms can result from psychological problems, and not necessarily from any change in the blood sugar levels.

In a study of 129 cases, 98 patients had distinct psychological problems that accounted for their symptoms. Of course, the Mayo Clinic does not deny the existence of hypoglycemia as a medical problem. They simply want to emphasize the fact that both physical and psychological patterns should be studied among people who seem to have "typical hypoglycemic symptoms."

The March of Dimes Birth Defects Foundation was created in 1970. Its purpose was to develop a nationwide network of nearly 100 genetic service programs in medical centres across the continent. This relatively young medical service of genetic counseling has already proven valuable to a large number of families concerned about birth defects.

These genetic centers offer consultation and advice to coulpes who are in a state of confusion as to whether or not to have a child. Recommendations are made for highly technical genetic studies. In addition, there may also be counseling for psycho-social and even economic problems that may exist.

Such comprehensive genetic evaluation undoubtedly will pay many dividends in the prevention of birth defects.

Not so hopeful news...

The recent explosion of interest in roller skating has brought with it a tremendous increase of injuries. In the past year, almost 100,000 injuries were brought to the attention of emergency rooms all over the country.

Many of these injuries involved the wrist. Fractures of the wrist, dislocation of the shoulder and elbows, injuries to the neck and skull trauma were most common.

Roller skaters must be taught to know their limits, to use excellent equipment and protective devices available.

Tea drinking in the UK once considered a sin

By SHERRI BARRON

LONDON (CP) — There is a notorious brand of tea they still sell in jolly old England known as the Explosive Gunpowder Green.

Drop into any quaint little tearoom and ask for an afternoon cup of the green-leaf tea and chances are you'll get your steaming brew without your waiter so much as batting an eye.

Why should he? Britain is, after all, still the nation of tea-drinkers, isn't it?

Since you may never again stumble upon an eager history buff who just happens to specialize in the advent of tea to this demi-paradise, prepare to hear a scandalous tale.

Tea came first to Britain around the end of the 17th century and green China tea (that's the unfired — as opposed to black — variety) appeared first.

At the time when most new things fell under suspicion merely because they were new, so it was with tea.

English sailors called it Gunpowder Green because, they said, it reminded them of gunpowder.

Rumors soon circulated that this new brew was an aphrodisiac. The ghastly thought was hard to swallow at a time when the beverage was already being served to children from age three upwards.

As the 1800s rolled in, sipping tea was considered, for a time, more sinful than beer-drinking.

There is still no evidence to support the rumor say tea manufacturers.

But Gunpowder Green faded slowly from the scene and has since become more popular abroad, particularly in North Africa, where it is often mixed with fresh mint and served as a cool drink.

Britain remains full of tea-tales and the brew is still both loved and loathed. Tea manufacturers are beginning to wonder how much longer natives will prefer tea to coffee.

While the Tea Council boasts that 84 per cent of households still buy tea while only 51 per cent buy coffee, statistics show that in a country whose inhabitants once drank seven cups of tea to every one of coffee, the ratio has fallen to 2.5 to 1.

The Buddhist monks of Tibet now are reputed to be the world's most avid tea-drinkers. Thought to be chain-drinkers, they are said to consume between 50 and 80 cups a day.

Sweet and savory go great with rice

Rice and spice are much like Mutt and Jeff . . . they go well together because they are so unlike. Rice is a mild tasting grain that goes well with many flavors. Spices must be served with something else; preferably a mild tasting food so their characteristics will show up.

Spicy Rice is just such a dish. It blends the friendly flavors of cinnamon and allspice with salt, pepper and onions. These spices plus apple juice and raisins, when cooked with the rice, make a side dish that goes well with hamburgers as well as a poultry dish.

And a big plus is the fact that this recipe is easy to make and fits into the schedules of today's busy households.

Another easy recipe is one that poaches fish fillets in a delicious tomato and mushroom sauce. Here the seasonings are in the entree and the flavor has been carefully developed so that it is perfectly served with the mild-mannered rice.

SPICY RICE

- 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
- ⅔ cup coarsely chopped onions
- ¾ cup sliced celery
- 1½ teaspoons salt
- ¼ teaspoon round black pepper
- ¼ teaspoon ground cinnamon
- ⅛ teasoon ground allspice
- 1 tablespoon brown sugar
- 1 cup uncooked rice
- ½ cup raisins
- 2 cups apple juice
- ⅓ cup chopped nut meats, optional

Melt butter in a 2 or 3-quart saucepan. Add onions and celery. Cook until tender crisp. Add remaining ingredients except nuts. Bring to a boil; stir once or twice. Reduce heat, cover, and simmer 20 to 25 minutes or until rice is tender and liquid is absorbed. Remove from heat and fluff with a fork. Replace cover and let stand 5 to 10 minutes. Add nuts before serving. Makes 6 servings.

Each serving provides: 237 calories.

SPANISH-STYLE FISH FILLETS

- ¾ cup chopped onions
- ¾ cup chopped green pepper
- 2 cloves garlic, crushed
- 3 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 1 can (14½ to 16 oz.) tomatoes, chopped
- 1 can (4 oz.) sliced mushrooms with liquid
- 1 small bay leaf
- ¼ teaspoon thyme leaves
- ¼ teaspoon ground black pepper
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 6 medium fish fillets (about 1½ pounds)
- ¼ cup flour seasoned with salt and pepper
- 3 cups hot cooked rice

Cook onions, green pepper and garlic in 1 tablespoon butter until tender. Add tomatoes, mushrooms, and seasonings. Cover and simmer about 20 minutes or until flavours are well blended. Meanwhile, roll fillets in seasoned flour. Saute fish in 2 tablespoons butter until golden brown on each side. Pour sauce over fillets; cover and simmer about 10 minutes or until fish flakes easily with a fork. Serve with mounds of fluffy rice. Makes 6 servings.

Each serving provides: 241 calories.

Marshmallows better 'n' bought

By CRAIG CLAIBORNE
New York Times

A good many years ago I first became aware that thoughts and utterances about specific foods tend to go in cycles. Random examples: Years go by and you never hear the word kedgeree (an Indian boiled rice and fish dish popular in England). And then, for no explicable reason, you will get three requests within the course of a month for a recipe for kedgeree.

Not long ago I received correspondence from four people living in different parts of the country asking for a recipe for soda crackers. I was unable to supply one and have never seen one in print.

The thought recurred recently when I was suddenly besieged by requests from readers for homemade marshmallows. Now it so happens that I list marshmallows, homemade or otherwise, among the many foods for which I have no enthusiasm (the others include peanut butter and grape jelly sandwiches, pretzels and marzipan). On the other hand, there is a recipe for homemade marshmallows in an excellent, recently published book called Better Than Store Bought, by Helen Witty and Elizabeth Schneider Colchie (Harper & Row, $12.95). I am told that the marshmallows produced by this recipe are better than those bought in the store.

MARSHALLOWS

- ¼ cup cornstarch
- ⅓ cup confectioners' sugar or, preferably, powdered vanilla sugar (see recipe)
- 1 envelope unflavored gelatin
- ⅓ cup water
- ⅔ cup granulated sugar
- ½ cup light corn syrup
- Pinch of salt
- 1 teaspoon vanilla extract.

1. Sift the cornstarch and confectioners' sugar (or powdered vanilla sugar) into a bowl. Lightly grease an eight-by eight-inch baking pan and sprinkle one tablespoon of the cornstarch and sugar mixture into it. Tilt the pan in all directions to coat the sides as well as the bottom. Leave any excess in the pan.

2. Sprinkle the gelatin into the water in a small saucepan and let soak for five minutes. Add the granulated sugar and stir over moderately low heat until the gelatin and sugar dissolve.

3. In the large bowl of an electric mixer, combine the gelatin mixture, corn syrup, salt and vanilla and beat for 15 minutes on high speed, until peaks form.

4. Spread the fluffy mixture in the prepared pan and smooth the top. Leave for two hours or until set.

5. With a wet knife, cut the marshmallow mixture into quarters and loosen around the edges. Sprinkle the remaining cornstarch and sugar mixture on a baking sheet and invert the marshmallow blocks onto it. Cut each quarter into nine pieces and roll each one in the starch and sugar.

6. Place the marshmallows on a cake rack covered with paper towels and let them stand overnight to dry the surface slightly. Store airtight; the marshmallows will keep for a month.

Yield: 3 dozen.

VANILLA SUGAR

Simply bury one, two or even more vanilla beans in a jar of sugar (granulated or powdered) and cover it with a tight lid. If you want the beans to flavor the sugar more quickly, cut them lengthwise with kitchen shears. Do this over the container of sugar so the tiny seeds — source of much of the flavor — will land where they belong.

Fine quality vanilla beans will aromatize for many months, so it's feasible to add more sugar as you use your supply. When the beans are quite dry, they can still be used to flavor custards or syrup before being discarded. Or powder them in a spice mill and use the mild vanilla "dust" as a flavoring.

The slight dampness of vanilla beans may cause powdered sugar to lump, but this is no problem if you sift it before using it.

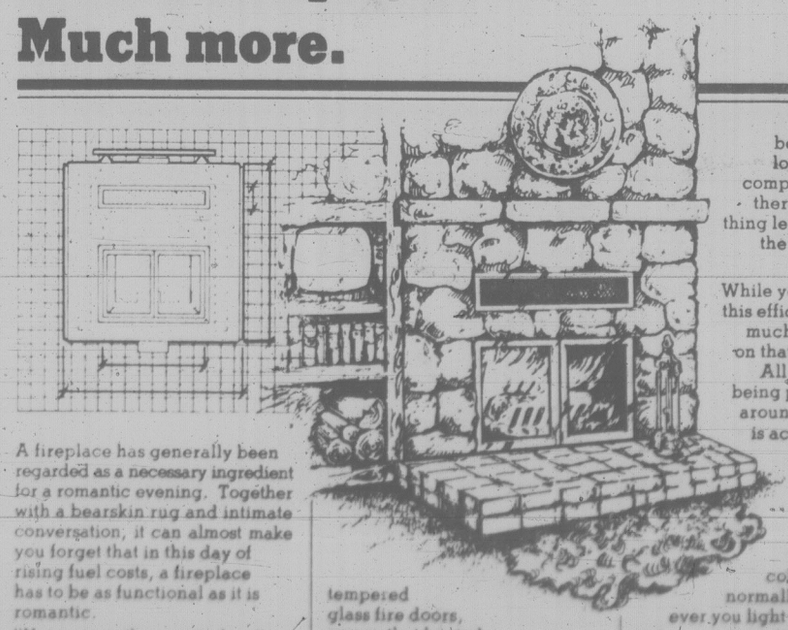
The Glow Boy is more than a fireplace.
Much more.
OPENING FOR DEMONSTRATIONS AUGUST 2nd IN VICTORIA



A fireplace has generally been regarded as a necessary ingredient for a romantic evening. Together with a bearskin rug and intimate conversation, it can almost make you forget that in this day of rising fuel costs, a fireplace has to be as functional as it is romantic.
"Not just another pretty face" has never been more applicable than with a Glow Boy Fresh Air Fireplace. The patented air flow chamber is the most efficient heat exchange system available and when combined with the tempered glass fire doors, means that heated fresh air flows into your home, and stays there.
Of course, some of the incoming air is used for controlling the way the fire burns. Now you don't need to burn as much wood because it burns longer and more completely. In fact, there's hardly anything left of wood after the Glow Boy gets done with it.
While you're watching this efficient fire burn, much more is going on that you can't see. All of the fresh air being pumped in and around the fireplace is actually building up the air pressure inside your home. The result is a reversal of those cold drafts which normally occur whenever you light a fire in a conventional fireplace.
You see, the Glow Boy Fresh Air Fireplace does what no other fireplace can do — it pressurizes your home with fresh, heated air. This not only eliminates cold drafts, but it also eliminates a dependance on high-cost energy.
So, sit back and relax on the bearskin, talk of intimate things, and enjoy a romantic evening with a Glow Boy Fresh Air Fireplace. And go ahead and forget about those rising fuel costs.

Snappy salads for summer can be prepared ahead with your favorite ingredients

Cool, tasty twosome for sunny mealtimes

If you want to spend the day enjoying the sunshine, these two recipes for Mexicali Ham Salad and Turkey Melon Supreme can be prepared ahead, so you can come home to a cool, refreshing meal.

Mexicali Ham Salad is a zesty, no-wilt dish with a Latin flair. Traditional favorites, ham and Swiss cheese, are teamed up with kidney beans and crunchy celery for a hearty main dish salad.

The salad dressing is a typical oil and vinegar blend accented with tomato juice and an envelope of chili seasoning mix. This combination of ingredients adds a tangy south of the border accent to the otherwise bland salad.

Turkey Melon Supreme can also be assembled early in the day and left waiting in the refrigerator ready to satisfy hungry appetites. An envelope of chicken gravy mix stirred into sour cream, with just a touch of lemon juice, gives a surprisingly unique and creamy dressing that enhances the delicate flavor of the turkey. Melon balls and chopped walnuts are a delightful addition to this salad.

Served with bread sticks or muffins and ice cream or sherbert for dessert, both of these recipes will add flavor and fun to your summertime activities.

MEXICALI HAM SALAD

- 1 envelope (1¾-oz.) chili seasoning mix
- 1 cup tomato juice
- ¼ cup vinegar
- ¼ cup oil
- 2 cups diced, cooked ham
- 1 can (14-oz.) kidney beans, drained and rinsed
- 2 cups chopped celery
- 1 cup diced Swiss cheese
- ½ cup chopped green pepper
- Lettuce

Combine seasoning mix, tomato juice, vinegar and oil in covered container; shake to blend. Combine ham, beans, celery, cheese and pepper; add enough dressing to moisten and toss lightly. Serve on lettuce. Refrigerate remaining dressing for use on any green salad, coleslaw, or bean salad. 4 to 6 servings.

TURKEY MELON SUPREME

- 1 envelope (⅞-oz.) chicken gravy mix
- ½ cup water
- ½ cup dairy sour cream
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice
- ½ cantaloupe or honeydew melon
- 2 cups diced, cooked turkey or chicken
- 1 cup finely chopped celery
- ½ cup chopped walnuts
- ¼ cup chopped green onions
- Lettuce

Combine gravy mix and water in saucepan; heat to boiling, stirring occasionally. Cool. Stir in sour cream and lemon juice. Cut melon balls from melon; combine with turkey, celery, walnuts and onion. Add dressing and toss. Serve on lettuce. 4 to 6 servings.

Holiday simplicity best for sitting out summer

your partner's cookbook

By MIKE McGRADY

The meals we serve for our most festive occasions — the turkey at Thanksgiving, the ham at Easter — are so simple to prepare, so unchallenging, that many cooks would just as soon sit out a holiday season.

Nothing is easier than cooking a non-holiday ham. Oh, I suppose you could buy an uncooked ham and cut away the mold and scrub it with baking soda and allow it to soak in a bathtub for a few days — but there's no reason not to buy a smoked or ready-to-eat ham. All you do then is heat it up, smear on a sauce, heat it some more and cut in very thin slices.

Since today's meal is built around such a simple theme, we'll make the rest of it a little more complicated. The five-day spinach, for example, refers not to the fact that the spinach ripens in five days or that it can be eaten over five days, but that it takes five days to cook. That's not so bad. To make a proper potatoes Anna can take a lifetime.

The Staples: Make sure these are all on hand: salt, pepper, mustard, beer, rum, whole cloves.

The Shopping List: One ham (12 to 14 pounds, precooked or smoked); three pounds potatoes; two pounds butter; two pounds fresh spinach (very fresh, if possible); five large bananas; one lemon; brown sugar.

Prepare in Advance: The spinach. Today's recipe for spinach was discovered by the famed food writer, Brillat-Savarin, who extracted it from a village priest famous for his spinach. Since I have known only one person who followed this recipe to the letter, I will offer a shorter version as well. (Significantly enough, the one person who went to the troulbe received such compliments that she now serves it at every dinner party.)

The First Day: Rinse the fresh spinach carefully, removing all traces of sand. Using a heavy but small casserole pot, melt a stick of butter over low heat. Add the rinsed spinach and cook slowly for a half hour, allowing the butter and the spinach to blend together. Turn off heat, allow pot to cool and put in refrigerator.

The Second Day: Put the pan back over a very low heat, add half a stick of butter to spinach and cook for 15 minutes; remove from heat and refrigerate.

The Third Day: Repeat. According to Brillat-Savarin, you must be careful here: "There will be an exceedingly tempting aroma. Do not be tempted."

The Fourth Day: And repeat the process again. ("The spinach will be giving an almost irresistible aroma. Resist.")

The Fifth Day: For the last time repeat the process and cook it over a low heat until the butter is fully absorbed by the spinach. And today you don't resist.

A shortcut: Cook the spinach in butter for 10 to 12 minutes or until tender.

3:30 p.m. (or earlier, for a smoked ham): Allow about 15 minutes a pound for heating up a ready-to-eat ham, about 25 minutes a pound for a smoked ham. Set the oven temperature for 325 degrees. Put in the ham. That's it, for a while.

5 p.m.: The potatoes Anna. Peel the potatoes and slice them very thin. Put them in a bowl of ice water. Butter the inside of a medium-sized casserole pot ad add a couple of layers of the sliced potatoes. Add dots of butter — perhaps a quarter stick — over the layer of potatoes ad a scattering of salt and freshly ground pepper. Now add more potatoes, add butter, salt and pepper. And s on until the potatoes are all in the casserole. Some also add grated onions and parmesan cheese, but that can wait for another time.

If you have a second oven, you'll cook the potatoes at 400 degrees for approximately an hour. If not, you'll have to cook them in the oven with the ham and allow at least half an hour and a quarter, probably longer. The potatoes are done when they're brown and crisp on the outside and steaming hot on the inside.

The proper way to serve potatoes Anna is to turn the pot upside down, forming a brown-surfaced mound of potatoes. (Danger! This first time, let's just spoon it directly from the casserole.)

5:45 p.m.: Oh, yes, the ham. Remove the ham from oven. If the ham has a rind, ct away the skin and much of the fat. Using a sharp knife, criss-cross the surface of the ham with lines. Insert whole cloves — three dozen of them — at the intersections of the cut lines.

Now mix together a cup of the brown sugar and three or four tablespoons of mustard. Add just enough of the beer to make this a paste. Smear the paste over the surface of the ham and return it to the oven. Repeat this two or three times during the baking time.

6:30 p.m.: The ham, the potatoes and the spinach should all be done and piping hot. As you remove the food from the oven, turn heat up to 425 degrees.

Put half a stick of butter in a heat-proof dish and melt in oven. (Incidentally, it strikes me that this is not a meal for anyone trying to cut down on butter.) Slice the bananas thickly. When When butter is melted, add sliced bananas and let stand on counter. Twelve minutes before the end of dinner, interrupt your repast to sprinkle dessert with the juice of one lemon and a dusting of brown sugar and return to oven for three or four minutes. Finally, add a third of a cup of rum, strike a match and serve it alight.

Ham and cheese luncheon snack is simple, out-of-the-ordinary fare

Cheese puffs store well

Cheese and ham puffs are sure to win compliments when served as a special luncheon dish. Easy to prepare in advance, they can also be made as bit-sized party treats for home entertaining.

CHEESE & HAM PUFFS
1 cup water
⅓ cup butter
½ tsp. salt
1 cup all-purpose flour
5 eggs
1½ cups shredded gouda or edam cheese
1 cup finely chopped cooked ham
¼ tsp. dry mustard

Measure water, butter and salt into a saucepan. Bring to boil. Add the flour all at once; stir vigorously until batter leaves the sides of the pan and a ball of paste forms. Remove from heat. Allow to cool about one minute. Add eggs, one at a time, beating vigorously after each addition until dough is smooth. Stir in shredded Holland cheese, chopped ham and dry mustard.

To oven bake: Place heaping tablespoonful mounds of mixture four inches apart on lightly greased baking sheet. Bake at 400°F for 25 to 30 minutes, until puffs are firm and golden brown.

To deep fry: Pour cooking oil into deep fryer or deep frying pan to a depth of two inches. Heat to 375-400°F. Drop tablespoonfuls of mixture into hot oil. Fry puffs, 8 to 10 at a time (turning each once or twice) until puffs are golden on all sides. Remove with slotted spoon; drain on paper towels. Serve immediately. Note: Puffs can be kept warm in the oven at a low temperature. Makes two to three dozen medium-size puffs.

For appetizer puffs: Drop teaspoonfuls of mixture onto lightly greased baking sheet and bake at 400°F for 15 to 20 minutes; or by deep fry method until golden brown. Makes four to five dozen appetizers.

Note: Both deep fried and baked puffs may be made in advance and frozen for later use. Simply reheat in oven at 350°F for approximately five minutes before serving.

Simple and fit for a duke

the 60-minute gourmet

The more I have thought about it over the years, the more I have been amused by the notion that most people believe fine French cookery demands many hours in the kitchen and tedious preparation.

One of the finest foods that I know — it is certainly a great personal favorite — is a pilaf of mussels bonne femme. This consists of mussels in a wine and cream sauce, served in either with rice on the side or with the mussels packed inside a rice mold. When I worked as chef at Le Pavillon, it was a dish that was asked for as often as not by such visitors as the Duke and Duchess of Windsor, Cole Porter and Ludwig Bemelmans, the writer.

It happens to be one of the simplest of all dishes to prepare, requiring little more than steaming mussels with parsley, shallots, onions and a little dry white wine. When the mussels open, they are shucked and set aside. The cooking liquid is made into a light white wine sauce to which quickly cooked fresh mushrooms are added.

There are two refinements that I always used when I served this dish at Le Pavillon. Mussels, as you know if you know your shellfish, have what resembles a tough-tender "string" around them when they are removed from the shell. It is similar to a rubber band. It is not essential that these be removed, but the mussels are a bit more elegant without them.

Then, when the mussels are combined with a little of the cream sauce, I would pack them into a rice mold, simply for the sake of presentation.

To do it, select a suitable bowl in which the rice and creamed mussels fit snugly. Pack in half of your cooked rice and make a well in the center, pressing the rice around the inside bottom of the mold. Add the mussels and pack in more rice. Invert this over a plate and serve quickly with the remaining sauce on the side. This makes a fine luncheon or supper dish. Add only a well chilled bottle of white Burgundy, a tossed salad and a simple dessert.

PILAF DES MOULES BONNE FEMME
(Mussels with rice)
6 pounds mussels, about 4½ quarts
4 tablespoons butter
¼ cup finely chopped parsley
4 tablespoons finely chopped shallots
2 tablespoons finely chopped onion
½ cup dry white wine
Freshly ground pepper to taste
½ pound mushrooms, thinly sliced, about 3 cups
3 tablespoons flour
¾ cup heavy cream
2½ cups cooked rice (see recipe).

1. The mussels should be thoroughly washed in cold water and scrubbed. Drain well.

2. Put the mussels in a large, heavy casserole and add two tablespoons of the butter, the parsley, half of the shallots, the onion, wine and pepper. Cover closely and cook about five minutes or longer, until the mussels are open.

3. Reserve the juice in a saucepan. There should be about three and a half cups of liquid.

4. Remove the mussels from the shells and set aside. It is good to remove the "rubber band" around each mussel.

5. Heat the remaining two tablespoons of butter in a saucepan and add the remaining shallots and mushrooms. Cook, stirring, until mushrooms are wilted. Add the flour, stirring rapidly with a wire whisk.

6. Add reserved mussel liquid, stirring rapidly with the whisk until thickened and smooth. Cook about five minutes, stirring often. Add the cream.

7. Put the reserved mussels in a saucepan and add about half a cup of the mussel sauce. Heat briefly.

8. There are two ways to serve this dish. You can serve the rice on individual plates with the mussels in sauce in the center and more sauce on the side. Or, if you want to be fancy, add about half of the rice to a round-bottomed five-cup mold and make a cavity in the center. Press the rice firmly to the sides of the mold. Put the mussels in the center of the cavity. Add the remaining rice. Press down to make the whole compact. Invert the mold onto a round serving dish. Spoon half of the sauce around it. Serve the remaining sauce on the side.

Yield: 4 to 6 servings.

RIZ PILAF (RICE)
2 tablespoons butter
3 tablespoons finely chopped onion
1 cup long-grain rice
1½ cups water
Salt and freshly ground pepper to taste
1 bay leaf
2 sprigs fresh parsley
3 sprigs fresh thyme
Tabasco sauce to taste.

1. Heat butter in saucepan and add the onion. Cook, stirring, until wilted.

2. Add the rice and stir. Add water, salt and pepper, bay leaf, parsley, thyme and Tabasco. Bring to a boil.

3. Cover and cook exactly 17 minutes. Remove the bay leaf and sprigs of parsley and thyme before serving.

Yield: About 2½ cups.

Snickerdoodle variation tastes terrific with tea

Biscerdoodle beats flummery and grunt

No berry in North America's history has been made into more dishes with crazy names than blueberries. It is said that the early homemakers did this to put some fun into their lives, which at times must have seemed a bit harsh.

So there are the classics: Blueberry Grunt and Slump and Mush and Flummery and Buckle. And even something better called Blueberry Biscerdoodles. This, we are told, is a biscuit version of the popular Snickerdoodles of New England tradition. Are you still with us? A Snickerdoodle is a drop cookie flavored with cinnamon and loaded with nuts, raisins and currants.

And what is a Blueberry Biscerdoodle, you may well ask? It is a drop biscuit rather than cookie. The dough is dropped by spoonfuls onto a cookie sheet, just like cookies. However, unique among blueberry biscuits, the Biscerdoodle puffs out into rather irregular shapes, amusing in themselves. Perhaps that's why the women gave the biscuit a special nonsense name.

There's no nonsense in the taste. The big beautiful blueberries perform their usual stellar service. They make biscuits, by any name, a big mealtime treat.

BLUEBERRY BISCERDOODLES

1 cup fresh blueberries, rinsed and drained
2 cups flour, sifted
3 teaspoons baking powder
2 tablespoons sugar
½ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons vegetable shortening
1⅓ cups milk

Sift together flour, baking powder, sugar and salt. Work shortening into dry ingredients until fully absorbed. Add milk and beat until smooth (about two minutes). Gently fold in blueberries. Drop batter by spoonfuls onto well-greased cookie sheet. Bake about 20 minutes in moderate oven (190°C. or 375°F.). Serve warm.

Yield: 12 large Biscerdoodles.

questions & answers

Q. You recently published a recipe for making marshmallows at home. The thing that puzzles me is how the name marshmallow came about. Can you tell me?

A. The first marshmallows were made from the root of a plant that is known as a marsh mallow (Althaea officinalis). I have not a clue as to how you would go about making marshmallows in the unlikely event that you came across a batch of that root. As you know, marshmallows today are made from sugar, water, gelatin and egg whites.

Q. In a book I am reading it is mentioned that the favorite dessert of Johann Strauss Jr. and Franz Joseph Strauss was "Kaiserschmarrn." Would you be kind enough to describe the dessert to me?

A. Kaiserschmarrn or emperor's pancakes are basically similar to French crepes. They are made with a blend of flour, sugar, eggs and milk and melted butter. German chefs sometimes use part cream and part milk as the liquid. The fillings for the German pancakes vary from currants and jelly, raisins and cinnamon, or various cooked fruits such as apricots, cherries, raisins and so on.

Q. I have a can of cocoa on my pantry shelf but have never known how to substitute this for recipes that call for melted chocolate. Can you tell me the difference between chocolate and cocoa and how to make a substitution?

A. Chocolate is a pure chocolate that contains a high amount of cocoa butter. Cocoa butter as such does not have a "chocolate" flavor. Cocoa is a pure chocolate with about three-quarters of its cocoa butter removed. For baking, you can substitute three tablespoons of cocoa blended with one tablespoon of shortening or oil for each one-ounce square of baking chocolate.

Q. A friend of mine and I were recently discussing salad dressings. She says that a sauce made with oil and vinegar is known as a vinaigrette sauce and that it would be incorrect to refer to an oil and lemon sauce as a vinaigrette. What do you think?

A. Technically, a sauce made with oil and lemon should not be called a vinaigrette. And as far as I know there is no word to refer specifically to an oil and lemon dressing. Someone has suggested citronette, but that sounds like a mosquito repellent. I feel quite certain that most French chefs would refer to an oil and lemon sauce as a vinaigrette, knowing that they were using the term loosely.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): You gain chance for greater freedom of expression. Emphasis on accelerated social activity, long-distance communication, news associated with education, advertising, publishing and travel. Gemini and Sagittarius natives play prominent roles — and so does the number 3.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): A delay of plans could actually be a surprise benefit. Know it and refuse to be discouraged. Be specific concerning details and seek frank appraisal of concepts and property. You will be dealing with confidential material. Aquarius and Scorpio persons figure prominently.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You obtain surprisingly quick answers to questions. Use written word to advantage. Romance, hopes, wishes dominate exciting scenario. Recent business investment is due to pay dividends. You are capable now of successfully articulating personal feelings — especially with family members. Do so!

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Responsibilities, pressures should be regarded as stepping-stones to progress. Deal diplomatically with persons in positions of authority. If careful, you need not be defeated by red tape. Check license, lease and other legal requirements, with close friend in business.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Perceive potential — steer clear of one who is aching for a fight. Emphasis on communication, travel, decisions affecting long-range plan. Pisces and Virgo natives figure prominently. See places and people in realistic light. News of publication is "on the way" to answer your long-held concerns.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Emphasis on taxes, credits, payments and collections. Partner or mate discusses plans involving major investment. Cancer and Capricorn persons play key roles. Delve beneath surface indications. Legal papers require review. One close to you confides secret which you may have already guessed.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Project or relationship is tested — you learn where you stand and what to do about it. Lunar emphasis on public response to your efforts, special agreement, partnership proposal and marital status. You are relieved of unnecessary burden. Aries and Scorpio people figure prominently.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Highlight fresh approach to special service, employment and obstinate relative. You get chance for new start. Leo and Aquarius natives figure prominently. You receive needed information concerning recreation, diet and nutrition. Avoid lifting heavy objects.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Emotions tend to dominate logic. Accent on creativity, children, special relationship and affair of heart. Cancer, Leo, Aquarius natives play significant roles. Intuitive intellect works overtime; you "wake up" with answers.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Restrictions are removed; you now are able to experiment, travel, express self in creative, artistic manner. Expand horizons. Look beyond the immediate — perceive potential. Bargaining position improves as you realize value of possessions.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Be flexible; avoid direct confrontations. Popularity increases as you turn on charm. Good Moon aspect promotes movement, travel and improved relations with those close to yuou. Review basic material. Locate "weak links." You can rebuild on solid base.

PISCES (FEb. 19-Mar. 20): You find ways of releasing funds which had been restricted. Cash flow resumes. Accent on protection of valuables, removing safety hazards, learning true worth of personal possessions. Significant change of plans will work to your benefit.

IF JULY 31 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY ... you are obstinate, creative and instinctively know what your goals are going to be even while trying to bring them into focus. It is likely that you were separated from one or both parents at a relatively early age. You don't "fit in" with majority — instead, you determine your own style and objectives. Scorpio, Taurus, Leo persons play important roles in your life. When you open a new deck of cards, you automatically seek the joker. Romance is highlighted for you in August. You will be in a new environment and the people you meet will be exciting and will represent healthy challenges.

Book relives empire modes

craig claiborne

We have had in our possession over the years a good many antique books that deal with housekeeping, cooking and family care, but none that intrigues us more than a volume that recently came into our hands. It is called The Complete Indian Housekeeper and Cook and it was published in London in 1898.

The thing that captivates us is the serious insight it gives into the lives of English families who resided in India during the days when Britannia ruled the waves and much of the world. The inscription is, "To the English girls to whom fate may assign the task of being housemothers in our Eastern empire." The book is marvelously revealing in its detailing of the duties of servants back in the days when the sun never set on the English empire.

There are many pages devoted to cookery under the Indian sun, keeping the servants in tow, and dress for various seasons. We learn that "a bicycle dress is as much a necessity in India as in England" and that if you travel up-country by train, it is well to "bring a feather chintz-covered pillow and an Austrian blanket or two."

The advice that really undoes us, however, is the chapter titled "On the Hills." It includes a list "showing the way in which the property of a family consisting of a lady, three or four children and an English nurse, might be packed and loaded."

It starts with "the first camel load." This would include two large trunks and two smaller ones with clothing. The second camel load would involve "one large trunk containing children's clothing, plate chest, three bags, and one bonnet box." The list continues through the 11th camel load with its "two boxes containing drawing room sundries, servants' coats, iron bath, cheval glass and plate basket."

"Camels travel," the text continues, "at the rate of three miles an hour, and personal luggage must be carried by mules or coolies."

"A piano," we are told, "requires a cart to itself," and "if the road is only a camel road, the piano must be carried by coolies, of whom 14 or 16 will be needed. Servants are best left to make their own arrangements for themselves and their goods. They will perch on carts, camels, and mules, much as birds of the air do; and they will quarrel among themselves."

There is a lovely footnote that informs us, "Breakables are preferably carried on mules; camels are not patient — except in poetry."

In response to an inquiry from a reader, I noted that a funeral pie was so named because it had good keeping qualities and that it was a custom in Pennsylvania Dutch country to send this pie to the members of the bereaved family. I pointed out that it was made with raisins, nuts and spices. I was taken to task by one reader for not publishing the recipe in toto. This is it:

FUNERAL PIE

Pastry for a two-crust nine-inch pie
2 cups raisins
1 cup orange juice
1 cup water
¾ cup plus 1 tablespoon sugar
2 tablespoons cornstarch
1 teaspoon allspice
½ cup chopped walnuts, pecans or other nuts
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 small egg, lightly beaten.

1. Preheat the oven to 425 degrees.
2. Line a pie plate with half the pastry.
3. Combine the raisins, orange juice and water in a saucepan. Bring to the boil. Reduce the heat and let simmer five minutes.
4. Combine the three-quarters cup sugar, cornstarch and allspice. Stir this into the raisin mixture. Cook, stirring, until thickened, about one minute. Stir in the nuts and lemon juice.
5. Pour the filling into the prepared pie plate. Cover with a top crust and flute the edges. Cut slits in the top of the pie to let steam escape.
6. Brush the top of the pie with a little beaten egg. Sprinkle with the remaining tablespoon of sugar.
7. Put the pie in the oven and bake 20 to 25 minutes or until the crust is golden and the filling bubbly. Let cool slightly before slicing. Serve with ice cream or sweetened whipped cream.

Yield: 1 nine-inch pie.

Too many people clutter P.A.'s 33,000-acre spread

By ROD EDWARDS

ELKWATER, Alta. (CP) — Running a 33,000-acre cattle ranch in the boondocks is no longer a guarantee of privacy for freedom-loving cowboys like Perry Alfred Yeast.

The plain-talking 63-year-old, known as P.A. to his friends, misses the days when this barren country was largely inaccessible, hidden behind the scenic Cypress Hills in southeastern Alberta.

"When he first came to this country there were no roads," said Yeast in a John Wayne monotone.

"I've been on the ranch here for four months and never gone to town. I thought nothin' of it. We'd get a load of grub in the fall and that would do us till spring."

But with the highways and fast cars have come the people. To Yeast, who moved onto his ranch in 1947, they're a nuisance. But he also knows they have to be tolerated.

"It seems nowadays they can't leave us alone any more. There's this fella comin' and that fella comin'," he said in an interview at his comfortable home built in a cozy, tree-lined coulee.

"It used to be you could sit on these ranches and see very few people. But now they got people huntin' bugs. I've got a man down here now studyin' the coyote.

"We still get a lot of interference from oil men. Farm analysts, government men bother us. But we have to put up with this. This is the change."

Yeast, who says the ranch he runs with two of his sons is not large compared with some others in the neighborhood, has about 900 head of cattle with 350 calves this year.

The only time a note of exasperation crept into Yeast's easy-going nature was during a discussion of land prices and the problems facing young men trying to start their own spreads.

When he broke out on his own, he paid about $150 a quarter section for his 33,000 acres, which is about 206 quarter sections.

"Today, they're paying up to $30,000 a quarter for it, which I think is ridiculous," said Yeast, a fifth-generation cattleman whose ancestors ranched in the United States.

"This land doesn't produce that much. To me, this corner of Alberta is the poorest land there is.

"If I was to sell this place to a young man or to my sons, they would have to live here till they were 100 years old and they'd never get me paid off."

Yeast said aspiring ranchers haven't got a chance to get ahead unless they have someone backing them.

"There's a lot of young boys who'd like to farm or have a ranch. They can't get it started. They go into town, they get into bad company. Pretty soon they're just a bunch of bums to me.

"The government only lends these boys enough money to get into a lot of trouble. They gotta get somebody to back them up or they're outa luck."

Being a rancher means long days of hard work, year-round: haying, calving, branding, hauling feed in the winter, moving cattle from spring pastures to summer pastures and then to winter quarters, constantly checking the cattle for disease and pests.

The most significant change in Yeast's days has been the machinery which has taken the place of horses on most ranches.

"And I'm gonna tell you somethin else. When they put the power in, and the telephone in, they made the country. The power especially."

Some disasters can't be avoided even with all the modern conveniences, machinery or medicines.

One such calamity struck Yeast in the winter of 1967, when a snow storm hit suddenly in December and he lost 30 head of cattle. Temperatures dropped to minus 40 C and the wind reached 80 kilometres an hour for three days.

"This was early in the year and a lot of cattle got caught out from the hollows and they froze to death. I seen cattle standing up froze to death.

"I never seen that in my life before. The old timers had told me about it but that's the first time I seen it."

Even some of the cattle that survived the storm died in the spring.

"When they get frozen like that, when spring comes and they thaw out they get a jelly under their hide and it all turns black and they get blood poisoning."

No-beards policy upheld the prairies

WINNIPEG (CP) — A union appeal of an arbitration board's decision upholding Canada Safeway Ltd.'s no-beards policy for employees has been dismissed in Manitoba Court of Queen's Bench.

Mr. Justice John Solomon ruled the arbitration board acted without bias and within its jurisdiction when it made the no-beards decision last month.

The board said Safeway was justified in asking shelf-stocker Dennis Last of Winnipeg to shave his beard.

He'll fight bill

PLUMAS, Man. (CP) — A farmer who ploughed part of Provincial Road 260 near here last year to protest its bad condition has been billed $1,919 for his action.

But Harold Kreutzer says he's not going to pay the provincial government.

"The road was no good anyway," said the Portage La Prairie farmer who has been given 30 days to pay his share of repairing the provincial road.

Charges stemming from the April 16, 1979, ploughing incident were dismissed in a Portage la Prairie court earlier this summer.

Cyclist wins bet

CALGARY (CP) — Lorne (Tiny) Tomlinson didn't make it to Calgary for the Stampede. But he did win his own pot of gold.

Last summer, Tomlinson bet former aldermanic candidate Doug Blair $10,000 he could ride his 10-speed bicycle from Florida to Calgary in less than two months.

Tomlinson made it, a mere 38 days after he started. But he doesn't expect to cash in on his bet.

"I don't think that guy has got that kind of money," he laughed.

Back to birthplace

LONDON (CP) — The Lord Mayor of London will revisit his birthplace of Mannville, Alta., this September for the first time since he left it more than 40 years ago.

Sir Peter Gadsden, born in Mannville, June 28, 1929, will spend Sept. 2 in the Alberta town during an official visit to Canada Aug. 29 to Sept. 8. He left Mannville at age 5.

Sit Peter will spend six days in Alberta, taking part in the province's 75th anniversary celebrations.

She can sue again

WINNIPEG (CP) — A woman seriously injured in an automobile accident six years ago has been given another chance to sue for damages under a private member's bill passed in the Manitoba legislature Monday.

The bill lifts the two-year statute of limitations and allows Ingibjorg Alda Hawes, 56, of Selkirk, Man. an additional 30 days to file a suit for damages arising out of the Dec. 15, 1974 accident.

Mrs. Hawes, sole support for her husband and four children who are still at home, recently quit her job because of the disabling effects of her injuries.

Boys land skate

Fishing off a Parksville area dock landed Gordon Powell, 1362 Lang, and his friend George Peterson, both 15, an 80-pound skate this week. The pair dropped a line baited with a salmon head at Schooner Cove Marina and needed a buoy gaff to land their catch, measuring nearly four feet across.

I sold the van I bought in Toronto two months ago. My wife and I packed it with all our furniture, even the lawnmower, and drove out. We camped in Thetis Lake Park while we looked for a house. We got cash for the van and found a perfect house to rent — both through classified ads in Victoria's daily papers. I'm a cartographer and my wife is an accountant, and we're both job-hunting, so you can be sure we'll be using the Daily Colonist and Victoria Times classified pages to help us find work.

Search for Titanic narrows

By ERIC SHORE
Cox News Service

MIAMI — A 37-man crew on the last leg of a three-week hunt for the Titanic has narrowed its search to a 10-square-mile area off the coast of Newfoundland and expects to find the long-lost wreck within a week.

Expedition leader Mike Harris, speaking via ship-to-shore radio from Bermuda, said that research completed last week has enabled him to cut back on the search area from what was originally a 30-square-mile area.

Harris' crew set sail on the H.J.W. Fay from Bermuda for the targeted North Atlantic region Friday morning with renewed confidence in finding the Titanic, which ran into an iceberg and sank 68 years ago.

Harris said the expedition had been stalled in Bermuda the past five days due to electronic problems on the expedition ship's sonar sled, Sea Marc I.

The sonar sled that will monitor the ocean floor while dangling from a 25,000-foot cable is a newly developed sonar system said to be capable of tracking a three-mile-wide patch of ocean bottom -- a revolution in deep-water expeditions.

"We were supposed to test-run the sonar on an old wreck, the Briggs, that the Navy gave us, but the equipment developed problems," Harris said.

"The sonar sled was assembled in only four months and is the only one of its kind. There's bound to be some bugs."

Harris estimates that the Titanic lies under 12,000 feet of water off the Grand Banks of Newfoundland.

"We hope to find the Titanic around the first of August," he said.

If the Titanic is found, Harris first will send down a camera cage to photograph the wreck.

The 175-foot research ship, H.J.W. Fay, was chartered in Port Everglades by Harris and Texas oilman Jack Grimm.

In the second phase of Harris's plan, due to be carried out next year, he'll use the Aluminaut, the world's deepest-diving submarine, reactivated for the Titanic adventure.

They will use the sub to go down to the Titanic, cut through its hull with acetylene torches, and send two cameras inside on mechanized robots.

The Aluminaut also has two eight-foot manipulators to retrieve and store salvaged pieces of the Titanic.

"I know that people have asked, especially the English, who will own any salvage from the Titanic," said Harris, "and as far as I know, we do — International Expeditions.

"Under international law, once a ship sinks and is considered lost, it is fair game for whomever spends the time and money to find it."

$31.5M more set aside to fund short-term jobs

OTTAWA (CP) — The government has earmarked a further $31.5 million for short-term jobs under a program called Canada Community Development Projects.

The employment department announced in a press release today that it will spend $103.5 million on the program, but a spokesman later said that includes $72 million set aside in June for the fiscal year ending March 31, 1981.

The program has been extended to cover two fiscal years.

The department said the program is expected to generate 19,400 jobs on community development projects which may last for eight weeks or for up to a year.

The money is to be distributed by constituency with each of the 282 federal ridings getting a minimum of $100,000. Ridings with more than eight per cent unemployment will receive additional money and $7 million has been set aside for ridings with high unemployment among natives.

The release also said $2 million will be saved until the fall and then distributed to areas where unemployment conditions may have worsened.

JOIN THE KRAFT Cheese Burger Cookout

Buy the fixin's and KRAFT will pay you $1.00

Buy any weight package of hamburger plus any size package of KRAFT Process Cheese Slices (SINGLES* or DeLuxe*) and a 500 mL jar of KRAFT Burger Sauce and get $1.00 back!

Enter our 'Cookout' Contest and you could win 1 of 20 ARKLA Festival Gas Grills!

Enjoy the great outdoor flavour of charcoal cooking—without the mess of charcoal! The ARKLA's long-life re-usable lava rocks give a delicious savoury flavour to your cooking. Grill comes complete with heavy duty chrome-plated steel grid, instant on/off control, instant lighting and a heavy duty 272 square inch cooking area.

Here's how you could win one of these deluxe grills!

1. Print your full name, address and telephone number on the entry form below, or on a 3" by 5" piece of paper, and mail together with one UPC symbol from any size jar of KRAFT Burger Sauce or KRAFT Slices, plus one proof of purchase (package label or cash register tape) from any size package of hamburger, to the address shown on the entry form. Enter as often as you wish, mailing each entry separately bearing sufficient postage.
2. There will be a total of 20 prizes awarded. Each prize will consist of one ARKLA Festival Gas Grill, Model No. GRB20-160-SR-C (suggested retail value $261.90). The prizes will be forwarded to winners.
3. A selection of prize-qualifying entries will be made on a random basis from all entries received by the Contest closing date, September 15, 1980. Winners will be selected by an independent organization.
4. In order to win, the selected entrant must first correctly answer a skill-testing time-limited question which will be administered during a mutually acceptable time. Winners must also sign standard forms of release. The chances of winning depend on the total number of entries received.
5. This contest commences August 1, 1980 and is open to all residents of Canada, 18 years of age or older, except employees of Kraft Limited, its affiliated companies, advertising agencies, other representatives, or agents, the contest judging organization and their families.
6. All entries become the property of Kraft Limited, and no correspondence will be entered into except with selected entrants. However, to receive a list of winners, send a pre-paid self-addressed envelope within six months of the closing date, to Kraft 'Cookout' Contest, List of Winners, P.O. Box 9998, St. John, New Brunswick E2L 4N4.
7. Kraft reserves the right to publish winners' names, addresses, voices, statements, and photographs. All prizes must be accepted as awarded with no cash substitution. The decisions of the contest judging organization are final. Only one prize per family or per address or per household will be awarded.
8. This contest is subject to all Federal, Provincial and local laws. All applicable duties required by the Quebec legislation governing publicity contests have been paid. Disputes concerning the handling of this contest and the awarding of prizes thereunder in the Province of Quebec may be submitted to the Régie des Loteries et Courses du Québec.

B.C.'s voice lost in gas tax battle

By CAROL GOAR
FP News Service

OTTAWA — To most Canadians, British Columbia is the forgotten province in the energy showdown looming between the federal government and the West.

Few Easterners realize that it is the country's second-largest natural gas producer, supplying $700 million worth of the fuel to the United States last year.

Even some of Ottawa's so-called energy experts are in the dark. The chief information officer for the National Energy Board, the federal agency which regulates all oil and gas production in the country, blithely told FP News Service this week that the only province with significant natural gas exports is Alberta.

"Doesn't British Columbia sell gas to the United States?" the spokesman was asked.

She glanced at her sales chart. "Oh my, I guess it does."

Last year, B.C. delivered 237 billion cubic feet of natural gas to the U.S. — enough to supply the entire Pacific Northwest and parts of California. That's why it matters terribly to the province that the federal government is threatning to impose a whopping tax on natural gas exports as part of its new energy policy.

British Columbia Energy Minister Bob McClelland estimates the tax would cost the provincial treasury between $700 million and $800 million in foregone royalties and lost sales. He has been fighting the proposed tax tooth and nail since February, but can't help wondering if anyone east of the Rockies is listening.

Especially now. With Prime Minister Trudeau and Alberta Premier Peter Lougheed headed for a nasty collision on energy prices, B.C. seems to have been relegated more firmly than ever to the sidelines.

The province is not alone in its fight. Alberta — which exports about 10 times as much natural gas as B.C. — is also enraged about the natural gas export tax. Its premier made his feelings on the subject abundantly clear before he turned his back on Ottawa after two days of frustrating energy talks, calling the idea "offensive and completely unacceptable".

But Alberta has a $7 billion Heritage Fund to fall back on. British Columbia has little to cushion the blow if the federal government decides to dip into its natural gas revenues.

And it could hardly come at a worse time. This has been one of the most disappointing years in recent memory in B.C. for the men who drill for natural gas.

Their traditional customer, the forest industry, is limping along, waiting for the current recession to ease so people will start building houses again.

To make matters worse, St. Helens errupted in Washington in March, really taking the punch out of the economy of the Pacific Northwest. Several major companies lost thousands of acres of prime timber, forcing them to turn off even more of their machines. Gas sales dropped dramatically.

Canada might have been able to keep a better toehold in the U.S. market if it could boast highly competitive prices. But it can't. Since May of 1979, the price Canada charges foreign buyers for its natural gas has more almost doubled. At the same time, the U.S. government has been deregulating natural gas prices in that country. At the moment, an American can buy domestic natural gas at the wellhead at about half the Canadian export price.

Some industrial users have abandoned gas and oil altogether to take advantage of the cheap high sulphur residual oil (a heavy, sticky petroleum by-product) that has recently begun to flood the U.S. market.

"Gas sales are off badly in the Pacific Northwest and there's no question British Columbia is taking the brunt of the cutback," said Al Browne, the National Energy Board's authority on gas exports.

A new tax, bumping up the price of gas even more, is the last thing the province wants.

B.C. gas producers have protested, saying they would lose millions of dollars worth of sales. The B.C. government has protested, complaining that — in the words of one provincial spokesman — "15 per cent of our provincial budget would just disappear." Even the B.C. Liberal Association has protested. At the party's annual convention in Winnipeg, the B.C. delegation urged federal Energy Minister Marc Lalonde not to impose "a region-specific tax" — meaning a gas export tax. (The resolution was defeated.)

But the federal government has given Canadians every reason to believe it intends to go ahead with the controversial tax. At his press conference last Friday, Trudeau said: "There have been export taxes in the past. Until 1964, there was an export tax on electricity. Since 1974, there has been an export tax on oil. There is no reason why we would concede there cannot be an export tax on gas."

The federal government needs the money badly.

"If we can get the money in some other way to do the things which we feel are essential, then it does not have to be an export tax. It is certainly the easiest and most constitutional way of doing it, but it isn't the only way in which it can be done," Trudeau said.

The federal government has not said how much the tax would be. Nor has it indicated how it would be imposed. On the resource itself? On the producers? On the pipeline company (Westcoast Transmission Co. Ltd.)?

All this would be spelled out in the upcoming federal budget this fall, Trudeau has assured the country.

Whenever and however the tax comes, the West won't like it.

Alberta's protests undoubtedly will be loud and spectacular.

And British Columbia's — if the past is anything to go by — will be lost in the fray.

Poet receives literary prize

OTTAWA (CP) — Michael Ondaatje of Kingston, Ont., has been awarded the $2,500 Canada-Australia Literary Prize, the external affairs department announced.

The Sri Lankan-born poet is the author of There's a Trick with a Knife I'm Learmng to Do, a collection of poems he wrote between 1963 and 1978 which also won the Governor-General's Award for 1979.

A statement said the 37-year-old poet is the second Canadian to win the prize.

Ont. girl hurt in stormy ride

TORONTO (CP) — A Toronto teenager was in serious condition early today after slipping into a drainage tunnel whose fast-moving waters were propelled by severe thunderstorms.

Metropolitan Toronto Police said Roberta D'Alessandro, 15, was riding her bike near the sloping side of the tunnel when she lost control and fell in. She was carried about 30 metres by the raging current and became entangled in a metal grating, which firemen said probably saved her life.

The downpour was the latest in a number of severe electrical storms that lashed much of southern Ontario Monday and Tuesday and were centred in Toronto. Environment Canada said Monday's storm dropped 118½ millimetres (4.6 inches) of rain at Toronto International Airport in a 24-hour period — a 50-year record.

Lightning struck a power transformer, leaving the airport without radar and normal air-to-ground communications for almost three hours. Almost 40 incoming planes were rerouted to airports in Windsor, Ottawa, North Bay, London, Montreal and Sault Ste. Marie.

And the downpour caused a roof to collapse at a suburban K-Mart department store shortly before its Monday closing, sending shoppers and clerks scrambling for their lives. Three shoppers and a firefighter were injured.

Mail thefts unstoppable, probe told

OTTAWA (CP) — The man ultimately responsible for security at Ottawa's huge central postal terminal says he rarely meets security officials there and little can be done to stop mail thefts because: "If a person is going to steal, then all the security in the world isn't going to stop him."

"There are all kinds of valuables in the mail and the employees get to know what they look like and what they feel like," terminal manager Albert Clare told the federal commission investigating post office security Tuesday.

But he said he is satisfied with existing security arrangements, despite a $3.5 million robbery there one year ago.

"I happen to be quite satisfied with it and my superiors are quite satisfied with it," he told commission counsel David Scott.

"We think this isn't something we (management) should take too-active a part in."

Sections of the plant are equipped with one-way glass through which security men can watch employees sort mail. A closed-circuit television system may also be installed to further monitor the activities of mail sorters.

Despite recommendations from security officials, no alarms were installed until after an Easter Sunday robbery in 1979 when thieves stole $2.5 million in travellers cheques and $1 million in cash and jewelry from the plant.

Clare also told the commission he did not know how many other thefts have occurred at the terminal and said he did not know what its record is like in relation to other postal terminals.

Such statistics "are irreleyant," he told the commission headed by County Court Judge Rene Marin, who is to recommend ways to tighten security within the postal system.

The commission has visited Montreal and Ottawa and will also hold public hearings in Toronto, Vancouver and Halifax next month.

The commission also heard from Eugene Traynor, the first post office security chief.

Traynor compared postal security with the state of most Canadian law enforcement agencies in 1955: "Standards were non-existent and the role was poorly defined."

Leg brace problems stall Fox

PARRY SOUND, Ont. (CP) — Terry Fox, who since April has plodded doggedly across Canada despite painful chafing of his artificial leg, was temporarily stalled Tuesday when an ill-fitting leg brace caused abrasions and bleeding.

He was expected to arrive today in Parry Sound, but was forced to stop for three hours to change the leg brace to an older, more comfortable one.

In Ottawa, Clifford Chadderton, head of the War Amputations of Canada said Fox risks serious injury unless he sees a doctor.

"He's going to run into terrible problems with his stump because it's taking such a beating," Chadderton said.

Prison hostage takers sought transfer to B.C.

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — Two hostages were released unharmed Tuesday night after spending 11 hours at knifepoint in Millhaven Penitentiary.

The incident began at 9:20 a.m. EDT when prisoners armed with knives took two workshop instructors hostage and demanded transfers to prisons in British Columbia.

The first break for authorities came when the prisoners agreed to release one of the hostages, Frank Scheck, in exchange for broadcast over a local radio station of a communique.

The broadcast was made at 7:01 p.m. and Scheck was freed at 7:02 p.m., Millhaven spokesman Dennis Curtis said.

Negotiations continued, and the remaining hostage, Lance Lockwood, was released at 8:10 p.m.

The prisoners were identified as Terrance Frederick McInnis, 41, of Armstrong, B.C., Frederick William Souvie, 23, of Edmonton, Peter John Peters, 19, of Sarnia, Ont. and Raymond Nelson Cochrane, 34, of Fisher River, Man.

8,000 cars face recall

TORONTO (CP) — Four foreign automakers said Tuesday they will recall about 8,000 cars in Canada later this summer to repair defects.

Spokesmen for the companies said the repairs are minor and will be delayed until parts are shipped from overseas.

BMW says it is recalling about 3,700 of its 1977-79 320I two-door sedans to correct an accelerator spring that could keep the throttle open in hot weather.

The Canadian distributor of Subaru said it is recalling 3,235 of its 1980 cars because the windshield wipers may stop working if the wiper motor is switched on when the wipers are frozen in place.

Fiat said it is recalling 562 of its 1979 X1-9 models because of potential engine sluggishness when a hot engine is restarted after a short stop.

Volkswagen says it is recalling 463 of its 1980 Vanagon models to deflect the exhaust from its auxiliary gas heater. The company said a fire could start if the vehicle was parked on dry material while the heater was in operation.

Reuters Ottawa walkout

MONTREAL (CP) — Reuters correspondents in Canada returned to work Tuesday afternoon after they had left their posts for several hours earlier in the day to support on strike American employees of the London-based news agency.

Five Reuters employees in Toronto decided to honor picket lines set up outside the agency's main Canadian bureau by Reuters journalists from the United States. They also were protesting a company decision to suspend a colleague in Ottawa for refusing to handle copy usually routed through Reuters' bureau in New York.

The Reuters local spokesman said the Toronto pickets would be in place again today.

OTTAWA — Author and journalist Walter Stewart has been named national columnist with FP News Service, replacing Allan Fotheringham, who is joining the Southam News Services, editor Doug Small announced Tuesday.

As part of a reorganization of the FP service, Small said he plans to reopen a bureau in Washington to cover U.S. affairs under the direction of Peter Hadekel, 29, currently Montreal bureau chief.

Keith Woolhouse, now Edmonton bureau chief, will be transferred to Ottawa.

The FP News Service serves the Victoria Times and The Daily Colonist.

Air Canada blocks U.K. standby fares

OTTAWA (CP) — Air Canada has vetoed a proposal by British Airways to introduce standby air fares between Canada and Britain.

The British airline has been trying to two years to sell standby tickets, at savings of hundreds of dollars compared to regular fare, but Air Canada has blocked each attempt.

The latest proposal was vetoed two months ago when British Airways wanted to experiment with standby tickets between Toronto and Prestwick, England.

Alta. loans $75M to New Brunswick

EDMONTON (CP) — More money from the Alberta Heritage Savings Trust Fund is going to the Maritimes.

Alberta will lend $75 million to the province of New Brunswick, and another $35 million to the New Brunswick Electric Power Commission, Provincial Treasurer Lou Hyndman said Tuesday.

U.S. Congressmen make direct appeal

Times News Services

In a letter read to the Iranian parliament today, a group of 180 U.S. Congressmen appealed to the assemblymen in Tehran to give the U.S. hostage issue "the highest and earliest priority."

Tehran Radio, in a broadcast monitored by the BBC in London, said the speaker of the parliament read the letter but told the deputies "the American government is telling lies by claiming it is making an effort to end the crisis" and has "always tried to intensify it."

The letter to parliament was handed to Speaker Ali Akbar Rafsanjani by the Swiss charge d'affaires and it expressed the hope that the two nations could find a way of better understanding each other's goals and objectives, Tehran Radio said.

'Brutal'

Referring to the question of the U.S. hostages, the letter said the continuation of this "crisis" had created a world-wide crisis:

"Aware of the important internal issues facing your government, we ask you fervently to give the highest and earliest priority to the issue of the hostages, as your first step in helping solve much greater, more important and more sensitive dangers, which the nations of the world and the world itself are facing."

Tehran Radio said that before reading the letter, the speaker told the parliamentary deputies, "The letter was delivered to us by the Swiss embassy charge d'affaires to whom I said: 'You are duty-bound to tell the American people that the American government is telling lies by claiming it is making an effort to end the crisis.'"

Rafsanjani said he had mentioned specifically the freezing of Iranian assets in the U.S.; the Americans' not honoring contracts, especially the delivery of spare parts which had been paid for in advance, and Washington's exerting pressure on its satellites to join in economic sanctions against Iran.

The speaker was earlier reported to have said the "brutal" handling of demonstrating Iranian students by Washington police will influence the fate of the U.S. hostages.

District of Columbia police Monday arrested about 170 demonstrators protesting alleged U.S. interference in Iranian affairs.

Bomb

Meanwhile, at least eight people were killed and 36 others injured today in an explosion of a bomb in Ahvaz, the city where Iranian Arabs have been fighting for autonomy from Ayatollah Khomeini's regime.

The bomb was hidden in a motorbike parked in front of Neauphle le Chateau Hotel according to a broadcast from Tehran Radio monitored in London.

Ahvaz is the main commercial centre of oil-rich Khuzestan province.

The Iran state radio also reported Iranian forces were involved in clashes with Iraqi troops.

Shah leaving $50M 'at the most' to family

CAIRO (UPI) — The deposed shah of Iran, who was buried in exile mourned by a handful of dignitaries, left behind $50 million "at the most," willing it all to his family, a spokesman for the late monarch's family said.

That fortune, however, has been demanded by Iran to free 52 American hostages. And Iranian militants holding the captives have said the fortune is more like $20 billion to $30 billion.

The spokesman said the deposed monarch's will was opened several months before Pahlavi died but its contents were kept private.

As for the heirs of the Pahlavi dynasty, led by 19-year-old Prince Reza, security considerations will dominate their future as long as the Islamic leaders who ousted the shah continue in power and maintain their vow to gain blood vengeance on the shah's family.

For security reasons, the family will remain together indefinitely in the Kubbeh Palace, the secluded stronghold in the center of Cairo that President Anwar Sadat offered as a sanctuary without end.

It was not known, he said, whether Prince Reza will return to Williams College in Massachusetts for the fall term or if his sister, Farahnaz, will go back to school in Connecticut.

Ottawa fish-talk team hopeful

WASHINGTON (CP) — Canadian and U.S. officials have negotiated a possible package of proposals for avoiding a renewed West Coast tuna fishing dispute.

Marcel Cadieux, Canada's chief negotiator, said Tuesday the package could lead to a firm agreement by next week.

Following a day of talks with state department officials, Cadieux indicated in an interview the proposals include permission for Canadian fishermen to unload their catches at U.S. ports in return for unlimited access by U.S. fishermen to migrating tuna in Canadian waters.

George Hewison, general secretary of the United Fishermen and Allied Workers' Union, called Tuesday for the Canadian negotiators to take a tough stand on U.S. attempts to fish for tuna in Canadian waters.

Hewison told the Times the tuna issue could be used by Canada to win major concessions from the U.S. on salmon, herring and halibut fishing by Canadians.

Cadieux refused to be specific, saying that both sides have agreed to consult representatives of the fishing industry to invite their comments before a firm agreement is reached. Cadieux said he will go to Vancouver on Thursday for talks with interested fishing groups.

Last year, 19 U.S. fishing boats were seized by Canadian authorities for fishing albacore tuna inside Canada's 200-mile zone.

The U.S. refuses to recognize a 200-mile coastal fishing limit for nomadic species such as the tuna, which once again are migrating towards the Canadian West Coast.

Cadieux said there is no question that Canada continues to differ with the U.S. over whether or not the tuna, like other species, can be regulated by Canada within 200 miles of its own coasts.

Only the U.S. and Japan, which can afford big fishing fleets that pursue tuna on the high seas and inside other countries' fishing zones, insist upon the right to do so, he said.

In his talks with Morris Busby, U.S. deputy assistant secretary of state, Caxieux found the Americans were willing to permit Canadian boats to enter a number of ports in the U.S.

In the past, Canadian fishermen have not been able to fish tuna in U.S. waters because they don't have freezer facilities to preserve the fish until they return to their home ports.

"Many of the ports that they mentioned were already on our own list," Cadieux noted, adding that "I don't think this is a point that will prevent an agreement."

One problem, however, is that it might require legislative authority by the U.S. for Canadian boats to use U.S. ports. Therefore, Canada may have to settle for a limited arrangement this year and extend it next year to include more ports or cover a longer time.

If U.S. fishermen are given official permission to enter Canadian waters for tuna, there will be no limits on the number of boats and no limit on the quantity they take, Cadieux acknowledged.

Cadieux emphasized that not only Canadian access to U.S. ports would be involved, but also easier "access to their markets against access to our zone."

"But it is necessary now to consult the fishing industry to find out what they think would be a fair deal before they can move on to a formal agreement," he said.

South Pacific author at Vanuatu's birth

Times News Services

PORT VILA, Vanuatu — The new Pacific republic of Vanuatu was born today, and its first act of independence will be to request an Anglo-French military force to stay on to combat secessionist rebels on the archipelago's largest island.

After the red-green-and-yellow flag of Vanuatu was hoisted at independence celebrations, ending 74 years of Anglo-French rule in the former New Hebrides, Prime Minister Walter Lini, a 38-year-old Anglican minister, called for unity in the island chain some 1,760 kilometres northeast of Australia.

The new nation has a population of 112,000 people, scattered across more than 13,000 square kilometres of archipelago.

"Our new republic must use its every energy to become unified," Lini said in a reference to secessionist troubles on Espiritu Santo, where French-speaking planters backed by a irregular army of poor natives declared independence two months ago.

Ati George Sokomanu was sworn in as the country's first president.

The U.S. the U.S. delegation was led by author James A. Mitchener, author of the book Tales of the South Pacific, which was set on Espiritu Santo and turned into a smash musical.

The Vanuatu government wants the Anglo-French force to stay on Espiritu Santo for at least three weeks.

The force, flown into the Espiritu Santo capital of Luganville last Thursday, so far have been restricted to guarding the town's airport and fuel dump while rebel leader Jimmy Stevens and his supporters move freely about the town.

In a bid to soothe French government fears for the safety of its citizens and francophones on the island, Vanuata plans to introduce legislation to grant amnesty to the rebels, including Stevens, if they agree to a settlement.

The rebels, who have vowed to resist the return of government authority, fear they will lose their land when Lini's mainly anglophone government introduces promised land reforms.

U.S. reacts furiously to Ethiopia envoy move

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Relations between the United States and Ethiopia — never very good since the Lion of Judah, Emperor Haile Selassie, was toppled by a socialist revolution in 1974 — have sunk to their lowest level.

On Tuesday, the Addis Ababa government expelled Ambassador Frederic L. Chapin, and the U.S. State Department, in an angry response, accused the East African nation of welching on its debts, perpetrating gross violations of human rights and making anti-American statements.

Police plan hypnotism as aid in probe of Met murder

Times News Services

NEW YORK — Baffled detectives are resorting to hypnotism and a pencil sketch of a possible witness as they continue their search for the murderer of British Columbia-born violinist Helen Hagnes Mintiks.

The new investigative tools came to light Tuesday as Mrs. Mintiks was remembered in words and music in a memorial service at St. Peter's Church, where the slain woman had played off and on for about 10 years.

Today marked a week since the night of July 23 when Mrs. Mintiks did not return to perform in the final part of a four-ballet program at the Metropolitan Opera House.

Her nude body — bound and gagged — was found 11 hours later on a beam in an air-cooling shaft. It was determined she had been thrown alive down the shaft, but had not been sexually abused.

Police have assigned 50 detectives to the case, and they have set up a full-time office in the Met, interviewing staff and artists in hopes of learning what occurred after the victim left her seat in the orchestra pit, saying she was going to talk to ballet star Valery Panov.

With no suspect and no apparent motive, police said Tuesday that department personnel with the ability to hypnotize will try to get more information from those who last saw Mrs. Mintiks before her death.

In describing their first major break in the case, a police spokesman also said they have put together a sketch of a white male who, although not considered a suspect, may have information about the killer.

Police refused to release the sketch to the media.

Meanwhile, the memorial service for the slain 31-year-old woman was marked by the strains of Bach's G Minor Adagio from the First Solo Sonata as played on violin by Elmar Olivera.

Barbara Bogatin, who had played chamber music with the deceased at St. Peter's, remembered her as "an incredibly giving person."

Ruth Buffington struck a similar note: "What was so special about her was her enormous capacity for giving, empathy for her fellow human being and her luminosity.

"Those are the things I will never forget. So for me, she will continue to live," Buffington told the 225 people who attended.

Yuki Erwin, another friend of the deceased, said Mrs. Mintiks "believed in the spirit and in reincarnation" and believed that she had lived in Egypt during a previous life.

Mrs. Erwin said the woman asked that "if anything ever happened to her, that her ashes be taken to the River Nile. "Janis, her husband, is taking her, as he had promised."

The trip to the Nile will wait, however, until the body is no longer needed for the investigation.

Another memorial service for Mrs. Mintiks is scheduled for Friday in Aldergrove, where she lived until 1969.

The bidding:

East	South	West	North
Pass	1 ♡	Pass	3 ♡
Pass	4 ♡

Opening lead — ten of spades.

There are times when a player must abandon the so-called "percentage play" -- because his instinct and common sense tell him that the normal method of play cannot succeed.

For example, take this deal where South gets to four hearts on the bidding shown and West leads the ten of spades. East wins with the queen and plays the A-K of spades. Declarer ruffs with the ten and leads the A-K-Q of trumps, drawing all three of East's trumps.

South next leads the ten of diamonds, losing the finesse to East's king. Back comes a diamond, taken in dummy with the ace, and declarer then plays the jack of diamonds to his queen.

South is now at the crucial stage of the play. If he follows the standard method of play by leading his nine of clubs to the ace and finessing the jack, he winds up going down one.

But if South is alive to the situation, as he should be, he does not follow this losing line of play. He realizes that East passed originally and that early in the play East showed up with the A-K-Q of spades and king of diamonds. It therefore would not make sense to expect East to have the queen of clubs, since he surely would have opened the bidding had he also held that card.

Accordingly, declarer credits West with the queen of clubs and adjusts his play to fit that premise. He leads the jack of clubs at trick ten, planning to let the jack ride if West follows low. If West covers the jack with the queen, declarer wins in dummy with the ace, returns a club, finesses the nine and thus makes the contract. True, South has to be lucky to find East with the ten of clubs, but this is manufactured luck rather than plain ordinary luck.

FUN WITH FIGURES

By J. A. H. HUNTER

We have 4588 for the game today. Two 8s, one 4 and one 5. Using all four each time, but no other digits at all, you form expressions for the consecutive numbers from one up.

Any arithmetical signs may be used, but no summation of factorial symbols, and no words. Don't forget decimals, regular and repeater, also roots and powers. For example, 58+8—4 is a solution for 62. The limit without a break seems to be 106, with 94 a real challenge. I shall be glad to check solutions.

Thanks to R. S. Johnson, Montreal, Quebec for some help.

FULLY ESTABLISHED BOARDING STABLE

Very rarely indeed does such a property come available! We have the privilege of representing probably the finest 6-acre boarding stable in the Saanich area, just listed and certainly destined to sell quickly. the owner has developed the site over a 12-year period, creating a delightful equestrian-oriented property, featuring 14-stall barn, lighted riding ring (with bleachers for shows), 7 ample corrals, all professionally fenced and carefully landscaped. Add a fine 3-BR, full basement residence with huge sundeck overlooking the estate, and you come very near perfection! Offered at a realistic $275,000. (M.L.S.) Recycle plan cuts risk

Plumper Bay Sawmills Ltd. will recycle its chemical wood preservative waste effective immediately, company president John White said today.

This arrangement will stop the ongoing risk of contamination of Tod Creek.

The creek empties some leach water into Brentwood Bay and was the cause of concern expressed last week in the legislature and by Central Saanich Mayor Dave Hill.

White also corrected the impression that his mill's preservative contains highly toxic dioxins, a constituent of PCP (pentachlorophenol).

"The wood preservative we use is TCP (tetrachlorophenate), similar to PCP but does not have any dioxins, and is the same product used by B.C. Forest Products," White said.

He said the supplier in Vancouver had agreed to take the residue from Plumper's mill for recycling at its Vancouver plant.

The Plumper Bay mill uses a self-contained spray technique to preserve lumber coming off its planing machines.

White said there is little sludge as a result, only about four pails a year. This, together with used filters, will be picked up by the supplier.

B.C. Forest Products uses a dip-bath to apply TCP preservative, and therefore gets more sawdust and other residual material in its recovery tank.

But because BCFP operates a steam plant it is able to dispose of the chemical sludge by burning it in its own furnaces at high temperature, a method approved by the Environmental Protection Service.

B.A. Heskin, Pacific and Yukon regional director of EPS in Vancouver, said he was not aware of the concerns expressed here but would be in touch with inspection staff.

He said province-wide standards and guidelines for the handling of such chemicals are in the process of being drawn up.

Hill, who is also a regional district director, said the Hartland Road dump operated by the capital region discontinued testing for phenol leaching a few years ago, never having found any evidence of contamination.

But he said he is concerned about what might happen in 40-50 years as a result of repeated dumping of toxic waste and eventual leaching.

That might have an implication for his municipality, one side of which is bounded by Brentwood Bay and Tod Inlet.

Sealed tenders for custom milling logs located at French Beach Provincial Park will be received by the Ministry of Lands, Parks and Housing, Nanaimo, B.C., up to three p.m. Friday, August 8, 1980, and opened in public at that time at 190 Wallace Street, Nanaimo, B.C.
Quantities and specifications may be obtained from T. W. Gillings, Regional Manager, #203-190 Wallace Street, Nanaimo, B.C.
The lowest or any tender will not necessarily be accepted.

Zinnias are No. 1 in popularity garden notes

Our gardens are producing an abundance of lovely flowers despite the cool and cloudy spring and early summer we experienced and at the peak of the season it can be an interesting exercise comparing our own choices with those of our friends and neighbors.

As a matter of fact, you can go beyond that and compare the floral choices you made last spring with the tastes of your fellow North Americans for a sort of Academy Awards system is followed in which the 10 top favorites among home annual flower growers are compiled by the National Garden Bureau, an information service of the North American seed industry.

Although it's easy to understand, it may come as a surprise to many to learn that the top favorite annual flower across the continent is the versatile zinnia. It's understandable because zinnias range in size from dwarf border plants to waist-high hedge size, they grow easily from seed, are dependable, resist heat and rain and are also resistant of pests.

But the appeal that places zinnias at the top of our list of preference is linked more to its sturdy, robust and assertive presence. It is so satisfying to grow such a self-reliant sort of flower that rewards you at the same time with all the colors of the Painted Desert.

For their ease and guaranteed results, marigolds place second among North America's preferred flowers. Their large seeds are unmistakable and easy to handle. They sprout quickly in warm, moist soil. The dwarf French marigolds in particular are the glue that holds many gardens together. Many home gardeners absolutely rely on them to border their flower beds and cover the lanky legs of taller flowers.

Most popular are the crested flower forms of the dwarf marigold. The raised pincushion-like crest makes blossoms deeper and bulkier than simpler forms. Yet, I must confess to be quite enchanted with the single blossom form of marigold. A single row of petals around a centre tuft imitates the daisy. My favorite is the single rock marigold, with fern-like foliage and mound-shaped plants that are covered with small single blooms in lemon yellow, golden orange and crimson. The centres are a charming contrast in color.

Dwarf French marigolds may contribute more to your garden than just decoration. Some studies have indicated that they repel certain species of soil nematodes and gardeners steeped in Olde Garden Lore maintain marigolds are good for everything in the garden, potatoes and tomatoes needing them badly. In ancient Mexico, certain dwarf marigolds were sacred to the goddess of agriculture.

The third place in these North American floral sweepstakes, as determined by actual seed purchases, is taken by the ever-present petunia. If you count plant purchases as well, however, then the petunia would certainly rank first.

Petunias, with their fragrant, ruffly, multicolored blooms, are one of my favorites. I like floating the huge blooms in a glass container for the diningroom table.

However, it must be conceded that petunias are not the easiest of plants to grow from seed unless you can water them from below. For petunias I set peat pots on a bed of dampened peat inside some container or other. Overhead watering is hard on the tiny seedlings and watering from below in this fashion gives them a better chance for survival.

When setting petunia seedlings out in the garden, you should remember that they spread rapidly. If you plant them too close together, they will be forced to grow upwards and soon will cave in and deteriorate.

Given a couple of feet of space between transplants, the small petunias will send out many ground-hugging laterals that will stabilize themselves to produce many blooms throughout the season.

Well, those are the top three flowers in terms of popularity in North American home gardens and tomorrow I'll be discussing the other favorites that make up the Big Ten as determined by seed sales in Canada and the U.S.

Answer to yesterday's puzzle.

HOLD-OVER PERFORMANCE of The Wonder of it All is scheduled for Friday, bringing the well received musical based on events in the life of Victoria artist Emily Carr, to a conclusion for this year. But Four Seasons Musical Theatre producer Maureen Milgrim says it will undoubtedly be back next summer after a work over by the writer-composer team of Don Harron and Norman Campbell. In this scene Jill Galt, playing Emily 'Middle' romps through a production number with boyfriends Don House, left, and Christopher Moss. The musical is on tonight and Thursday as well as Friday at the Provincial Museum's Newcombe Auditorium, starting at 8 p.m.

Israel's rebuffs UN demand to turnover land

JERUSALEM (AP) — Israel rebuffs the UN General Assembly's new demand for it to hand over the West Bank of the Jordan River, East Jerusalem and the Gaza Strip to the Palestine Liberation Organization with the adoption today of a law proclaiming all of Jerusalem the capital of the Jewish state.

Since East Jerusalem — the Arab Old City — was annexed after Israel captured it from Jordan in the 1967 Arab-Israeli war, lawyers say the new law will make no change in the legal status of the disputed sector.

But its timing constitutes a rejection of the new anti-Israeli resolution adopted by the UN General Assembly Tuesday. It also angered the Carter administration, which feared it might impel Egypt to abandon the U.S.-sponsored peace talks. And it prompted Venezuela — one of the 13 states that established its embassy in Jerusalem — to move it back to Tel Aviv.

Adoption of the new law by the Knesset, the Israeli parliament, was assured Tuesday when Prime Minister Menachem Begin's government coalition and opposition leaders of the Labor party agreed on amendments promising protection to the religious rights of Christians and Moslems in the holy city and preferential economic treatment for the city.

The bill states that "complete and united Jerusalem is the capital of Israel" and that "Jerusalem is the seat of the president, the Knesset, the government and the Supreme Court," a consolidation of previous laws.

Another clause says "holy sites shall be protected from desecration or any other offence and from anything which is likely to prejudice the freedom of access of all religions to the places holy to them or their feelings toward those places."

The U.S. government, which considers the Israeli annexation of East Jerusalem illegal, said the new legislation was a "unilateral act which detracts or distracts from the peace process." State department spokesman John Trattner said there is a "logical fear" that Egypt will quit the negotiations on Palestinian autonomy with Israel and the United States if the bill was passed.

In New York, the UN General Assembly completed a week-long emergency session on Palestine with the adoption as expected of a resolution demanding that Israel start withdrawing by Nov. 15 from all territory occupied in the 1967 war. The resolution calls on UN Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim to deliver the West Bank, East Jerusalem and the Gaza Strip to the PLO for the creation of a Palestinian state.

The vote on the resolution was 112 to 7, with 24 states abstaining and Australia, Canada, the Dominican Republic, Guatemala, Israel, Norway and the United States voting aginst the resolution.

The resolution, like similar ones adopted in the past by the assembly, is not binding on Israel. Its ambassador to the UN, Yehuda Blum, rejected it as "one-sided, biased and hostile" to Israel, and U.S. delegate William vanden Heuvel said the United States opposed it because it did not recognize Israel's right to exist as a state.

Freeway killer charges laid

LOS ANGELES (AP) — William Bonin, 33, a twice-paroled sex offender already accused in one of 41 murders in which young men's nude bodies were dumped along area freeways, was charged Tuesday with 13 more killings.

Also on Tuesday, police arrested and charged Vernon Robert Butts, a 22-year-old friend of Bonin, with six counts of murder in connection with six of the deaths in which Bonin was charged.

Besides the murder charges, Bonin faces 11 counts of robbery, one count of sodomy and one count of mayhem. Butts also has been charged with three counts of robbery.

"Bonin and Butts are believed responsible for the kidnapping, torture and murder of at least 21 young males between May, 1979 and June, 1980," the Los Angeles County Sheriff's Department said in a statement.

Investigators from six counties have worked on the murders for the past eight years, but in the past have said they didn't know if the crimes were committed by the same killer or killers.

Also on Tuesday, sheriff's deputies in Orange County were trying to determine whether the body of a young man found Monday along Santiago Canyon Road near here was the 42nd victim in the series of killings.

Curt Livesay, chief deputy district attorney for Los Angeles County, said Tuesday that as many as five additional counts of murder may be filed against Bonin and Butts in Orange County.

Antibody-producing hybrid cell hailed in fight against disease

STANFORD, Calif. (AP) — Researchers say they have achieved a scientific breakthrough by successfully growing cells that produce pure human antibodies, the body's first line of defence against disease.

The development at Stanford University Medical School may have far-reaching implications for the diagnosis, treatment and study of human viral and bacterial infections and cancer, the scientists said Tuesday.

"In principle, this method should permit generation of human monoclonal (pure) antibodies against a broad spectrum of predefined antigens," said Dr. Henry Kaplan, who along with Dr. Lennart Olsson developed the technique.

Antibodies are highly specific proteins produced in the body in response to specific foreign substances. Previously, scientists had succeeded in artificially producing only mouse antibodies.

Kaplan, director of the school's Cancer Biology Laboratory, and Olsson, a Danish Medical Research Council fellow working at Stanford, used human bone-marrow cancer cells fused with human spleen cells to produce the human antibodies. The fusion creates a hybrid cell line that both produces antibodies and grows rapidly.

"They become tiny little factories," Kaplan said.

But Kaplan said considerable work remains for researchers before practical applications become widespread. "There are 200 to 300 different types of cancer, and an antibody that will work for one will not work for another," he said. "It will be necessary to generate literally hundreds of specific antibodies. It's going to take a long time."

Radiation not so bad?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Human cancer risks from X-rays and other low-level ionizing radiation are only half as great as government researchers theorized in 1972, a report by a panel of prominent scientists concluded Tuesday

The 638-page U.S. National Research Council report, requested by the Environmental Protection Agency in 1976, has far-reaching public health implications because it could shape future federal standards on permissible radiation doses.

Dr. Edward P. Radford of the University of Pittsburgh objected vigorously to the new risk estimates, saying he hopes they will be rejected by the scientific community as too lax.

Using what it called a linear-quadratic mathematical model, the panel estimated one-time exposure to 10 rads of low-level ionizing radiation would cause from 750 to 2,300 extra deaths from cancer over the lifetime of a population of 1 million, compared to the 115 to 620 extra deaths estimated by a 1972 report.

An average annual dose is about one-fifth of a rad.

Quake terrifies Nepalese

KATMANDU (AP) — A strong earthquake Tuesday rocked Katmandu, capital of the Himalayan kingdom of Nepal. Many people fled their homes in panic, but there were no immediate reports of casualties or major damage.

The tremor lasted for about 12 seconds in the Katmandu Valley.

Immediately after the earthquake, the city was blacked out. Officials said power was cut as a precautionary measure.

The U.S. Geological Survey in Golden, Colo., said the quake registered 6.7 on the open-ended Richter scale.
